Decoration Service Sunday Was Impressive Event

The annual Decoration Service at Markdale Cemetery on Sunday was an impressive event and was attended by many from outside points as well as those from the immediate district. The members of Saugeen Lodge No. 377, I.O.O.F., sponsored the service which was attended by members of the Canadian Legion, the Orange Order and Royal Black Knights. Each of these organizations placed flowers on the graves of their former members, in all, about one hundred and fifty.

A procession was formed in the village at 2.30 o'clock in which the Legion, Orangemen, Royal Black Knights and Odd Fellows marched to music provided by the Markdale-Dundalk band. On arriving at the cemetery Mr. Jas. O. McNeil of Owen Sound, D.D.G.M., of Georgian Bay District of the Odd Fellows, took charge and after the opening hymn called on Rev. W. R. Adams of Owen Sound who addressed the gathering. His address was based on the word, "Builders". His talk was one of the most instructive heard here for some time. As builders we are each responsible for the temple we erect for ourselves. We cannot fool ourselves or our Maker and no other person matters. We are or should be building for the future and if we are not then our lives amount to very little.

Following the address the members of the several organizations proceeded with the placing of the flowers. "Blest Be the Tie That Binds" was sung and the service was closed by prayer by Rev. W. R. Caswell.

The procession then returned to the village.

The flower beds and general appearance of the cemetery was much admired. The ideal weather which prevailed throughout the day added greatly to the service.

After the races all retired to the ball diamond where a very professional looking game was played between Holland Centre and a joint team from Harkaway and Berkeley, under captains Ken Craven of Holland Centre and Harry Carbert of Harkaway. The Holland Centre team were the winners. It was quite noticeable that some of the old timers present would have liked to be able to swing the ball again. It was a good game. 'D' Day In Britain

We are glad to be able to reprint here an editorial which appeared in many British papers during invasion week.

At this decisive hour we think of our fighting men. Not a man or woman in this island home of ours but has some personal stake in the mighty venture we are undertaking together.

We on the home front are proud to bear our share of the cost and pain of these days. We want our men to know that a nation with one heart and mind is fighting alongside them every minute—fighting for the new world to which they are giving their lives.

We mean to make 'D' Day a date with destiny for Britain. A time when we can make simple practical decisions to see that the new world does not disappear once again in lofty words and jungle living the moment the war is over.

A girl with two brothers in the Navy wrote a letter that will go straight to the hearts of millions in this country during these days of suspense: "I don't want to grin and bear it—to hold on tight till it is all over. I don't want to run from my own activity to the next, to run away from my fears in a feverish unending round of things to do.

"I want to give my woman's heart and all that I feel for my brothers to create now the new world they're fighting for. I want to help make this nation once again a great, caring family, with millions of hearts beating as one and beating for each other. I want to use every quiver of emotion and every extra heart-beat to free this country from the tight strangle-hold of fear, hate and greed, and to make flow again the great creative streams of love and devotion that can never be rationed and that alone bring new life. With God's grace and power I dedicate myself, heart and soul, to doing this for my country."

Arthur W. Wright

Mr. Arthur W. Wright, 89, editor of the Mount Forest Confederate and dean of the Canadian Weekly Newspaper editors, died at his home in Mt. Forest on Tuesday evening. Mr. Wright took an active part in editing his paper until a few weeks ago. He was a man of sterling qualities.
