We Beat Them To It

With all the talk of economy in governments, it is some satisfaction to reflect that the town council of Haileybury was among the first to not only consider, but to put into actual practice a real measure that was destined to work out along the same lines as those now planned by both federal and provincial governments.

Now we can see the federal government taking much the same action, only on a larger scale, the provincial government taking stock of its civil service and planning reorganization that is intended to attain a saving and the inauguration of a general feeling throughout the country that this is at least partly the solution of the present depression.

We can reflect that we really set an example that is being followed by those in high places, whether intentionally or not, and that if the outcome be what it is hoped it will be, our municipal government had the right "dope" at the beginning. In any event we can say with truth that we "beat them to it."

Use Only Best Seed

Whether Temiskaming farmers will be large exhibitors at the big World's Grain Show next year will no doubt depend to a large extent on the success met with during the present season. In any event, the following advice from a high authority should be timely:

Regarding the preparation of exhibits for the World's Grain Exhibition to be held at Regina in 1932, L. H. Newman, Dominion Cerealist, advises sowing the best seed obtainable on a piece of specially prepared ground, letting the crop fully mature, cutting and shocking it as usual. The best stooks should be covered, protected from the weather, and the best heads threshed by means of a flail. The grain then should be run through a sieve and later hand-picked to get the most uniform seeds, because at a Fair of this kind the competition will be very keen and the prizes are worth working for.

No Daylight Saving Here

Apparently there is little or no hope that there will be any general measure of daylight saving adopted in the North Country for a time at least. In the winter the matter was brought before the Northern Ontario Associated Boards of Trade and was referred back by that body to the individual Boards, to be handled as they saw fit. Since then there has been nothing heard of the proposal and it may be concluded that there is no particular demand for such a measure.

It is a question on which there is always considerable difference of opinion. In almost every community there are some who would welcome an extra hour of daylight during the summer months, while on the other hand there are many who believe that the resulting confusion over the change in time would prove too great an obstacle. Personally, we have always held that the benefits would far outweigh the disadvantages, that the extra hour of daylight would prove a boon to many people and that there need be no great difficulty experienced in making the change. We are still of the same mind, although our hopes of seeing such an arrangement put into force in our own particular district are growing dimmer each year. It appears that the majority are against us and that we must be contented with the old system for a time at least.

Good Progress Being Made On Separate School Addition

A good start has been made on the new addition to the Separate School on Rorke Avenue and already the excavation is almost completed. If the weather is fine the walls will be commenced either the end of this week or the beginning of next. J. P. Vachon, who has the contract for the building (says that in all probability it will be completed for the opening of the school term in September.

Made First Spring Trip Haileybury to Timmins

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Storms, accompanied by "Dutch" Villeneuve and Mr. Storms' brother, were the first motorists to drive from Haileybury to Timmins this year, when they made the trip to the gold camp on Sunday last. From Ramore north they were the first to drive over the highway by car since last fall and found the going not too bad, although they ran into snow in some places.

They report that for some distance on the northern end of the route they followed sleigh tracks on the road, as there was a fall of some inches in the northern part of the area last week. It was said to have reached a depth of 10 inches in the town of Cochrane on Friday night.

The trip up was made in nine hours, and the party returned on Tuesday.

HER MAJESTY ATTENDS SOCIETY WEDDING

Queen Mary was caught by the camera in this happy, smiling pose as she was leaving St. Margaret's Church, Westminster, London, after the wedding of Miss Ann Keppel, daughter of Sir Derek Keppel, Master of the Royal Household, to Philip Broadstead. The bride's father can be seen to the right of the picture.

Thumb Sketches By Cy

Lipton

A PROMINENT advertising man told me once that the national advt. of a certain breakfast food played up the cartoon of a fictitious character to such an extent that the food itself was crowded into the background. "I could mention this character," he said, "to a score of people, picked at random, and very few of them would think of the food to which it was designed to direct attention." On the other hand, instances are many where the trade name of an article has come to be used as a common noun representing all articles of its particular class. Such are the wonderful results of, and the wonderful power of newspaper advertising. Sometimes, an article, by sheer merit, has come to be the standard and again its name has come to be used to represent all articles of its class.

On occasion the use of words is often made the source of many a wholesome story. "The association of ideas," as the venerable Dr. McCabe, of the Ottawa Normal School, used to say, "may, however, lead you into all kinds of trouble." Many of the boys and girls of yesteryear will recall this one. It's a "chestnut with whiskers on as long as your arm," but as antiques are the vogue just now, here it is:

"Good mornin', Mrs. Pike."
"Good mornin', Mrs. Pokey."
"I'm just dyin' t' get an excitin' book t' read. Readin' is so elevatin' y'know."

"Indeed it is, Mrs. Pokey. I read a lot m'self, an' I al'as stick to the best. You must do that, Mrs. Pokey, if y' want to be elevated."
"Yes, indeed, y' must, Mrs. Pike."

"Who's yer favorit' author, Mrs. Pokey?"

"Oh, Scott, of course, Mrs. Pike. He's so elevatin', Mrs. Pike."

"That's what I think m'self, Mrs. Pokey. I'm just on m' way to the book store now to buy Scott's Emulsion. You know it's advertised so much that I'm sure it'll be elevatin'. And it's sure to be excitin'."

Still the language continues to be enriched with expressive phrases. Who knows? The slang of today may be the orthodox of tomorrow. The man who wins the first prize for wheat at the World's Grain Exhibition and Conference at Regina in 1932 will be known as "The Wheat King of the World," regardless of what the literati say, and so we continue to use such expressions as "a horse for work," "a good scout," "a modern Milton," "a marathoner to talk," "a snake in the grass," "big boy," "a bull in a china store," and so on, and so on.

In like manner the term "Lipton," in the field of sport, has come, by sheer merit, to stand for the aggregate characteristics of good British sportsmanship. "You're a true Lipton," said a boy's dad the other day when his son begrimed and bedraggled, came into the dressing room after one of the most strenuous games of his rather spectacular career. All the "kid" said to prompt this highest of commendation was, "Well, dad, we did the best we could and lost. The best team won."
