Winter Coats are Elaborately Fur Trimmed.

Winter coats for dress wear tend to be more elaborate both in cut and material than they have been for many a season.

Many of the smarter coats are cut on princess lines, as is the one in the illustration. It is a soft Kasmir-finished wool fabric and its deep cuffs, its collar, and the flare at the side are of contrasting karakul.

Special Service Held On Armistice Day

A good crowd attended the Salvation Army service last Sunday evening, when Capt. C. E. Clarke officer in charge, addressed members of the local branch of the Canadian Legion, who attended the service in celebration of Armistice Day.

Capt. Clarke preached a very impressive sermon from the text "Heroes Who Died in the Faith" found in Hebrews, the 11th chapter and part of the 13th verse. He is a fluent speaker and a sincere worker in the cause of the Army and all who attended were greatly impressed with the service.

Canadians Turn to Florida For Carefree Winter Season

Semi-tropical Florida is again drawing large numbers of Canadians for the winter season. It is becoming more popular every year—principally because it is so near, its climate is so inviting, and it offers such an array of interesting pastimes peculiar to that part of the country.

Where else but Florida can one enjoy better such an exciting novelty as Tarpon fishing....or aquaplaning....or speed-boating....or polo. Where else can one motor for miles through avenues shaded by graceful palms — by great citrus groves of ripening oranges and lemons—or along the shore of the Atlantic. There's golf, too—all winter long.

Arrange now to spend your winter months in Florida — any Canadian National Railways Agent will gladly supply you with information about rates, routes and its resorts. 30-t.f.

DISINFECTION

So many enquiries have been made concerning the disinfection of a room or house after a case of communicable disease has occurred, that the matter is chosen for the subject of this article.

The objective of disinfection is to destroy the germs which cause disease. Disease germs grow only inside the human or animal body. They leave the body of the sick in the discharges and secretions of the body. Once outside of the body, the germs die off — most of them very quickly. Drying and sunlight are nature's methods of destroying these enemies. Dark, damp corners delay nature's action.

Concurrent disinfection is the term used to mean the disinfection that is carried on during a disease. It aims, by prompt disinfection of the body discharges and secretions, to destroy the disease germs they contain before there is any chance of their coming in contact with some well person. The eating utensils are disinfected to destroy the germs in the saliva that is left on cups, spoons, etc., by the diseased person. Concurrent disinfection is most important and must be thoroughly carried out until the patient has recovered.

Terminal disinfection is the term used to mean the disinfection after recovery of the patient. If concurrent disinfection has been properly observed, there is no need of terminal disinfection, because all the secretions will have been looked after. This is the point which needs to be clearly understood; proper care during the disease prevents its spread. To try and kill off a few germs that may have survived in a room, after the recovery of a patient, is a matter of practically no importance compared with the need for destruction of the millions of germs given off during the course of the disease.

Terminal disinfection has been discontinued in many cities, and all attention given to concurrent disinfection.

Questions concerning Health, addressed to the Canadian Medical Association, 184 College Street, Toronto, will be answered. Questions as to diagnosis and treatment will not be answered.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

Remembered Hours

Remembered hours are scenes you bring:
Life's sun-swept heights alone,
Where rarest charms their radiance fling
As old delights are known?

Is it of glad, triumphant things
You tell, remembered hours?
Always the upward sweep of wings,
The pageants and the powers?

Not so! Remembered hours, you bear
Small, fleeting joys of old;
Gay frocks a baby used to wear,
A hill, dawn-drenched in gold.

Unbidden, sweet they come again
They breathe, they stir, they live
These fragments fresh as April rain
Remembered hours give!

We are requested by the local branch of the Children's Aid Society to extend their thanks to all who assisted in making the Hallowe'en dance, held in aid of the Shelter, the great success it was.

Supplying good foods — our responsibility

The Prince as a "Lather Boy"

This unusual-looking person above is none other than H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, in the costume of a "lather boy", which he wore aboard the "Malda" when he assisted in initiating his brother, the Duke of Gloucester, in the strange "Crossing the Line" ceremony. It is the time-honored custom of all ships that cross the equatorial line to have a member of the crew or passenger list dressed up in Neptune's robes and deal out punishment to the most distinguished travellers on board ship. It will be remembered that the Prince had to undergo the unique operation of being shaved with a huge wooden razor, which was followed by a "ducking," when he visited South Africa a few years ago.
