CHRONICLES OF GINGER FARM

by Gwendoline P. Clarke

Rain at last! Yes, after seven weeks with hardly a sprinkle we have actually been blessed with a real rain. We began to be afraid, doubting Thomases that we are, that although rain was all around us it was going to pass us by. You see, that four-inch rain that drenched Toronto Saturday night didn't come our way at all. It was Sunday night before our turn came, and believe me, it was like music in our ears to wake up and hear that steady downpour hitting the roof, the windows and the front doorstep. Some of it came in the house too, but that was neither here nor there. It also filled the cistern to overflowing. No now, for a month anyway, we shall have lots of nice soft water.

Of course the rain is too late to help the pastures much but it will certainly solve the fall wheat problem for a good many farmers. It is still quite hot but I imagine a day or two will clear away the uncomfortable humidity and then we may have some nice fall weather, which will add to the enjoyment of those who are interested in attending local Fall Fairs.

Yes, and next week we return to good old standard time so that in many ways we are getting back to a regular routine following the usual summer upheaval. And speaking of summer time, Partner amused me the other day by saying: "You know I wouldn't mind daylight saving time at all if we had it in the winter instead of the summer. Seems to me we go back to standard time, just when fast time would be some advantage to us."

And from fast and slow time problems we jump to how to save on hydro power. One solution is very simple but it will never be adopted. We could go back to a self-imposed curfew. We could try going to bed at 10 o'clock. Many of those in the sixty-six class probably do that anyway, but what they save in electric light the young folk burn up in half the time. Imagine suggesting to youngsters of this day and age that they be home by midnight! Why, for them at 12 o'clock the night is just beginning. In my far distant youth it was a late night if we were out to midnight. And yet I really believe

ANNE HIRST

Dear Anne Hirst: We've been married almost two years and my husband and I are very happy and very much in love. Just three months ago a baby was born to us which made us even happier. But with him came a new and big responsibility — and expenses. My husband makes a fair wages, but we can't seem to save any. He gives me about three-fifths of his check for household expenses. When his part is gone, he either gets money from me, or writes a check.

"I've always been one to save. But my husband doesn't seem to know how to manage his money. I know he doesn't drink or gamble. Most of his money goes for little things which he could easily get along without.

"I don't say much to him about this, because I figure he should realize his responsibility by now. But being in debt doesn't seem to bother him. He says that just comes with married life!

"Could you please help me?"

Mrs. D. W.

Don't Miss A Word of It

The Sylvester Diamond

By Blanche Roberts

The thrills start in the very first paragraph — with a pretty young redhead lifting the famous Sylvester diamond from a woman's handbag in a Los Angeles department store — and continues right to the exciting and unexpected finish. Look for the opening installment

It's a tale you must not miss.

Expenses Increase

Your baby will cost more to raise and educate every year, until he is on his own. Where is the money coming from, unless it is your wife's? You, your wife and your baby will cost more to raise than you think. It is brought before him. You and your wife will face the responsibility squarely and pleasantly.

Debt can drain the spirit of any wife. It is usually she who has to face the landlord and bill collectors. It is she who does the worrying. To place this burden on her shoulders is not fair. Your husband will admit that, too.

Figures will convince a man, and no argument can. Get together on this vital point, and work things out together.

Disagreement over the family income is one of the most frequent reasons for divorce. Don't let this ghost haunt your house. Talk things over together, and see what's to be done. Anne Hirst can help. If you write her at 123-18th Street, New Toronto.

From Ear to Ear—Two heads are better than one when sharing an outside slice of watermelon, Brantford girls Barbara Lyon and Mary Lou Rutledge find. While Ontario melons are not the biggest in the world, they are among the finest and have just come to ripeness in quantity in a season with no U.S. melons on the market.

Whether preserved, fresh or cooked, apples are a most valuable addition to the family diet. Although they contain some of the necessary minerals, their greatest merit is found in the fibre content which aids normal elimination and in the alkaline ash they yield when digested. This ash helps neutralize the acid effects of food such as eggs, meats, cereals and fats.

If they are in good condition to start with apples, peel and core apples, and cut in quarters and halves. Mix sugar, water, and vinegar. Tie spices in bag and place in mixture. Boil five minutes; add apples and lemon slices. Cook slowly until apples are clear and tender. Remove spice bag and pour pickles into hot, clean jars, and seal.

Apple-Pickles

One pound apples, 3/4 cup sugar, 1/2 cup vinegar, 1 cup water, 1 cinnamon stick, 1 tablespoon cloves, 3 slices lemon. Peel and core apples, and cut in quarters and halves. Mix sugar, water, and vinegar. Tie spices in bag and place in mixture. Boil five minutes; add apples and lemon slices. Cook slowly until apples are clear and tender. Remove spice bag and pour pickles into hot, clean jars, and seal.

Apple-Butter

Using cooking apples. Wash well, and cut into small pieces. Add 1 cup boiling water to each gallon chopped apples. Cover kettle and cook about 30 minutes. Press through sieve to remove cores and peelings. Add 1 pound sugar (brown sugar is very good), 1/2 teaspoon cloves, 1/2 teaspoon allspice, and 1 teaspoon cinnamon to each gallon of sieved apples. Cook slowly for one hour. Then add 1/2 cup lemon juice and cook five minutes more. Pour while hot into hot, clean jars, and seal.

Where He Failed

There was a young man from Australia
Who painted himself like a daffin
The colors were bright,
And the size was just right
But the smell was a definite fahia.

How Can I?

By Ann Ashby

Q. How can I restore faded leather?
A. Give it several coats of water-color paint, selecting, of course, the shade of the leather. After the paint has thoroughly dried, rub the surface well with a good furniture polish and the result will be pleasing.

Q. What is a good substitute to use for baking powder in an emergency?
A. Two teaspoons of cream of tartar and one scant teaspoon of baking soda are equal to three teaspoons of baking powder.

Q. How can I prevent dandruff?
A. It is claimed that dandruff can be prevented by applying a solution of one part apple juice to three parts of water, about twice a week.

Q. How can I remove shine from tailored suits?
A. Wet a thin piece of muslin in which barrel and spread it over the shiny portion of the garment. Hold a hot iron over it until it steams. Then press on the wrong side.

Q. How can I prevent milk from curdling in tomatoes?
A. This can be avoided by putting a pinch of bicarbonate of soda in with the tomatoes before adding the milk.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Biography in the Bible
Genesis 11:31 to 12: 5; 17: 1, 2. Golden Text—In all thy ways acknowledge him and he shall direct thy path. —Proverbs 3:6.

In every nation there have been individuals who helped to shape the course of history. To know the story of these persons is to know the biography of the nation.

The choosing of Abram to illustrate biography in the Bible is a happy one. Few names in history are respected by so many. He was the father and founder of the Jewish nation. Mohammedans also claim him because he was the father of Ishmael from which the tribes of Arabs are descended. To Christians he is the "father of the faithful."

Bible biographies are frank. There is no attempt to cover faults. Abram's reference to his wife Sara as his half-sister, —even though she was his half-sister, —was an attempt to deceive. This was one instance of his lack of faith. However in other acts Abram showed great faith. In the Jewish nation, Mohammedans also claim him because he was the father of Ishmael from which the tribes of Arabs are descended. To Christians he is the "father of the faithful."
