

Salvation Army Gets Big Discarded Show Building

Hard to Dispose of Structure After Big Exhibition in Buenos Aires

Considerable difficulty was experienced by the Canadian exhibition Commissioner, J. Oscar Turcotte, in finally disposing of the big structure used for this country's exhibits at the industrial fair in Buenos Aires. The building cost $125,000 and it was decided to dispose of it there rather than spend the extra amount necessary to have it dismantled and shipped home, but apparently took some time before it could be even given away. The story is told in the following clipping from the Buenos Aires Herald, which was sent by Mr. J. B. Stitt to his mother here and kindly handed over by her to The Haileyburian:

"It will no doubt be recalled that some weeks ago The Herald reported the intention of the Canadian Government to give away their $125,000 gold pavilion at the Trade Fair, rather than re-ship it to Europe or Canada.

The Herald is now able to announce the Dominion Government has presented the building to the Salvation Army.

The Canadian Pavilion today stands just as it did on the closing day of the fair, except of course that the exhibits have been packed up and sent away. While demolition was going on in all other sections of the grounds in preparation for handing over to the Rural Society at the end of next month, this handsome structure was left untouched while its fate was decided.

The Canadian Pavilion erected at the great cost of $125,000 (Canadian dollars) with fine Dominion timbers and other materials, became a gift which nobody would accept at the closing of the Fair.

When it was brought into the country it was assessed at $48,000 on the materials involved in construction, which sum would have had to be paid to the Customs Authorities had the building been sold here, regardless of the price realized.

On the other hand to take it out of the country again involved further expenses of more than $5,000 for dismantling and shipping, and so it was decided by the Canadian Government that it would be better to make it a gift to some local organization.

The Rural Society were offered the building as being in their grounds it seemed a most acceptable proposition. However, after due consideration, it was decided by the Society that it was unsuitable for their requirements during cattle shows, and so the offer was declined.

The Municipality were then approached, and although Dr. José Guerrico personally inspected the building it was later refused. The British Railways of Argentina were then made the offer, and at the same time the Municipal Intendente suggested that the Argentine Army might be interested to take it over.

The Railways all found they could not reasonably use the building for their work, but the Army committee who inspected the building were impressed and returned several times to make further surveys of the building.

Meanwhile the Salvation Army was remembered as being the philanthropic organization which might have the best use for such a building, and so the offer was made to them. At once the Salvation Army council here met, and it was decided to accept the gift, but in the meantime the difficulty arose of the Argentine army having the first refusal.

It was however definitely decided on Wednesday evening that the building should be presented to the Salvation Army who will receive at the same time nearly 50,000 square feet of linoleum, and the electric fittings of the pavilion including 90 pendants valued at $1,000.

CULT MURDER LAID TO JEALOUSY

Mrs. Francis Thompson (left) who is being held in Pennsylvania on a charge of killing Miss M. Dille, 76 (right), wealthy spinster. Authorities ascribed the murder to Mrs. Thompson's belief that the aged woman had exercised an "influence" over her husband, Carl Thompson, and because she feared a "love cult" which, it is alleged, the slain woman wished to establish with Thompson's aid.

-and add this to your profits

NO ONE can deny a man the right to spend his dollar where he chooses. It is his privilege to make his dollar produce the utmost in value. The decision as to where that value is to be found is, whether right or wrong, his to make. A tip on how to make a dollar go farther is permissible, however, and we suggest that you think about this:

The lowest price does not always mean the best buy; in fact in many cases it does not. Comparative quality and many other things enter into the transaction. But let us take two identical articles—one here—at home—the other out of town. Let us suppose the out of town price is lower delivered to your door, by 5c or 75c, than the purchase you can make at home. But it is not the most economical buy. That money is gone for good; it will never return to you, whereas if spent at home—well, here's an illustration:

A Shoeman owes a Baker $2.00 and gives him $1.00, discharging fifty per cent. of his debt. The baker owes a farmer $2.00 for potatoes, so he pays the farmer half his debt with the dollar. The farmer purchases a pair of $2.00 shoes, paying $1.00 down. The shoeman uses the dollar to cancel his debt to the baker, the baker to the farmer, and the farmer pays for his shoes. The shoeman has paid his debt, made a sale and still has his original capital. So have the baker and farmer. That's community business. Three persons have made a profit on $1.00 and it's still in the community to make more. The dollar that goes farthest is the one that stays at home.
