

Help The Red Cross "SALUDA" TEA

Synopsis
CHAPTER XXX: Train Carter, a man mentioned as a crook in Garvin's correspondence, enters the saloon just after Juanita and Michael to find out all about Russ Bartle.

CHAPTER XXXI
"So you're Train Carter, eh? I've been looking for you a long time. You wouldn't be knowing me, so I'll just give you my name, my name's Michael Valdez. You'll be remembering that name now, won't you, Carter?"
"Can't say that I do, stranger," Carter drawled.
"Funny," Valdez's voice was icily cold. "I've seen some other have better memories than yours—men like Ray Garvin, Flash Corcoran, and a couple of others I've been looking for, too."

"The mention of those names in connection with the name Valdez jogged a Train Carter's memory plenty. He froze where he stood. "I've got enough against you, Carter, to make it a pleasure to kill you where you stand," Valdez said tightly. "But some letters you wrote to Garvin kind of interested me in them you boasted plenty freely about your speed with a gun. Carter—I'm going to give you a chance to show just how good you are."

The crowd in the saloon stood speechless, watching, all. In the dark, as to any reason for the play. They looked on with a kind of impersonal interest, for apparently neither of these two men who were holding their full attention was handicapped. The two men who stood glaring at each other were, in fact, nearly matched in build, but the young vagabond seemed to tower over the dastardly man before him.

But Carter did not have that look of speed and untapped strength for nothing. Almost instantly his first

With the speed and agility of a leopard, Valdez was across the intervening distance that separated him from the gunman. He dropped to his knees and lifted Carter's head. There was still some life flickering faintly in the man's body.
Train Carter looked up into Valdez' eyes as the latter laid his man with the Spanish features bent to whisper into his ear. It was a whisper that was only a blurred movement of lips to those who tried to hear. But Carter heard.
"When you met Corcoran and Garvin, tell them that I'm coming. Get sent you to them—and that the 'big boss' will be there soon!"
Blood flecked Carter's mouth and trickled down his chin. He collapsed, without speaking, like a man prone on the floor and got up slowly, cautiously.
"Number three!" he mumbled tightly.
A giant of a man was striding through the waiting doors, gun in hand. Behind him were two others who jammed out on either side. He cut a grim and smacking with outraged indignation. All three wore stars on the left of their vests.
"Get him, men!" cried Lande thundered—and fired.
The two deputies snapped up their guns and whirled lead in Michael Valdez's direction. Almost before he knew what was happening, two shots had entered his legs, clanged against the pain. Valdez brought up his own guns again. He had to spool the aim of these lawmen. Had to his quickly fired shots did just that, and then Valdez half staggered, half ran to the corridor back of the saloon, darting out the rear doorway.

Your Handwriting and You

Short "D" Stems, Flat-Topped "R's"

Dear Mr. Arnold: I received my analysis this morning and I was very pleased with it, so much that now I would like to have you analyze my handwriting further.

Although history is in evidence in your script, there is a great deal of independence and self-reliance shown in all the capital letters of your writing. This is indicative of a nature that practices self-sufficiency, depending upon personal traits of character and will power to see things through to completion.

Those short "d" stems tell me that you cut across to take advantage of all the short cuts and to improve these established customs, and to represent independence of thinking that is responsible for independence of action. This does not mean that you sacrifice personal interests, but it does mean that you will sacrifice customs or conventions, in order to achieve a given end. Summing up this trait, you like to be independent of conformity to established rules because you do not think they are nearly as important as the accomplishment of a particular effort that lies at hand.

The letter "r" has a consistent "flat top," a strong indication that you have ability to gather information and that you draw conclusions only after careful consideration of all the facts. Here, there is a trait which is useful in fulfilling vocational positions requiring confidence and secretiveness.

Although you have a friendly nature, it is not every one you know you consider to be a personal friend as you do not have a large circle of people within your association. This does not mean that you are not sociable, on the contrary you do mean that you prefer to be exclusive when it comes to choosing friends.

Generosity and thrift are both indicated and you show control over both. This reveals a practical nature, one that goes neither to the one extreme of extravagance nor to the other of stinginess.

Your writing shows a desire to reach out and to possess, to gain and to attain. You wish to learn and to acquire knowledge. Often you have a definite desire for a large circle of people within your association. This does not mean that you are not sociable, on the contrary you do mean that you prefer to be exclusive when it comes to choosing friends.

IT IS heart-breaking to love and trust a man and have your love and trust betrayed. Particularly is it so when the betrayer is one you have loved for the first time. For some reason or another, the right man hasn't come her way yet, since she went to school she has been building her dreams across the country, killing and hustling as he went.

Carter pulled his trigger—but the shot tumbled into the floor inches from Valdez' foot. For Valdez' own lead had been aimed true. Incredibly it beat a double drive through Carter's head, and through the killer's chest. As Carter slumped to the floor he tried to fire again at the mist-colored figure of Michael Valdez. But his gun fell from his hand, clattering on the floor.

Jilted Girl Feels Life Is All Over
IT IS heart-breaking to love and trust a man and have your love and trust betrayed. Particularly is it so when the betrayer is one you have loved for the first time. For some reason or another, the right man hasn't come her way yet, since she went to school she has been building her dreams across the country, killing and hustling as he went.

Then, with no warning, he ceases his attentions. When next she sees him, she asks the reason. He gives a non-natural answer. He is off to a new love, and that was that.

Modern Etiquette
By Roberta Lee
Q. If one is attending a dinner or banquet where wine is being served, and one does not care to drink it, what should one do?
A. Follow the old-fashioned custom of turning your glass upside down. The waiter will then understand that he is to pass you by.

Q. When a wedding engagement has been broken, what should the girl return to the man?
A. All gifts of jewelry, including photographs and letters.
Q. Is it all right to ask a person to return books which he has borrowed?
A. Yes. If a reasonable length of time has elapsed, one need not hesitate to do so.

Q. Does it make any difference to the acquaintance of a married woman and a single woman met on the street?
A. According to the old rules, if the acquaintance was slight, the married woman was supposed to speak first. But now it makes no difference who speaks first. It is the correct way to cut hot bread?
A. Break the bread with the fingers; never cut it.

Q. If the coffee or tea is extremely hot, and one is in a hurry, isn't it permissible to pour it into the saucer to cool?
A. No, never. Merely exercise a little patience, and it will soon be cool enough.

Sunday School Lesson

By Rev. R. Barclay Warren
Ephesians 5: 6-21

Worth of Christian Character
Golden Text — I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Jesus Christ. — Philippians 3: 14.
No one has ever equalled the apostle Paul as a teacher of Christian doctrine. But he was no mere theorist. He felt that truth in the head and heart ought to issue in a befitting conduct. In his letters he presented the truths concerning Jesus Christ and then gave practical exhortations with regard to behaviour.

Paul draws the line very definitely between those who are Christ's and those who are still children of disobedience. "The rest ye therefore, ye who are still children of disobedience, and so represent yourselves in psalms and hymns and spiritual songs, singing and making melody in your heart to the Lord." Here, there is no exception from reality but an inner adjustment fitting us to encounter reality with joy. In that spirit we are sure to win the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus.

Yes Nothing
A few weeks ago an official in one of our departments wrote me an inquiry about a certain case to a subordinate official in another department, who allowed the matter to slide. Later, the first official wrote a complaint to the subordinate's superior, and the superior passed on the minute to his subordinate with the query: "Has nothing been done?"
The minute was returned marked "Yes" and was sent back to the subordinate with a laconic "What?"
"Nothing," was the subordinate's comment on the minute.

How Can I?

Q. How can I melt ice on cement steps?
A. Sprinkle several handfuls of salt-peter on cement steps or walks that have ice on them. To keep ice from forming, wash with hot water in which a handful of salt is dissolved. This is better than sprinkling with salt.
Q. How can I make smelling salts?
A. Break one ounce of rock-walrus into small pieces, then cover it with eau de cologne and allow it to stand a few days before using.

Q. How can I remove brown stains from the steel fittings of the gas range?
A. By using a rag dipped in vinegar. Then polish in the usual way.
Q. How can I remove oil stains from leather?
A. By dabbing the spots carefully with spirits of sal ammoniac. After allowing it to remain awhile, wash with clean water. If necessary, repeat the treatment, but be careful not to injure the color of the leather.

Q. How can I take proper care of ferns?
A. A fern should not be moved from place to place, and should not be kept in a very strong sunlight. Do not water it every day, but soak it thoroughly every third day.

TABLE TALKS

For Meatless Days

The recipes and tips below should prove of real interest to the housewife. They will help make meals more attractive, not only during Lent, but anytime.
Crunchy Salmon Scallop
3 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons flour
2 cups milk
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons onion juice
Melt butter in saucepan, add flour and blend. Add milk, salt, and pepper; cook and stir until thickened. Then add onion juice and green peas.

Remove skin and bones from salmon file. Arrange in greased baking dish and sprinkle with lemon juice. Place eggs, half of corn flakes and half of cheese on top. Cover with white sauce and top with remaining corn flakes and cheese. Bake in hot oven (400° F.) 25 minutes, or until done. Makes 6 servings.
Corn en Casserole
2 tablespoons chopped green pepper
3 tablespoons finely chopped onion
3 tablespoons butter or other fat
2 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
¼ teaspoon paprika
¼ teaspoon dry mustard
1½ cups 40% bran flakes
2 cups egg-well whole kernel corn, drained
1 egg, well beaten

Place green pepper, onion, and 2 tablespoons butter in saucepan and cook gently until tender. Add onion and seasonings and stir until smooth. Add milk and cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Crush ½ cup of the flakes; add with corn and egg to creamed mixture. Turn into greased 1½ quart casserole or 6 greased custard cups. Melt remaining 1 tablespoon butter and pour over remaining ½ cup flakes. Toss lightly to mix. Sprinkle over top of corn. Bake in hot oven (400° F.) 30 minutes for casserole and about 20 minutes for custard cups. Makes 6 servings.

On meatless days, a rich protein dish may be prepared from three simple ingredients — milk, butter, and egg noodles — plus a dash of seasoning. Best of all, this luscious dish (see recipe below) may be prepared in merely fifty years' women have been meeting this situation happily — by getting plenty of rest, fresh fish, wholesome food and by taking Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to build them up. Take Your Choice
Two buck pirates returning to camp from a night of prowling by the roadside to look at a dead animal.
"It has two stripes, so what is it?" said one.
"That settles the question," said the other, "it's either a skunk or a porcupine."

TEEN-TOWN TOPICS

JOTTINGS—We note with interest that teenagers of all ages have been competing at the recent Music Festival in Toronto, and that Peter Kaiser of our town was among the winners. Kaiser's baritone contestants. This is a great opportunity for the young people who are blessed with golden pipes. . . . We read, where Sir Ernest Miles has never heard of the Goanor, Bing Crosby, or heard him sing—well what do you kids say to that? Yeah, I know, who ever heard of Sir Ernest, but . . . If you want a real laugh, listen to Spike Jones, Fridays at 10:30 a.m. Doodles Weaver will no doubt cause you to blow a gasket. Anyway, it's lots of fun. . . . Last week, we went down to see Mickey Rooney in "Killer McCoy", expecting to see a tough young gunman swinging his guns (44's to you) from the hip. What a surprise! This guy Rooney turns out to be a prize-fighter. Just like my Uncle Oscar always says, "You can't tell a book by the print in the cover" . . . The other day we heard a recording we liked very much, a vocal group, with a well-harmony and snappy, groovy music between choruses. When the piece was finished the announcer informed us that the number, "Because," had just been played by the Band of the Year, namely Eddie Howard and company. If you would like to give a listen to this outfit, you can catch them on Sunday afternoons at 3 p.m., on the NBC network.

CHRONICLES OF GINGER FARMS

By Gwendolyn P. Clarke

Well now, it's glad I am to be able to get behind the wheel once more, go to town and do my own shopping. The boys have good intentions for I find they are poor shoppers—and spend forgotten! Getting meat home from the locker has been my biggest worry. One day last week there wasn't enough meat in the house to feed a cat so I asked Bob to bring me some steamed beef from the locker. What he brought me was a big parcel of bones for making stock! Yesterday we were at a low ebb again. Bob, I knew, would be in town before finishing his trucking for the day—so I said to him—"Will you please bring me some hamburger from the locker—and don't forget otherwise there will be no meat for dinner tomorrow." It was nearly six before he got home and of course my first question was—"Where is the meat?" He pushed his cap to one side and scratched his head. "Damn it, I forgot—and I thought there was something I had to get too." He confessed. So there we were again no meat for dinner, and half a beef in the locker.

Of course with non-edible shopping it is always the little things that are forgotten. . . . toothpaste, shoe polish and stumps. Today was a busy day. Am I glad I went to town today. Now at least we have enough meat in the house to last for a few days. Looks like a good time to stay home and work on more chairs. Ah, yes—we can work on the chairs but as our fingers engage in this comparatively trivial task our minds are occupied with thoughts of the trouble in Prague—and we don't want to hear one bit. But to dwell on it too much and allow ourselves to become depressed wouldn't be just out for about ten minutes and come in looking not so much like a dog as a sheep being sheared. Tom thinks it is a good idea to let the young folk do their own worrying, resulting from their sins of omission, just as they do their own forgetting.

Of course I don't mean to suggest that I am infallible. As a matter of fact I can forget better than any of them—but then I figure that is my special privilege, partly on account of my ripe old age and partly because of the number of things I have on my mind—including three men.
