Drawing The Best From People

Amidst the welter of stories about all the blaming of this group and that which shows the lack of national teamwork, it's encouraging to hear news of how teamwork is being produced.

A French Canadian union leader spoke recently in the Montreal home of an English-speaking industrialist, Mr. B. M. Hallward, and said how much his association with Mr. Hallward and his friends in Moral Re-Armament had meant to him. "Before I met you," he said, "I'd always hated the English, since as boys at school we used to throw stones at each other. I regarded them as hard-headed materialists and always thought they wanted me to conform to their ways of thinking. But I've begun to see that in order to make our country what it should be, I must be truer than ever to our highest traditions as French-Canadians. It's not the French way we have to find, nor the English way—but God's way. I will go anywhere to build this kind of unity with you."

There were some hundred in all present that night, representative of leading French and English thought in the province, including both Protestant and Roman Catholic clergy. The young co-editor of a paper that goes to 50,000 French workers was the next to speak. "We're not here," she said, "as one race trying to give to the other, but as two people uniting on the basis that we both need to change."

Finally, a man representing 65,000 French workers rose to his feet. He talked for quite a time—simply and from his heart. He, too, began by saying what Mr. Hallward's friend-speech had meant to him and that he had learned they could also work together for better teamwork in industry. "At the Moral Re-Armament Training Centre at Mackinac Island last summer," he said, "I met English-speaking people who cared as much as we do for the values of home life and the other things that we hold precious. Since then I am a changed man—different at home and at my work."

All this time his wife, sitting with him, was nodding silent but vigorous assent. Her face seemed to say that whatever it was that had happened to her husband, it was a good thing. The union leader concluded, "The interesting thing is that all these things that I've learnt and which have meant so much to me in my work have come largely from English-speaking Protestants."

Draw the best out of people and the worst comes too. Have a program—a vision; a platform big enough to demand the best qualities from all, so worth fighting for that prejudices and points of view just slough off—that's unity.

Presentation

At the January meeting of the New England Women's Institute the members honoured Mrs. James Clark, a recent bride, by presenting to her a dozen juice glasses. Mrs. Laurence Thompson made the presentation and Mrs. Wm. Clugston read the following address: Dear Viola,

If we did not all know the old saying, "a bride remains a bride for a year", we should feel rather late about saying 'welcome' to a bride of last fall. We do wish to assure you that although the weather may have upset our former plans our welcome is none the less sincere.

Many times we have had to say our loss is another's gain but this time the gain is ours. It is very heartening to know that our community is so attractive, our ex-school teacher just couldn't bear to leave but decided to remain here and lend a helping hand in promoting community interests.

We ask you to accept this gift as an expression of welcome and as a means of saying that we all wish to prove good friends and neighbours. We hope you may never regret the day you decided to live in our midst. Mrs. Clark thanked her friends for their kindness.

Waudby Farm Forum

The February 5th meeting of the Waudby Farm Forum was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herb. Timmins with an attendance of thirty. Miss Leona McNally was convener and Miss Essie Laughlin and Mr. Herb. Timmins were recreation leaders. The subject for the evening was, "Is Co-operative Marketing Efficient?" It was decided by those present that co-operative marketing is a benefit and should be extended, especially in dairy products. They also felt that if the co-operative put trucks on the road to gather farm produce the farmers would benefit greatly.

After the discussion period the evening was spent in cards and dancing. Lunch was served and the meeting closed with the National Anthem.

Hutchinson, "Keep your face toward the sunshine, 'Keep your face toward the sunshine and the shadows will fall behind you"; duet by Mrs. R. Freeman and Mrs. F. Meeting closed by singing "God Save the King". Lunch was served by Mrs. Lloyd Boland and Mrs. Geo. Shaw.

The February meeting will be held at the Community Hall. Mrs. W. Hutchinson and Mrs. F. Boland will be hostesses and serve lunch at 12.30 instead of in the afternoon when a quilting will be the same day, starting at 10.30 a.m. Members please take notice of change in time.
