ORDER "FOUNDATION" and "FOUNDATION A" for Certified Seed Production. All fields entered for certification in 1944 must be planted with either "Foundation" or "Foundation A" seed potatoes.

Red Cross National Appeal

The Canadian Red Cross will make a national appeal for $10,000,000 in voluntary contributions throughout Canada starting on February 22nd. In previous appeals the people of Canada have more than supported the cause and the generous response of the Canadian people in the last appeal showed their openheartedness and understanding of the Red Cross work.
 The Red Cross is an international organization and under the Conventions of Geneva is required to obtain its support by voluntary subscriptions to preserve its rights, privileges and immunities guaranteed under International Law.
 The national appeal in March was planned with the fullest co-operation of the Dominion Government to avoid disruption of plans of the National War Finance Committee. And too, the American Red Cross made its appeal for the same month, making it a continent-wide campaign.
 The largest work facing the Red Cross during the current year is supplying food parcels for Canadian, British and Empire prisoners of war in Europe and the Far East. The Society now has five packing plants in Canada, with a weekly production of 100,000 parcels. Of this amount the Canadian Red Cross donates 30,000 parcels for prisoners in Europe, the remainder being paid for by the British and Australian Red Cross Societies. Provision also has to be made for food, drugs and other supplies for Canadian prisoners in the Far East. These two objectives alone will require $5,500,000 during 1944.

A Wages Symposium

In this world war tempest 'higher wages' is a siren voice that leads to disaster. It is a false note in the global symphony. And 'lower wages', lower recompense for human service in America at least, is the eldorado we should be seeking, if only the truth can be made manifest.
 Wages, how high? The answer is—as high as our Canadian economy will permit. The wage scales that will yield the greatest total income. That is the test and that is the wage standard we must have. And that means lower wages, in order to increase production, and thus increase the total national income. And it was because our wage standard was 25% to 30% too high in the 'thirties' that we had ten years of distress and misery—that was the elemental cause.
 Just now we are living in an abnormal period, we are enormously increasing our debt, and merely promising that posterity will pay the bill. And as a result everyone is employed, high wages and all. But in postwar days we should be trying to pay our way and live within our means. And then it will be our duty to fix wage rates within our means. And then it will be our duty to fix wage rates so to produce the greatest total income possible, and give employment to the largest possible number of workers. And that desideratum cannot be gained with munition wages as now, which are 25 to 40% too high. I declare too high, because we cannot have a balanced economy with the present wage scales, when the war is ended.
 Let's analyse this question of high wages still farther. Wages are only high when they become uneconomic. And therefore wages have been too high since the depression set in—with the result we have seen. And a wage is uneconomic when it is above, say, 10% of price level of farm commodities and the cost of living. This 10% margin for fluctuation of prices.
 Notwithstanding, union workers will tell you that higher wages—uneconomic wages—increase purchasing power. But not so in effect, it decreases the buying power of the consumer public, in higher prices.
 Uneconomic wages, therefore, do three things: They increase the prices of goods and services—lessen employment—and bog down the general prosperity. Why then the clamor for higher wages with the concomitant strikes? And what about the moral law under these circumstances?

doctor has dressed it a couple of times and there is hope of the blood receding through it. Farm life is quite a hazardous one.
 Chas. McClocklin, who suffered from a severe paralytic stroke last summer has been gradually recovering ever since and is able to do considerable churning and milking, celebrated his 81st birthday on Monday, January 31. His health is improving, proving favourable there will be a big crowd present. The very best wishes of the community is extended to this fair and gifted bride and her happy husband.

Have you Thought About BRAY LEGHORNS ?

LOOKING over the Canadian poultry situation, we sometimes wonder whether White Leghorns are "getting the break" they deserve. They're thrifty, they live well, and they certainly shell out the eggs. Since they're smaller and naturally more active than most heavier breeds, you can put more Leghorns into a given space than the bigger birds. Some of our biggest markets give a preference to white eggs... some even pay premiums for them. And we know poultry authorities who claim that you can raise Leghorns cheaper and get more eggs for your feed.

YES—WE HAVE 'EM
 From all this you may gather that we have White Leghorn chicks to sell. That's right—we have! Mind you, we're not knocking other breeds—we produce a lot of chicks of other breeds, too. But with eggs in such strong demand for hatching, we feel this old reliable egg manufacturer, the White Leghorn, deserves more attention than it has been getting, recently.
