Two-Toned Jacket Ensembles Are Chic

The feminine figure seems to be with us to stay, and to prove this fact even the newest and smartest jacket ensembles feature the slim and flattering lines of the new silhouette.

This type of costume is one that should be included in the wardrobe of every fashion-conscious woman. It serves many purposes and one can wear it to almost any daytime activity with the sure feel of being well dressed.

Today's sketch shows one of the most interesting ensembles of the season. Gray wool crepe fashions the darling jacket with soft jabot and interesting detail. The skirt of wool crepe in a soft shade of rust features rows of skilful seamings in an upward movement following the lines of the jacket.

Lounging Pajamas Grace the Home

Prints and pleats, boleros and peplums, even capes and scarf collars—all the clever details of the current mode—influence the new lounging pajamas. Realizing that it would be a pity to relegate these charming costumes to the seclusion of the boudoir, the smartest women have brought them out to grace the drawing room at the tea hour and even the dining room during informal dinners. And all manner of fabrics are used—cotton and silks, plain and monotone fabrics.

A printed black and pink (by the way one of the favored color combinations of the season) flat crepe develops the lounging pajamas illustrated today. The short bolero jacket has a three-quarter split sleeve and the same treatment is used on the pajamas, which are split to the knee, revealing pleated pink georgette insets. The blouse is entirely pleated, as are the sleeves, which are exposed from the elbows.

Names

To travelers, perhaps, names mean
A ship, a railroad train,
And then a pleasant change of scene
To Yucatan or Spain.

But ah! how different to me
Who needs must stay at home!
What magic rings in Yangtze,
What music sounds in Rome!

My view, just down the village street,
Is much the same always,
Still, I can follow hasting feet
That tread the bund's far ways.

Though I have never crossed the sea
For even a little while,
I know the spell of Tripoli,
The wonder of the Nile.

Names, names! What joy for me
They hold,
Though I shall never see
Sahara's wastes of tawny gold,
The Alps' white majesty!

Peace

The day, sometimes, is torn by
angry gales
That wage fierce battles high
above the earth,
And lift dark banners till the
sunlight fails,

While countless demons shriek
their cruel mirth;
But just at twilight some en-
chanter wields
His staff invisible, and by his power

Unveils once more the blue of
heaven's fields,
Whereon the pale moon drifts,
The white stars flower.

So softly, sometimes, on the rest-
less heart,
There steals a breath of calm,
a sense of rest;

This is the gift God only can impart,
With it He blesses every troubled breast.

From every care its touch grants
sure release,
It is the gift supreme, the gift
of peace.

One of the suspects killed
The Red-Headed Man!

Sunshine for Babies

The baby should spend a large part of his life out of doors in the fresh air and sunshine. The baby needs fresh air and sunshine in order to build up a strong and resistant body.

Not only are sunshine baths pleasant, but they bring to the baby something he needs. One definite good resulting from the sunshine is that the action of its rays upon the body of the baby prevents rickets.

Sun baths should be taken regularly each day, and, as the weather grows warmer, these should be taken out of doors rather than in front of the open window.

There is a right way to take sun baths, and this way must be followed or harm will result. On the first day, the hands and feet are exposed for five minutes. Next day, the time is ten minutes and so five minutes a day are added until the bath lasts for an hour.

As the time is increased, so should there be an extension of the area of the body which is exposed to the sun. On the second day, expose the legs below the knees, then the whole leg; after that, the abdomen, and, lastly, the chest, front and back. On the day each area is first exposed, the time of exposure is five minutes, and this period is increased by five minutes each day for each part until the whole body is given an hour's sun bath daily.

The baby should not have his sun bath just before or after a meal. In the really hot weather, his sun bath should be before 11 or after 3, so that he may not be exposed to the mid-day sun.

In addition to the good that comes directly in the sun's rays, there is no doubt that the exposure of the body to the air—the air bath—is of benefit to the child.

Taking the sun bath out of doors or in front of the open window gives the baby the benefits of both the sun and the air at the same time.

The ancients worshipped the sun as a god. We should appreciate and use the sunshine as a giver of health.
