This is Save-the-Forest-Week and, while the weather in this part of the country has not been such as to call to mind the dangers that exist throughout the summer in regard to bush fires, it is perhaps as well that all should endeavor to take to heart some of the lessons that are being broadcasted by all possible means in a nation-wide campaign of education along lines of conservation of our forests.

Residents of Haileybury and the district should need no reminder of the ever present menace of the fire fiend, but we are apt to forget too easily the lessons learned through bitter experience. Already we have more or less dimmed recollections of the disaster which visited the country three and a half years ago, and this is probably for our good. However, we should bear in mind the fact that we have no assurance against a recurrence of these serious times and there are a great many sections of the country where there is greater danger of serious loss of property, and even of life, from the fire menace.

The propaganda which is being disseminated throughout the Dominion this week should be taken to heart by every good citizen, particularly those whose work or pleasure takes them into the woods for a part of the summer. One careless action may easily result in great loss to an entire community. It should be remembered at all times that a large percentage of our population depends, directly or indirectly, on the products of the forest for their daily sustenance, and that any act of ours which tends to destroy any part of our forest areas may result in serious loss to a great many people. Although the first dangerous period of the year has not arrived yet, so far as our district is concerned, the time is ripe for thought and planning as to what measures may be taken when the danger becomes real. Let us all be conservationists this year and each do his part in the effort being made to reduce our fire losses and thus assist in ensuring future prosperity for the Dominion as a whole.

Whatever the politicians may say, there are at least two clauses in the budget brought down in the House of Commons last week that are hailed with delight by the great majority of people. One is the announcement of the reduction in the income tax, and the other is the abolition of the stamp tax on receipts and the return to "penny postage."

The receipt tax was generally considered more of a nuisance than a burden, and was the cause of several letters of a warning nature being sent out to delinquents, although there have been few prosecutions for infringements of the law in this respect. The extra postage, however, has been a real burden, one that was borne by all alike, and it has been a source of disappointment in Canada for several years now to see other countries return to the old system of pre-war days, while we continued to pay the extra cent on every letter or post card. This is to be remedied on July 1st, and is, as stated by the Hon. Mr. Robb, a fitting celebration of Dominion Day and one that will be truly welcomed.

A week or two ago the Kiwanis Club of Cobalt had a discussion on the question of daylight saving. A report of their talk stated that a movement was to be started with the object of getting the three towns, Cobalt, Haileybury and New Liskeard, to come to an agreement whereby a measure of daylight saving might be inaugurated with little or no confusion. This would, no doubt, meet with opposition in some quarters, but would perhaps be highly satisfactory in others. Perhaps the chief objection would be the fact that the railways continue on standard time.

From recent events in Haileybury, it would appear that the proposition might be favorably received here. The town council has taken steps to encourage the amateur gardeners by providing them with extra ground through the application of the Vacant Land Cultivation Act and an added encouragement would be a measure of daylight saving. If we are to have the greater part of the vacant areas in town brought under cultivation, the extra hour of daylight in the summer evenings should be of considerable help.

So far there has been no official action and, no attempt at getting together on the question. In many towns and cities daylight saving comes as regularly as the summer and it only requires a little adjustment in spring and fall and causes only slight confusion. It allows more time in the evenings for athletics and permits the inside workers a much better opportunity of spending a portion of each day in the open air.

It would appear that if the three towns could get together on the question that very little confusion should result, and if there is to be any such arrangements, it should be made with as little delay as possible.

LEST WE FORGET

In viewing the wonders of a resurrected Haileybury, I wandered into the new County Buildings, built on the site where stood the first house in town and as I stood on the steps of the south entrance I thought of the many times I had enjoyed the hospitality of that first house when it stood alone on the hillside and the light from its windows at night was a guiding star to many a weary traveller when the lake was the only road the hardy northern men had to travel. I refer to the one-time home of the late C. C. Farr, the founder of Haileybury. He it was who brought to the attention of the Government the importance of this part of the Province, and owing to his vision, far-sightedness, persistence and energy, the Government built the T. & N. O. Railway, now the best-paying Government-owned road in the Dominion. He it was who gave the beautiful name the town bears, called for his alma mater in England from which he graduated at a very early age. He published the first paper in the North Country. He brought some of the very best citizens Haileybury can boast of. His home always stood for hospitality and culture. His was the first musical instrument brought into the then wilds. In his home were held the first church services. He was the first Magistrate, post-master, store-keeper, mill-owner, fur trader, and farmer.

These are only some of the things accomplished by a youth who came from England in '73 with little more than his health, intelligence and hands and gave the best that was in him to build up and make Haileybury prosper. And how well he succeeded, none should know better than you who make her your home. As an old-timer who personally knows these things, I think it would be a fitting tribute to his memory that there should be a tablet in the County Buildings. Surely Haileybury will not be found wanting in gratitude to her founder.

AN OLD-TIMER

"THE BROADCASTER" HIGH SCHOOL PAPER MADE BOW LAST WEEK

The first issue of "The Broadcaster," the new paper published by the students of the Haileybury High School made its bow to the public last week. It consists of an eight-page sheet written and directed entirely by the students and contains a great deal of interesting material from the point of view of the school and the general public as well. Miss Norma Reany is the editor, Archie Williamson is advertising manager and Jim Poppleton is the business manager. Associate editors are Miss Grace Stephen and Miss Helene Angus.

The first issue contains a great deal of interesting reading. Several columns are devoted to sport, there is some poetry and matters pertaining to each form are treated humorously by the writers. There is some editorial matter and considerable news of the school that does not become generally known through any other source. Taken altogether, the students are to be congratulated on the first issue of "The Broadcaster." Copies are now on sale at the news stands. It is the intention to publish the paper each month during the school term.

Africa's Wild Savages Stage Revels for Prince of Wales

Thousands of bronze-skinned beauties danced! Thousands of wild black warriors pranced! From spearheads the sun threw a million glints. As Africa's hordes came out to greet the Prince!

Thus a rhymster has given a flash from the great British Admiralty film of the Prince of Wales' 25,000-mile African and South American tour.

The charges of the natives in mimic warfare are said to have struck terror to the hearts of those who witnessed them. A machine gun might have mowed them down in modern warfare, but under British rule the Zulu and all other African tribes only and genuine entertainment, is the universal description applied to the picture. All Haileybury is expected to see "The Prince's Film" which will make its appearance here at the Broadway Theatre on April 28th, 29th 30th and May 1st.
