Nothing For Nothing

That important side of social security about which so little is heard during election campaigns
—the cost of such services to the taxpayer-received a pointed air-ing during the recent British House of Commons debate on the governments's social insurance scheme, says the Regina Leader-Post.

Total annual cost of the scheme at the beginning is placed at $2,000 million. Of this, one-half will be a direct charge on the British taxpayer. Within 30 years, the cost will have reached $3,324 million. and at this point the taxpayers will bear two-thirds of the charge.

. And just in case anybody thinks the largest part of this will be borne by those in the high income brackets, it has been accurately computed that the only way the scheme can be carried at all is through collecting one-third of the required tax revenue from those whose incomes are under $2,500 a year.

Paris has a talking clock, which automatically tells the time when rung up. Four million people used the service ir. one year.
