

Interesting Report of Farm at Kapuskasing

Interesting to all farmers in the North Country is the report of Superintendent Smith Ballantyne, of the Experimental Farm at Kapuskasing for the year 1928 which has just been issued by the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa. This report covers all phases of agriculture in the north and contains much valuable information.

Dealing first with the season, it is shown that the total precipitation for the year was 32.46 in., which was 7.66 in. above the average for eleven years. The spring was backward, no seeding being possible before May 15th, but no damage was suffered from summer frosts, although the fall ploughing was closed down by frost on November 1st, which was unusually early.

Dairy cattle, beef cattle, sheep, swine and horses were all experimented with during the year and the records of the herds are set out. The performance of the different breeds is contrasted, and the different kinds of feed grown and used on the farm are all recorded in the most comprehensive manner and in a way which should prove of great benefit to those who are engaged in farming throughout the North.

In the section of the report dealing with the production of cereals it is interesting to note that there were five varieties of spring wheat grown and ripened during the season. The seed was sown on May 18th and three varieties ripened on September 5th and 6th, while the other two did not mature until September 20th and 22nd. The yield per acre ran from 24 bushels and 20 pounds to 31 bushels and 20 pounds. Oats and barley, field peas and various forage crops were grown with success and experiments with corn for silage were the most promising in the history of the farm.

Hay and clover, roots, vegetables and potatoes, small fruits and flowers were all grown with success, according to the report. The names of the best suited varieties of all these are given, with the record of production, and there is also a chapter on trees and shrubs suitable for the North.

To the outsider it appears as though any person engaged in agriculture would be well advised to secure from the department a copy of the report for his future guidance and that he would reap great benefit from a perusal of its pages.

CHRISTMAS BASKETS GIVEN TWENTY-NINE FAMILIES BY I. O. D. E.

Twenty-nine needy families were supplied with Christmas baskets this year, chiefly through the work of the local Chapter of the I.O.D.E. The funds were supplied by that organization and others towards the eve of the holiday and, while there had been little apparent need, it was found that there would have been considerable distress had they not taken action.

The baskets were prepared on the day before Christmas and, thanks to Mr. O. J. Thorpe, who gave his team for delivering, were all sent to the homes that night. In every case where a home was visited, the gratitude of the recipients was so sincere that all who took part in the providing of the Christmas cheer felt amply repaid for their labor.

WILL NOT APPEAL FROM JUDGMENT GIVEN IN MAYORALTY DISPUTE

Following the judgment which unseated Mayor Charbonneau on Monday, Jos. A. Legris, who instituted the action and who claimed the mayoralty by acclamation, stated that he would not enter an appeal against the ruling of His Honor Judge Hartman, which was to the effect that Mr. Legris could not legally claim the seat on the grounds set out in his notice of motion. It would not be in the best interests of the town, he said, as if an appeal was entered it would hold up election proceedings for some weeks and the municipality would suffer as a result. Mr. Legris felt that the council of 1929, which is still in office pending the election of a new one, would not care to carry on too far into the new year without the endorsement of the electors, and the town's business might suffer.

(Continued from page 1) meeting that the amount actually owing is $3,640. It was also stated that Justice Raney has issued a mandamus to compel the council to pay over the money. There was considerable discussion over the matter at the nomination meeting, both candidates for the reeveship taking part.

A. P. Tyrwhitt, the township clerk, who sustained a fractured ankle in a fall recently, attended the meeting on crutches. He told the assembled ratepayers that, while the official statement showed an overdraft of $4,203.26, the actual deficit was only about $1,600, the greater part of this being due to unexpected expenditures, chiefly under the weed by-law and work on Housing Commission properties.

ANAEMIA

A person is anaemic when the blood is deficient in quantity or quality. When a considerable amount of blood has been lost through bleeding, then there is anaemia due to a deficiency in quantity, and this condition gradually corrects itself as the body mechanism makes good the loss. The anaemia due to poor quality generally means that there are not enough red cells in the blood or that the important substance called haemoglobin found in the red cells is deficient in quantity. The chief function of the red cells is to carry oxygen by means of its haemoglobin to all the tissues of the body. It can be readily understood that any interference with this vital function due to a lack of red cells or of haemoglobin will affect every tissue of the body. This may be expressed in another way by saying that if the tissues of the body are to be kept in a healthy condition it is necessary that the quality of the blood supplying the tissues of the body is maintained.

The quality of the blood is lowered as the result of such general diseases as tuberculosis and cancer. Chronic abnormal conditions of the stomach and other parts of the digestive tract may affect the blood. Without going into the list of causes it will be evident that the proper treatment of such anaemias is the removal or treatment of the cause of the disturbance.

Pernicious anaemia is one special form of anaemia. It is a disease that has recently been conquered. The use of liver or liver extracts according to the directions of a physician, controls this form of anaemia.
