Monday evening's train for Toronto and points south was well crowded leaving Haileybury, as practically all students who had been home for the holidays left that night for their respective universities, colleges, etc.

He has been named Joseph James Noel in honor of the day. On Christmas Day in 1920, Mr. and Mrs. McMahon became the parents of a son, and the second event on the same day has aroused considerable interest among their friends and neighbors, who are extending congratulations.

Employment Service Covers Great Field

Cobalt Official Outlines the Institution in Address to Kiwanians

The Employment Service of Canada was the subject of an interesting address given recently by Mr. T. E. Douse, the officer in charge of the Cobalt office, before a meeting of the Kiwanis Club in the silver town. Mr. Douse not only told the meeting some of the inside workings of his own office, but sketched the work of the whole institution and gave facts and figures which showed that the service, inaugurated in 1917, has taken a large part in the industrial life of the nation.

The service originally started, Mr. Douse said, to secure men for the munition factories in the days of the war, but the government found it so useful that they decided to continue it, one of the chief reasons being the desire to protect the working classes from exploitation by the private employment agencies, in the conduct of which there were many abuses, although no doubt some were conducted honorably. The service is conducted absolutely free, so far as the working class is concerned, and the cost of maintenance is borne jointly by the dominion and provincial governments.

The province of Ontario has 31 employment bureaus, distributed throughout all sections; the other provinces maintain offices as follows: Nova Scotia 4, New Brunswick 3, Quebec 8, Manitoba 3, Saskatchewan 10, Alberta 5, and British Columbia 11.

"While the Cobalt office was established largely to deal with mining work", Mr. Douse said, "mining is no longer our long suit, nor has it been for some years. The staple industry is logging, and it is the failure of the logging industry this year that has caused so much unemployment. The decline in the mining industry is largely responsible for the number of young men around Cobalt who do nothing. They would in the old days have been absorbed into the mines, beginning as helpers and muckers, but it is a melancholy fact that they cannot do logging work and show no inclination to try, but just hang around for work on the roads. In the early spring of last year some 90 bushmen had to be sent for from North Bay."

The speaker told of the order for 10,000 men to work on the Trans-Canada highway, which he said was probably the largest order ever placed with an employment service. At the time he spoke, nearly the total number had been sent to the various points at which the work was being carried on, "without an accident more serious than the falling of a workman out of a top berth on the train and spraining his ankle."

Mr. Douse concluded his talk with the statement that the authorities of the United States, who had investigated the Canadian system, were amazed at its thoroughness and efficiency and were remodelling their employment service along the same lines.

Tried to Jump Crack and Got Cold Dip in the Lake

Eugene Legare of Guigues, got a cold dip in the lake early this week when he tried to jump across a crack in the ice near his home town. He was on his way across to Haileybury and the accident happened when he was not far from shore at his home town, where the water was not very deep. He went in up to his armpits, but with the assistance of a companion was able to scramble out on to the solid ice and suffered nothing worse than discomfort. He made the trip across later.

It is stated that there is about five inches of ice over the wide section of the lake here. Local men have walked to Burnt Island without difficulty, although a few cracks are visible from this side.

A granite quarry at Peninsula Harbor, on the north shore of Lake Superior, is being developed and it is believed that the red and black granite available in enormous tonnage will eventually take the place of that imported from European countries.

Building Shed and Office for Operations on New Airport

The first visible signs of work on the new airport were evident on Tuesday morning, when two men commenced building a shed and office for the operations which will be carried on through the winter. This building is located at the north side of the filtration plant, near the lake.

Actual work on the harbor improvements has been held up on account of the lack of snow for roads to get out timber and stone for the foundation work on the breakwater. The ice is scarcely thick enough on the bay yet to work on and this has also been partly responsible for the delay.

Former Minister of Health Died Yesterday at Toronto

Hon. Dr. Forbes Godfrey, former Minister of Health in the Provincial Cabinet, died yesterday evening in Toronto, according to a news broadcast over the radio last night. He had been ill for some weeks, but it was believed that he was recovering.

Dr. Godfrey had for many years taken a prominent part in the public life of the province as a strong supporter of the Conservative party. A few years ago he visited Haileybury in the course of an election campaign.
