Weather Survey Shows February Milder This Year

Average Temperature Higher By Three Degrees But Less Sunshine

Figures sent out from the meteorological station at the Demonstration Farm at New Liskeard this week show an interesting comparison between the month of February recently passed and the same month in 1930. This year the month was milder, with an average temperature of 11.8 degrees, as against an average last year of 8.7. The lowest temperature for the month was 31 below zero, which according to the record occurred on the 7th and 10th. The lowest in February, 1930, was 48 below on the 16th.

The highest temperature of the month this year was 35 degrees, on the 25th while last year's high point for the month was 45 degrees, on the 23rd. However, there was only 14 days this year on which a temperature of zero or lower was registered, while last year there were 17 days.

Evidently it was not the brightness of the sunshine that made the month milder this year, as there was only a total of 68.8 hours registered while last year the total reached 96.8 hours. This year there were 15 days on which the sun shone brightly, compared with a total of 23 days in last year.

The prevailing wind for the month is given as northwest while in 1930 it blew from the south. A snowfall of eight inches was registered, which fell on eight separate days.

Carrie Gray Society Holds Annual Bazaar and Tea

One of the season's outstanding events took place on Saturday afternoon, March 7th, in the basement of the United Church, when the Carrie Gray Society entertained at their annual Bazaar and Tea.

Beautifully attractive were the different tables in their St. Patrick attire.

Much credit is due Miss Black for the general decorating of the room. Especially pleasing was the candy booth with its streamers of green and gold and shamrock candy boxes and a St. Patrick Hat adorning the centre. This booth was capably handled by Misses Campbell, Bennett and Playfair.

An excellent display of handwork and embroidery was in charge of Miss Mary Britton.

One striking and unusual offering was that of work made in the Mission Schools at Hwaiking China, portraying Chinese Art and handiwork. Miss Louie McArthur, Mrs. W. Bradley and Mrs. Clow having charge of this table.

Miss Tina Lang efficiently handled the Produce Table.

The tea tables were prettily adorned with daffodils and tall yellow tapers, being in charge of Mrs. Jack Dunn, Mrs. Jas. Crosscombe, Mrs. G. Sutherland and Miss Shannon. During the first hour Mrs. Bradley Sr., presided at the tea urn, later being relieved by Mrs. Blake Allan.

A varied programme of entertainment and music was given during the afternoon, and the whole event was most enjoyable and a pronounced success.

The Letter Box

Dear Sir:

The beauty campaign for the whole of Canada to which your paper gave considerable prominence in its last issue, is one to be commended and I hope will be acted upon by the citizens of our own town.

In fact I believe that the great majority of the people of this community will respond and show the same desire to beautify the town that was in evidence the year of the disastrous fire. But Sir, if our people do respond to this appeal, surely they have a right to expect that there should be something done by those responsible for the condition of the grounds at the Railway Station, which instead of being a beauty spot, is more like an eye-sore and not at all in keeping with our really fine depot. I believe that the chairman of the T. & N. O. Commission is really interested in all the stations along this line and would if approached by the proper authorities see that the improvements necessary to keep in line with the development of the town were put into effect and that the ground surrounding the station which at present is like a wilderness, would blossom like a rose and instead of being an eyesore would really become a place of beauty and a joy forever.

Yours truly, Sleeping Beauty

"The Case Against Casey" Amuses Large Audiences

Large audiences on Monday and Tuesday nights, in the Roman Catholic Parish Hall, were greatly amused by the Irish comedy, "The Case Against Casey," presented by local talent, under the direction of Rev. Father Roulier and J. P. Bruce. On Monday evening the audience consisted of children, while on Tuesday the entertainment was open to all.

In addition to the comedy, there was a fine musical program, including solos, choruses, a dance and drill, and music by McCurdy's Orchestra. The whole entertainment was greatly enjoyed and the performance of the pupils of the Separate School in the dance and drill is very highly spoken of.
