NEW ZEALAND

She is washing the family clothes in a hot spring. Her handsome tattooed husband pulls his canoe up on the beach. To prepare dinner she pours water on the stones of a little oven—and great clouds of steam rise up to cook the food. It is not magic—but these clever Maori have chosen to live where geysers spit into the air, where pools seethe, where great underground grumbings are heard, and where the waters are health-giving.

You will go inland from Auckland or Wellington to this amazing district. Queer little homes, with carvings on the side, sit on poles. Other homes, built on the ground and rudely thatched on roof and sides.

The Maori were a race of warriors, hunters and seamen. A thousand years ago these Polynesians came in big canoes from South Pacific Isles. Their canoes came with them and have been passed down from father to son. What memories they have! How they relate their stories! Their ancient tour around the world is as expensive as one taking your travel aspirin from the Indian Pacific.

COBALT SCHOOL BOARD TURNS DOWN PROPOSAL FOR DAYLIGHT SAVING

By a vote of three to two (Trustee Frank David was absent in Matachewan), Cobalt public school board at its April meeting decided against daylight saving, and the secretary was instructed to notify the town council and the two other school boards to that effect.

It was made clear there was no intention of dictating to the council in the matter, but that those comprising the majority believed their viewpoint was in the best interests of the children at school.

Trustees Duncan and Austin, who favored the summer time, considered May 1st (the date proposed by council) too early to start the scheme, and believed June 1 early enough.

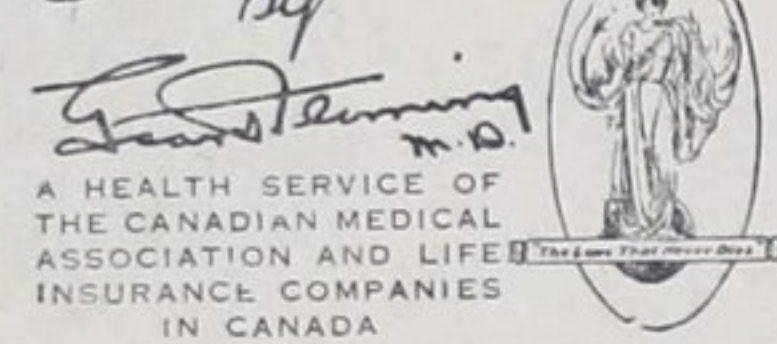

The matter was raised by Trustee McAllister, who moved the board go on record as disapproving of daylight saving, and he had the support of Trustees Priestley and the chairman, Trustee Lendrum. An amendment was moved by Trustees Duncan and Austin but lost on division.

Of Interest to Prospectors and Miners

Because of the great interest that is being taken in gold mining in the Cariboo district, British Columbia, prospectors and miners will be pleased to learn that the Geological Survey, Department of Mines, Ottawa, has issued a reprint of the geological map (No. 2046) of the Barkerville area.

The distribution of the rock formations is shown in colors and the map is to a scale of one mile to the inch. Copies may be had by application to the Director, Geological Survey, Department of Mines, Ottawa.

HEALTH

MUTUAL AID

Health, particularly mental health, is dependent upon reasonable security against uncontrollable events of life, such as sickness and death. Lack of economic security leads to worry, which in turn, means at least unhappiness and which is, in many cases, the basis of serious physical and mental disabilities. The campaign of the life insurance companies of Canada and the United States for "Financial Independence Through Life Insurance" has, therefore, a health as well as financial significance.

The idea of mutual aid goes back many centuries, and we find numerous records in history of ways in which people have united to help each other in time of need. It was realized that there was greater strength and security in the group than in the individual.

Our whole modern civilization offers many examples of this principle of mutual aid. We have any number of organizations which include, among their objectives, the assistance of members or other individuals who are in need. This spirit of service may be said to be the driving force in all worth while organizations.

At the present time, the need for mutual aid is more evident than ever. In the field of public health, we see that concerted action has secured a large measure of health protection for those living in areas which have joined together for that purpose. In such areas, taxpayers agree to contribute through their taxes, to the maintenance of an adequate health department, and so, individually and collectively, they secure health service through mutual aid.

The maintenance of health departments is a form of insurance. Insurance is a form of mutual aid. A group agree to make certain fixed regular payments so that each of them, individually, may secure economic protection in the event of certain happenings. Because of the uncertainty of accidents, sickness and death, the only way in which most people can make provision against such events is on the basis of group action or mutual aid.

Lack of security drives the worker too hard in his effort to be prepared against such happenings. He worries because he feels insecure as regards himself and his family, and, from his overwork and his worry, certain ills may spring. By sharing the dangers which threaten him, that is, by taking advantage of the mutual aid idea of insurance, he can, in large measure, free himself of worry and not be such a slave to work. Relaxation should not have to wait for the later years of life. The whole of life should have time for a healthy mixture of work and play. Too much of either is undesirable; it is the fair mixture of both which provides the healthiest and the happiest life.

Public Library Soon to Receive Many New Books

Best Spring Offerings Will be Added in Few Days; Rotary Makes Generous Gift

Nearly fifty books, representing the best offerings on the spring list of publishers, will go into circulation at the Haileybury Library within the next few days and it is hoped that many former subscribers who have failed to renew their library cards this year will again take advantage of the opportunity of a year's reading at nominal cost. The best of the new fiction, as well as older works by popular authors, are among the new volumes added to the shelves this week and romance, mystery, adventure are liberally represented. Several of the most powerful novels of the season are included as well as a number of non-fiction books carefully chosen for their general appeal to all classes of readers. The purchase has been made possible through a generous donation by the Haileybury Rotary Club.

Among the fiction the following volumes will be of interest:

"THE LAST ADAM," by James Gould Cozzens, one of the best-selling books of the present season, selected by the Book of the Month Club as one of the most important novels of the year. It is a strong, humorous novel of a country doctor.

"ANN VICKERS," by Sinclair Lewis, the new book by the Nobel Prize winner. It has been published simultaneously in thirteen countries and is bound to be one of the most widely discussed novels of 1933.

"THE KENNEL MURDER CASE" by S. S. Van Dine, the new mystery novel by the creator of Philo Vance. The author's other mystery stories, "The Bishop Murder Case," "The Canary Murder Case," etc., are in constant demand by library subscribers and his new book is the most impatiently awaited detective novel of the past two years.

"MURDER AT MONTE CARLO," by E. Phillips Oppenheim. Writing as no one else can of his favorite locale, Mr. Oppenheim has produced another nerve-tickling thriller and has introduced a most attractive heroine.

"OTHER WOMEN," by Katherine Brush. Like "Red-Headed Woman" and "Young Man of Manhattan" by the same writer, this new book by Katherine Brush is proving popular with readers of all classes. Here are ladies and their lives and loves—the small-town ladies of "Red Headed Woman" and the big town ladies of "Young Man of Manhattan."

"FORBIDDEN VALLEY" by William Byron Wowrye. Against the rugged background of the Canadian Northwest, the author has written his most thrilling story. Through breath-taking adventures the reader races to a surprise climax in a novel which combines the lure of detective fiction, real romance and action-packed drama in full measure.

"GIANTS IN THE EARTH," by O. E. Rolvaag, is described as the fullest finest and most powerful novel ever written about pioneer life in America. It is a stirring novel of the pioneer's courageous struggle to establish himself in the wilderness.

"ALBERT GROPE," the story of a belated Victorian, by F. O. Mann, depicts the fate of a self-made man in the crowded local life of a London suburb. The book is swiftly becoming a classic and is pervaded by a fresh, lively humor.

"THE WATERS UNDER THE EARTH," by Martha Ostenso, young Canadian authoress of "Wild Geese" is a story of youth pitted against the puritanical tyranny of a stern father. It is a brilliant and unforgettable story.

"THE YEAR OF DELIGHT," by Margaret Widdemer, is the story of Delight Laurier, who inherits six million dollars at the age of twenty-one. The novelty of the plot, the charm of treatment and the clear-cut characterization make this an interesting and captivating romance.

"SALUTE TO ADVENTURERS," by John Buchan, is in Buchan's best manner, a book for those who love brisk action and bold adventure. Here is romance both for those who like their heroes beruffled and courtly and for those who like them strong and pioneering.

"THE VOICE OF THE SEVEN SPARROWS," by Harry Stephen Keeler, is a tantalizing mystery story of revenge and intrigue by an author who is famous for his intricate plots. If you received an envelope containing the deuce of spades with black Chinese characters on it, what would you do?

"DESTINY RIDES AGAIN," by Max Brand, is a thrilling Western novel of a headstrong young firebrand in a frontier town.

"MURDERS IN PRAED STREET" is a detective novel by John Rhode which will delight all readers of mystery fiction. With a strange and mysterious regularity murder had come to the squalid neighborhood of Praed Street, each murder different from the others, yet all alike in that they seemed without cause. Dr. Priestley solves the mystery.

"IN FOR A PENNY," by Sophie Kerr, is the story of the married life of Emily, who was very beautiful and who had her own sense of values. She wanted things established and sure, particularly in regard to finances. But her husband never worried about debts.

"THE VIRTUOUS HUSBAND," by Freeman Tilden, is the story of Jim Buebarrow, who was brought up in the country, became a journalist and married a modern girl. It is an unusual and interesting novel of modern life.

"THE AMAZING WEB," by Harry Stephen Keeler, is a gigantic mystery novel, really half a dozen novels rolled into one. How the trigger finger of a man long dead sent another man to his doom is the basis of this thriller.

"SECOND HAND WIFE," by Kathleen Norris, tells how Sandra, the office wife, became a real wife by sacrificing her happiness for Patsy. It is one of the most popular romances by this popular writer.

"UNDER COVER MAN," by John Wiltach is a swift, realistic story of crime and detection in the underworld. It is a mystery story in which intrigue and romance add to the excitement of the action.

"PROLOGUE TO LOVE," is the latest novel by Martha Ostenso, in which the author of "Wild Geese" and "The Dark Dawn" has departed from her earlier method and has written genuine romance, more powerful and appealing than her previous realistic novels. The setting of the story is the Kamloops Valley of British Columbia. It is intensely vital with human drama.

"THE DEVIL'S PASSPORT" by Gordon Young, is one of the best adventure stories published this spring. The story is told in dramatic dialogue that has the staccato breathlessness of machine-gun fire.

"THE CONQUERING LOVER," by Pamela Wynne, is a throbbing romance against the magical setting of Anglo-India, replete with love and tropical glamor.

"THE DOUBLE TRAITOR" by E. Phillips Oppenheim, was written several years ago, but still remains one of the most popular of this popular author's swift-moving tales.

"LUMMOX" by Fannie Hurst, is the tale of a peasant girl against a background of turmoil. Bertha, a huge, dumb creature, with apparently no interest in any other human being, goes stalking through the pages of this powerful novel, affecting deeply and vitally every life she touches.

Next week The Haileyburian will publish brief notes on the non-fiction books as well as a number of other fiction volumes added to the library. The non-fiction includes Gordon Sinclair's "Footloose in India" and other striking books.

It is only by the support of the townspeople that the Haileybury Library can continue its fine service to the town. Its only revenue is derived from the sale of membership cards, at the low price of $1 a year, and it is regrettable that membership this year has shown a decrease. It is confidently hoped that with new and attractive books on the shelves the membership will show a decided increase within the next few days.

Celebrates Birthday and Long Term in School Service

In his report on the month's activities, R. B. Holmes, veteran school attendance officer for the town of Cobalt, informed the public school trustees there at their regular meeting for April that he was celebrating two anniversaries on Good Friday—his 76th birthday and the completion of 18 years of service in the employment of the board. Mr. Holmes notes that not a single pupil now in attendance at the public school there was born when he took over his duties in 1915, and he further observed that Mrs. Carl Train, at that time a teacher on the staff, now had a daughter in high school. He used these illustrations to record how time flies, his report indicated. The trustees instructed their secretary to write Mr. Holmes a letter of congratulation and with good wishes for his future life.
