TREASURE OF THE SEA

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I: Tucu greets a... CHAPTER II: Tucu greets a... CHAPTER III: Tucu greets a... CHAPTER IV: Tucu greets a... CHAPTER V: Tucu greets a...

"If Tucu goes aboard," he muttered under his breath, "I'll go too." He walked toward the stern and measured the distance from the lugger to the schooner, obviously with a view to the escape route...

"Come aboard, mate! You're welcome! Throw me a line and I'll catch it! Ha! Ha! Ye missed it that time, Heave again!"

The girl in the stern gave one horrified glance and then hurried to her parent's side, Captain Bedford was standing in them, waving and beckoning in the distance when another figure appeared on the deck. It was a young man who had surprised the boarding crew, the second apparition—for it seemed like an apparition to many, certainly to Dick Jordan on whom the lugger-created amusement and consternation.

"What boat is that?" she asked in a clear, bell-like voice.

Tucu hesitated for a moment before replying; then in his most persuasive voice, he informed her: "The San Miguel, of Lima."

"The girl of young woman—it was difficult to estimate her age at the distance, but to Dick she seemed young and comely—seemed in doubt, hesitating between replying, but her eyes were busy studying the lugger's crew and the lines of the boat. Finally, as if she had made up her mind, she returned in a sharp, peremptory way:

"Well, what do you want? You can't come aboard!"

"You can see now she isn't," replied the girl quickly. Then, as if anxious to pacify them, she added in a pleasant voice: "Thank you for coming; but we don't need any help. We can manage."

Dick climbed up the rigging hanging over the side opposite the lugger, and secured a firm grip on the deck rail with both hands. Tucu and his men were still forward, arguing with the girl. Dick could hear her high-pitched voice raised in remonstrance.

TABLE TALKS...

Apples and Plums

Canned Applesauce Applesauce is a versatile addition to any fruit cellar. It can be used as an accompaniment to meat, as a basis for a pudding or in a pie. It also is a way, at the present time, of conserving those windfalls used in the orchard which might otherwise go to waste. Applesauce may be canned without sugar, and then sweetened later when it is used in this way. If acid not made inroads on the canning sugar water for doing other late fruits.

Plum Jam (using plums other than Damsons) 8 cups pitted, quartered plums 1/2 cup water 1/2 cups sugar

Place prepared plums and water in a kettle. Simmer uncovered, 10 minutes. Adjust rubber rings and glass tops on screw or spring top sealers, and partially seal. Completely seal tin cans. Process in boiling water bath seven to ten minutes for pints, quart and twenty and twenty-eight ounce cans.

Plum Poly Plop 3 cups halved or quartered, pitted, sweet plums 1 1/2 to 2 1/2 cup sugar 1/8 teaspoon salt 1 1/3 cups boiling water

Wash plums and cut in halves or quarters, removing pits. Add boiling water to sugar and salt, bring to boiling point. Add plums and simmer 5 minutes. Strain off syrup and reserve.

By that time Tucu and his crew had made fast to the schooner and were preparing to climb aboard. "Stop!" she cried. "I forbid you coming aboard!"

Captain Tucu looked up and leered at her. "It's at the capstan," he said. "It ain't against the law, lady, to accept the skipper's invite, is it?"

"My father's not responsible for what he says," she cut in sharply. "I'm in command here, and I forbid—"

Dick didn't hear the finish of the sentence. He had quickly dropped over the stern of the lugger, and was once more battling with his old enemy—the sea.

Swimming slowly, with his head low down in the water, and making a wide detour around the stern of the derelict, Dick reached it without attracting attention. Nobody on the lugger had noticed his departure, and those aboard the schooner were too interested in their prize to give heed to anything else.

Dick climbed up the rigging hanging over the side opposite the lugger, and secured a firm grip on the deck rail with both hands. Tucu and his men were still forward, arguing with the girl. Dick could hear her high-pitched voice raised in remonstrance.

"If you put a foot on this deck, I'll shoot!" she was saying. "The law allows it. You're hoarding my ship against my will."

Dick thrust his head above the rail. The men hadn't reached the deck yet, but were hanging over the side, with heads in view. The girl was facing them, with a defiant glitter in her eyes, and an ugly-looking automatic in her hand.

"You mean my father, Captain Bedford?"

"You can't!" she was frightened reply. "He's not well, and has gone below."

Dick caught the note of alarm in the voice. He gave a start and glanced around him. The handful of Caribs left on the lugger were grouped forward, intently interested in the schooner and the conversation going on between the skipper and the girl. No one paid the least attention to him.

CHRONICLES of GINGER FARM

By Gwendoline P. Clarke

Last week Joy and I were absolutely moved to tears. We just couldn't keep our emotion under control at all. You see we were making mustard pickle. Not just a pint, or even a quart, but twenty jars of it. So why wouldn't we weep?

It is deeply significant that the righteous were not conscious of the good deeds they had done. Jesus so identifies Himself with His people that any act done to them He regards as done to Himself.

The real test whether we love our brethren is—do we minister to their needs? The one thing that shows whether or not we have received Christ is our reception of those who belong to Christ. Christ identified Himself with the least of His brethren. What we do for Christ's brethren we should do for Christ's sake.

Against Oppression The word "stranger" is the name for foreigners. The children of Israel as foreigners in Egypt knew what oppression meant. Out of their sufferings was to come the wisdom which should reveal to all mankind that human relationships are to be governed by love and not by tyrannical cruelty.

It is a Christian duty to care for widows and orphans. Their prayers will be heard by the Lord if they are neglected. If we are truly Christian in our sympathies we will work for them not to withhold from them their due wages. Against slavery and economic oppression God speaks in no uncertain terms. As for the worker, he is to do his work with all his might, in good conscience, rendering service as to the Lord and not to man. As for the employer, he is to have due regard for the welfare of the worker as one who must give an account of his trusteeship to God.

"Blessed of the Father" The inheritance of the kingdom is not something we earn, it is a gift. The kingdom has been prepared from the foundation of the world and it was prepared for us. Jesus gives as a reason for inviting them to an inheritance in His kingdom the fact that they had administered to Him in His need. The whole destiny of man hangs on his faith, but the proof of faith is conduct.

Beware of Flies!

It has been said that the common house fly—Musca domestica—is more dangerous than the tiger or cobra. Flies feed on filth and spread cholera, dysentery, small-pox, diphtheria, scarlet fever, typhoid fever and other diseases. They should be exterminated by all means possible. Beware of flies!

Little Annie and Harold were playing together in the back yard. "I know a wonderful game," said Harold. "Let's make believe we're Admirals and that we are commanding the Navy."

After recovering slightly from the shock of the budget in London, one employer called his staff together and explained that there must be further reductions in wages.

"It means we shall all have to tighten our belts," he ended. Then after a moment's pause, he turned to a junior clerk, who did not appear to be listening. "Do you understand what I'm saying, Smith?"

"Yes, sir," replied Smith. "but it's no good telling me that. My belt broke at the budget before last."

Oh, Yes! Betty: "Do you hear about the man who set up all night trying to figure where the sun went when it went down?"

Acquired "One day," said the old countryman from the hills, who was on trial for murder. "when my rheumatism was pestering me, and my daughter had just dined with a good-for-nothing scoundrel, and my barn had burned down and I lost both my mules, and my best old cow got the cholera, and died and I still heard they had foreclosed the mortgage and the sheriff was looking for me, I sold my troubles to one of these—"
