Our Returned Soldiers

The work of the Canadian Patriotic Fund and the Soldiers' Commission

The establishment of the Soldiers' Aid Commission for Ontario, of which the Secretary is Mr. C. N. Cochran, Parliament Buildings, Toronto, is the first result of the report recently issued by the Hospitals Commission, and the forerunner of others.

The care of the soldier who has returned to Canada, mutilated or weakened as a result of active service, is the prime duty of Canadians. For some months the Canadian Patriotic Fund has been endeavouring to ensure that the men already back from Europe should suffer no want. This work has been voluntarily undertaken by local committees of the Fund, although in most instances their time is fully occupied with the task of making provision for the families of soldiers.

Each soldier is interviewed at Quebec by a representative of the Fund and a confidential report sent by the latter to the patriotic committee of the town

Notice of Registration of Bylaw

Notice is hereby given that a Bylaw was passed by the Council of the Township of Bucke on the 24th day of September 1915, providing for the issue of debentures to the amount of $500.00 for the purpose of completing the school house for Public School Section No. 5, Bucke, and that such Bylaw was registered in the registry office of the District of Temiskaming at Haileybury, on the 6th day of December 1915. Any motion to quash or set aside the same or any part thereof must be made within three months after the first publication of this notice. And cannot be made thereafter.

Dated the 6th day of December 1915
HERBERT H. DAY,
Clerk.

to which the soldier is going. This serves the two-fold purpose of protecting the Fund against the greedy or unscrupulous and of giving the local committee information that is helpful in finding employment for the deservant. Not every man who returns to Canada wearing His Majesty's uniform is included in the latter category, but the great majority have done their duty in the fullest degree. To the latter it has been the privilege of the Fund to present a small badge bearing the words, "For service at the Front. The men who are wearing these badges are the worthiest citizens that we can acknowledge. Like charity, that badge should be allowed to cover a multitude of sins.

The work that the Canadian Patriotic Fund can do for returned soldiers, however, is limited by Act of Parliament, and it has been specifically enacted that no assistance can be given by the Fund to "any person who is in receipt of any gratuities, pension or allowance paid by His Majesty or by any foreign government in consequence of incapacity or death occurring as aforesaid." Partly on this account and largely because the pensions and gratuities paid to incapacitated men are oftentimes admittedly inadequate it has been necessary to establish a Hospitals Commission and Disablement Fund. The officials of the latter, in their report to the Federal Government, recommended among other measures, that provincial commissions be formed for the purpose of supplementing these pensions either by monetary grants or by free training in various trades. The Soldiers' Aid Commission of Ontario, as we have said above, is the first step in this direction. Already it has announced its intention of mobilizing the manufacturers of Ontario and we do not doubt that the process will be facilitated by the manufacturers themselves. Others also will be asked to lend their aid in discharging a great national duty and there is every prospect that in Canada at least the traditional tragedy of the returned soldier will have no place.

Those Machine Guns

Following is an extract from Premier Borden's speech at St. John N. B.

"Regarding machine guns, we realized early in the War the necessity of an abundant supply, and orders have been given from time to time for a very large number. Those ordered during the first twelve months of the war are now being rapidly delivered, and they are more than sufficient to equip two full army corps up to the highest standard of the enemy's forces. During the past summer the provision of machine guns became a matter of vital interest to the Canadian people, as reports through the press emphasized the necessity that our forces should be adequately supplied with all the machine guns that could be utilized. Patriotic individuals offered to contribute large sums for this distinctive purpose. The Government of Ontario made a similar patriotic proposal, and throughout the country various communities generously subscribed to funds for this object. During my absence in Great Britain my colleagues endeavored to make it clear to the people that an ample supply of machine guns had been ordered and that these would be paid out of the Canadian Treasury. The Treasury of Canada ought properly to bear all the cost of equipping and maintaining our forces in the field, and that has been our policy. Nevertheless, the spirit and impulse which prompted our people could not be stayed, and, indeed, any attempt to stay it would have been misunderstood. Up to date the sums thus received by the Government amount to $773,327.95.

"In dealing with other needs which will certainly arise, the Government will not fail to remember that these generous and free-will contributions have been made. And in all your splendid generosity, do not forget the Patriotic Fund and the Canadians Red Cross Society. They have done a great work, but they have a still greater work to do. Appeals which assuredly will not fall on deaf ears must be made in the early future. See that the response is generous and ample. When you are making provision for the Canadian Patriotic Fund, the Canadian Red Cross Society, the Canadian War Contingent Association and other like patriotic organizations, you may be assured that the Government will not fail to make every necessary provision for guns, munitions and equipments."

HYGIENE NOTES.

A Few Suggestions About Your Appetite For Breakfast.

An eminent physician regards inability to eat a good breakfast as the first sign of a breakdown. This must be an exaggerated view, for half the women and one-third of the men in this country have a very poor appetite for the first meal. Nevertheless, one of the surest signs that the body machine is in good order is the capacity to eat a hearty breakfast.

After the long night's fast, and as preparation for the work of the day, this should be a substantial meal, eaten with relish and followed by a feeling of perfect fitness for the day's duties.

How is one to get a breakfast appetite? He should go to bed neither with an empty nor a full stomach. The last meal of the day should be finished at least two and a half hours before bedtime, if it is taken earlier than this, or if it is a light meal, then a glass of milk with a few biscuits or some milk gruel or any other light and digestible food preferred, should be taken at bedtime.

The windows should be open, the bedclothing should be only just sufficiently warm to keep one from becoming chilled, the room should be dark, and thus refreshing sleep should be obtained. If these measures are followed by a bath, ten minutes devoted to Swedish exercises and the sipping of a glass of hot water, breakfast will be eaten in nine cases out of ten with keen relish.

Breakfast must be taken with leisure. Therefore, do not lie in bed till the last moment. Give plenty of time to this important meal and also time to rest after it before the day's business begins. Never read at breakfast. A great many people neglect this sound advice and fail to masticate their food properly in consequence.

Rind Pickles.

If the housekeeper should cut a cantaloupe which is either too green or tasteless, use it for sweet pickle. If too busy the day it is cut, put in paper bag, place in the refrigerator until the next day, then, while getting the dinner, prepare the cantaloupe as told in the recipe.

Watermelon rind is prepared in the same way. Then, one often buys a basket of peaches or any other fruit, and there are a few which are too poor for canning or preserving; or one buys the basket to use at once, not having time to can or preserve them. With a basket of peaches one has the breakfast fruits, jams and desserts for luncheons and dinners without much work; then the poorer ones are made into jam or marmalade for immediate use, and if some should be too green and hard spice them the same as cantaloupe.

Baby's Folding Bath tub.
A folding bathtub for a baby costs $5. It is made of rubber, on a collapsible wooden frame. There is a little faucet in the bottom through which water is drawn off after the bath is over. Along one side is a nickel bar to hold towels. A rubber tubing can be attached to the faucet so that the water can be carried to one of these tubs without difficulty. It can be folded up to pack in a suit case.

CHINESE COURTESY.

A Native View of the Oriental Brand of Politeness.

A Chinese, unlike an American, who would oppose other men's viewpoint till it ends in an altercation, is always courteous and answers a question with "Yes, yes, yes, yes." In case he disagrees with his opponent he will say: "Your honor will take more time to reach a better conclusion. Your honor is quite right, but perhaps you may have a wiser opinion later on. I, worthless little brother, think somewhat differently from you. However, my ignorant conclusion may be wrong and yours right. I beg your excellency to think over the matter."

But oriental politeness has its bad aspect. It takes too much time. If a guest is leaving his host's door he has to turn his head and ask a dozen times that the host should not accompany him any farther. The same is true of tea drinking, and there is a great deal of ceremony between host and guest. So it is with dinners and every social gathering. Even in fighting a duel one person—provided both are gentlemen—will say to the other, "Pray hit me first." The other refuses, and says, "Oh, no; please you hit me first."

Politeness is especially manifested in the form of an invitation. Few Chinese go to an invited dinner on time; instead they delay for an hour or so. Polite in the extreme, although consenting to accept the invitation, they would not go to dinner until pulled and dragged in a gently rough manner by their host. Knowing the habit of his guests, the host always turns out all the members of his family to drag one after another of his invited friends to the dinner. A youngster is often sent out by his mother to hunt their guests like a hound, and, finding them, drag them like mules to his mother's house. Observing such customs, foreigners usually laugh, but they laugh mistakenly.—H. K. Tong in New York Independent.

KINGSLEY STAMMERED.

And George Eliot Was a Bore, According to Mrs. Walford.

Mrs. Walford, the novelist, published some years ago a novel of memories of Victorian London, in which allusion is made to many persons in the world of letters. One of Mrs. Walford's acquaintances in the far off days was Charles Kingsley:

"One day Charles Kingsley came in, and we had an opportunity of seeing if he were like his photograph which had been sent to Mary or not. To own the truth it flattered him, as he is so very red in the face, perhaps from leading an out of door life in all weathers. * * * In ordinary conversation Mr. Kingsley stammers a good deal; but, being conscious of it, he has taken pains to overcome the defect by speaking very slowly—almost too slowly, for when we heard him make a speech on one occasion we felt inclined to goad him on to it became so tiresome."

"Tom Brown Huxley's" Mrs. Walford described as "a man neither tall nor short, neither stout nor thin, with fair hair and blue eyes and a round, pleasant face."

In 1876 Mrs. Walford first met George Eliot at the house of John Blackwood in Edinburgh, and concerning that occasion she says:

"Much did I look forward to that evening, but—shall I confess it?—it ended in disappointment. * * * George Eliot, with her large head and rather horse-like face and portentous manner, was not to me an attractive personage. * * * I had been set down beside the guest of the evening at her request * * * and she had meant to be civil and kind. But how heavily drove the wheels of her chariot! How interminably dragged that interview!"

Some may wonder, says the Westminster Gazette, what George Eliot thought of Mrs. Walford.

Our Medal of Honor.

The medal of honor, which congress awards for unusual bravery, is a five pointed star that bears a medallion of Minerva, the inscription, "United States of America," and a laurel wreath surmounted by the single word, "Valor." The order dates from the time of the war between the states. It is given sparingly and is one of the most highly prized of military decorations.—Youth's Companion.

A Dose of Iron.

Anxious Mother—It was after nine o'clock when Clara came down to breakfast this morning, and the poor girl didn't look well at all. Her system needs toning up. What do you think of iron? Father—Good idea. Anxious Mother—What kind of iron had she better take? Father—She had better take a flatiron.—New York Sun.

The Ruling Passion.

"Pa, with all his money, will never let us take our rightful place in society." "Why, he's most indulgent. He has just bought the family a magnificent automobile." "Yes, but unless we watch him all the time he can't resist the temptation to take on a few paying passengers as he rides around."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Thoughts.

Thoughts are much greater than things. They are vital forces and have endless effects. What you think today determines what you will be in years to come.
