It is five years since the father and daughter were here. They came this time to attend the marriage in Toronton to on October 15th of Mr. Caesar's grandson, William Harris.

Mr. Caesar started taking The Standard in 1880, the year that C. W. Rutledge took it over and changed the name. He has taken it ever since: He reads only the headlines now, and his daughter reads the news in it to him. Except for failing sight and a slight deafness, he is in excellent health. Asked how he felt by The Standard, he said, "Couldn't be better!"

He is looking forward to his 100th birthday in 1951. "Many of his friends are coming for that party," said Mrs. Beaton, who has a party for him each the three men who built Markdale were C. W. Rutledge, William Lucas, and John Caesar," recalled Mr. Caesar T. He came to Markdale in 1880 as the C.P.R. agent, and he retired in 1917. After that, he spent winters in Vancouver, and the summers with the floral department of the C.P.R., when he planned its station gardens.

Mr. Caesar was born in London, Eng., and came to Canada in his teens. A son of his, E. M. Caesar, was also the C.P.R. agent here for a couple of years, leaving about a year and a half ago, he recalled. During his visit in Markdale, Mr. Caesar enjoyed talking over old times with Jim Crowston, who came to Markdale in 1896.

Orchestra Plays Five Years In Same Hall

For five years, Russell Hill's orchestra has been playing for a weekly dance in the same hall in Flesherton, under the sponsorship of the Masonic Lodge there. Russell, who has a five-piece dance band, has been leading an orchestra for about six years.

He started an orchestra to raise money for the Markdale-Temple Hill Snow Club, to have the 11th line snow-plowed. It is now the county road from Markdale to Meaford. Money-raising dances were held in the arena and the Orange Hall to help with the snowplowing costs.

Provisional Directors Named For Ski Club

Several carloads of Markdale residents attended a meeting in the town hall at Flesherton on Friday evening, when films on skiing were shown and the formation of a ski club was decided upon. Excellent colored films on skiing were shown by Clint. Melville, vice-president of the Canadian Ski Instructors' Alliance.

Mr. Melville urged the formation of a ski club for the Markdale, Flesherton, and Eugenia district. He spoke of the skiing possibilities in the Beaver Valley, at the new ski tows on the Frank Davis farm, five miles east of Markdale.

After the general meeting, those who were interested in the formation of a club held a separate meeting in the hall. It was decided to organize a club at once. A provisional board of directors was formed, with four representatives each from Markdale and Flesherton and two each from Eugenia and Kimberley.

Hugh Mercer, a former Western Ontario ski champion, who is well versed in ski club operations, was chosen to head the Markdale foursome. Bert Hamilton and J. M. Dugan, both of whom skied in their younger years, were also chosen, with Don Kidd as junior representative.

These four, it was felt, will make a strong team towards the building of a large and successful club.

A delegation of farmers who live on the road from Markdale to the new ski run attended the meeting to discuss with Mr. Melville the keeping open of the upper road to the property, this road being the closest direct route from No. 10 Highway. They were assured that all necessary help will be given to them in keeping the road open this winter.

While work started last week on the ski run, considerable volunteer labor will be required in preparing the ground and putting up the ski tows and buildings, The Standard was informed. "It is hoped that many in Markdale will willingly lend a hand in order to assure the completion of the work before winter sets in," a spokesman for the club stated. "This can be a very big drawing card for this area, with skiers expected from all over Southern Ontario and even down to New York State.

"Markdale," it was stated, "cannot expect its share of this trade unless it works for it. We can rest assured that places such as Flesherton, Eugenia, and Kimberley will not be asleep when it comes to working for all they can get from this venture."
