British Food Ration Is Reduced Again

Col. J. J. Llewellin, Minister of Food, announced that the bacon ration for Britons will be reduced from four ounces a week to three

He also said the domestic ration of oils and fats will be re-duced by one ounce a week during the summer months, cutting ounces to one.

The soap ration is to be re-duced for the time being by oneeighth, except for babies and young The Food Minister also announced a cut in the number of points available for canned meat, rom 24 to 20 from the beginnin of the next ration period. He said he hoped to maintain the current The Ministry explained that German prisoners' rations were being pared in deference to the general feeling of the public that these captives were being overfed. The exact reduction applied to the Germans, however, is still being

By Gwendoline P. Clarke of GINGER FARM

We have been seeing the world!
We have been on two trips since I wrote last week. One was a visiting and business trip—mostly business—the other was a sight-seeing occasion. Partner and I went to Guelph last Friday and that busy little city was about as busy as we were the companies. When we visited ever saw it. When we visited with friends just above the College suppose we should have known it all along. It was some kind of 'Farmer's Day' at the College and it appeared as if most of the far-mers and their families for miles around had moved in and taken over the College lock, stock and barrel. But we didn't go in. At the time we went by it was nearly five o'clock and at five o'clock and at farmer's failing is to turn reluctantly to thoughts of home—to cows that need milking and to poultry that wants feeding. So we had an eat-and-run cup of tea with our friends and after admiring with our friends and gardens, and their chickens and gardens, and what we coud see of their crops, we made tracks for home, our faith-ful old Lizzie chugging along, contentedly purring because we were on a down-grade nearly all the way home.

Over the week-end Daughter and friend Bert were here and it we saw it before. Now it is 'the Grand River Dam' which seems quite appropriate since it is the Grand River which it controls.

By any name it is a marvellous piece of engineering and well worth taking a little time and trouble to remember our visit to the Grand River Dam for several days. You see after looking at everything from the level of the bridge we naturally wanted to size things us from below. But going all th

From Fergus we went on to the Rocks at Elora. For Partner and I, it was a case of 'Elora Revisited". Even at that we found several little walks and look-outs that we had missed before particularly that of an island rock which however, and, knowing her wandering propensities—which she pro-bably inherits from her mother—I Highway and then across commry, w. finished our journey by visiting a young mother and her three-weeks old baby.
