EARLY SPRING IS WELCOMED

When we look back and consider that snow banks and blocked roads wen that snow banks and blocked roads were in the foreground of lest years spring picture, local residents are welcoming the early spring-like days of the past week. As a result of mercury rising and a warm rain Friday, Sunday was a glorious spring day with very little snow in evidence on streets. Several roads blocked for some time have been opened up and many people got to nown for Saturday shouting. Saturday shopping.

LOAD LIMIT SET FOR TRUCKS

Prom the Department of Highways Toronto comes the order that the half-load limit for trucks is now in force and the police have been asked to check all suspicious loads and to rigidly enforce the regulations calling for a half-load limit on trucks using the provincial and county roads. This is an annual affair, and the time for enforcement is set by the time the frost starts to leave the ground, when the roads get soft and may be perm-anently damaged if too heavy loads are allowed to pass over them.

Markdale District Escapes Serious Floods

While the Markdale district seems to be sitting high and dry, except for a few feet of water in the cellars, we can sympathize with those people in the river basins where ice and fast meting snows have caused some of the worst floods in history. At Meaford two charges of dynamite were used last week in an effort to loosen the ice jam. week in an effort to loosen the ice lam at the harbour mouth, and the flood situation was being watched with con-letter. In the Warkerton district the Saugeen river got out of bounds, and towns in that area such as Hanover, Mildmay and Wingham had whole streets flooded. Losses will be in the thousands of dollars.

Snow banks in this district ha appeared as if by magic, and driving along the highway south, you see fields of water on both sides of the road. Low places everywhere are flooded.
