Oiling of Highway Brings Disaster to Fine Raiment

During the past week the highway between the three towns has been oiled to keep down the dust and this, we are informed, has brought disaster to some fine raiment worn by those travelling in motor cars. While the oil is fresh it is picked up freely by the tires of the cars and at times there have been some nice new dresses spattered before their owners realized the danger. However, it only takes a few days for the roadway to absorb the oil and the elimination of the dust is a great improvement. The scheme was first put into operation last year about this time.
