A few more like her and he can also see his milk production rising - as well as a nice extra income from selling his surplus stock to neighbouring farmers.

The War between Nature Man and Nature ---

IT has been said that while wars between men receive the greatest publicity, the most important war is one which goes on unceasingly between man and nature. In this struggle the "heavy artillery" supporting the farmer is scientific knowledge. This keeps diseasebearing pests under control and promotes healthy crops.

Your agricultural college or experimental farm has this knowledge acquired by hard work, through day-to-day experiments conducted with infinite patience. That's why when you come up against a tough problem your agricultural college or experimental farm can usually help you find the correct answer . . . a service that is yours for the asking.

Important, too, is the service of money which is offered to farmers by this Bank. Our friendly managers are always willing to make loans to responsible farmers that will contribute to more profitable farming.
