I've Never Been To Ireland

From "Seasonal Songs"
compiled by Rev. J. M. Fraser

I've never been to Ireland,
I've never crossed the sea;
I've never been to Ireland
Yet it has come to me—
The fairy lore it brought me,
The myths and legends bright;
Have held my heart and caught me
A captive in delight.

I've never seen its cities
Nor lakes of Killarney,
And famous Tipperary
Comes but in song to me;
But I have heard the singing
Of Goldsmith and of Moore,
In dreams I've seen the shamrocks
Beside each cabin door.

I've never seen the Green Isle
But I have felt a thrill
In hearing of the beauty
Of lake and glen and hill;
And Irish songs and music,
I cannot tell you why,
Bring to my heart a rapture
And tear drops to the eye.

But some day in the future
I yet may cross the sea,
To visit Mother Erin,
Or hear the wild banshee;
And then I'll learn the magic
That lures her children home—
The love for dear old Ireland,
Wherever they may roam.
