It is not enough to exercise the will-power; there must also be the well-woven fibres of brain, muscle, and heart to execute. Let him who receives a sudden powerful impulse upward retain some of the advantages that have been given him, even if it is but a step, then let him take another step upward. Since he cannot fly, let him climb; if he cannot walk, he can at least creep upward.

A THIRD PARTY ENTERS UNITED STATES POLITICS?

Prospects of a third national political party, with Representative William Lemke (Republican) of North Dakota, inset, at the helm, loomed as rumors persisted that the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin planned to back such an organization. The Detroit radio priest announced in New York he was ready to support an unnamed third party leader, provided the man announced a platform suitable to the National Union for Social Justice. Lemke is the co-author of the $3,000,000,000 farm mortgage refinancing bill defeated in the house several weeks ago. Father Coughlin staged a vigorous but fruitless battle to put the bill across.

ments to change this system had so far been unsuccessful, he said, but the question was still being discussed. He saw the organization as a "guiding principle in democratic countries and becoming a bigger influence as time passes, and referred to the amicable settlement of a dispute between Paraguay and Bolivia in which Rotary had taken a prominent part.

H. G. Pickard advanced the view that where the representatives of some 4,000 clubs, representing the most prominent men in both business and politics, met together, their association leads to respect and from respect to tolerance, and could not fail to lead to a better understanding. The procedure in European and South American countries, he said, is different from North America, and the advantage of bringing in prominent politicians is more marked. The interchange of ideas, he felt, was bound to have its effect in the advancement of eventual world peace.

A. G. Kirkpatrick declared that Rotary International was only second to the League of Nations in the promotion of international understanding and cited examples of what had been accomplished.
