Lost Girl Comes Home After Two Days' Absence

Gladys Clark Had Been Subject of Intensive Search in Outlying District

Subject of an intensive search by two provincial police officers and a large number of men for almost 48 hours, Gladys Clark, aged 22, who makes her home with Mr. and Mrs. Harry Taylor, in the outlying district of the Cobalt camp, near Brady Lake, returned to the Taylor residence at about 6.30 a.m. on Wednesday.

According to the police the girl was somewhat hysterical when she returned and did not give any very clear reason for her absence, but later in the day made a statement, full details of which were not given out.

Miss Clark left the Taylor home some time between 7 a.m., when she was last seen by Taylor on his departure for his work of patrolling the lines of the Northern Ontario Power Company in that section, and 9 a.m., when Mrs. Taylor got up and missed the girl.

Provincial Constable Stromberg of Cobalt was notified and, with Constable Byrne from headquarters here, began a search of the surrounding country. Besides Brady Lake, near the home, there are many shafts and test pits, sunk in the days of the silver boom and filled with water, and it was feared that the missing girl had been drowned. Dragging of the lake and of some of the shafts was carried on during Monday afternoon and throughout Tuesday, residents of the neighborhood joining with the officers, who learned from the Taylors that she had been somewhat hysterical following an alleged attack earlier in the month, in the bush near the house after dark. The affair was a complete puzzle until Miss Clark arrived home yesterday morning.

Later Miss Clark told police officers that she had returned home late on Monday night and, using a ladder outside the building, which is a former large boarding house, had gone into the attic and remained there hidden until Wednesday morning. She had gone to a small lake six miles away with the intention of drowning herself, she said, but later changed her mind. She was sitting on the front doorstep scantily clad when Taylor arose about 6.30 a.m.

Net revenues of the Canadian National Railways for August this year were $680,581, an increase of $110,909 over those for the same month in 1935.

A considerable quantity of goods were stolen from the store of T. Briscoe, New Liskeard grocer, when thieves gained access to the premises by forcing a door at the rear of the building.

Three Men Sent To Reformatory On Theft Counts

Trio Found Guilty of Robbing Mino's Store and American Tourists in Camp

Convicted on two counts of theft when they appeared before Magistrate Atkinson in police court here on Friday last, Lucien Barrette, Donat Roy and George Mallette, the three men arrested in Kirkland Lake following the breaking and entering of Albert Mino's store here, were sentenced to 18 months definite and nine months additional indeterminate in the Ontario Reformatory, on each charge, the terms to run concurrently. The charge in addition to that of theft of shoes from the store was they had broken into a motor car belonging to two American tourists, camping at Olive Lake, near Temagami, and stole articles of clothing, fishing tackle and other goods.

At the trial Robert Henderson and W. H. Smith, the American visitors, identified the various articles found in possession of the accused when they were arrested. Each of the men was wearing a shirt from the collection and numerous other articles, including a camp stove, were easily identified by the owners. The three had been placed under arrest by Constable John Curry, of the Teck township police force, apparently trying to dispose of the loot. They were brought to Haileybury by Chief of Police MacGirr and Provincial Constable Byrne, together with the goods found in their possession.

The accused claimed that they had found the goods near the highway in the early hours of Tuesday morning. They had stopped and slept in the car in which they were travelling north to "look for work," they said, and when they awoke they saw a car drive off from a point a quarter mile in front of them. Looking over the place where the other had been parked, they came upon the collection of articles, which included some 40 pairs of new shoes, in two large cartons. At the instance of Mallette, whom the other two had picked up in North Bay, they loaded the stuff into the car and went on to Kirkland Lake, where he had said that he could dispose of it. The magistrate declined to believe their story, after the goods had been positively identified, both by the American tourists and by Mr. Mino, who produced invoices covering the shoes.

One of the accused, Barrette, had a police record, it was divulged at the trial. The three were defended by D. G. Dean, from the office of Wm. C. Inch, while Crown Attorney J. B. Robinson handled the prosecution. An order for restitution of the goods was made by Magistrate Atkinson following the trial and conviction.

It was on Monday that the camp of the tourists was robbed, the same night that the goods disappeared from the local store and early Tuesday morning the three were under arrest. They were brought to Haileybury on Tuesday evening and on Friday the convictions were made.

Increase Size of Assay Plant in Haileybury

New Building and Machinery to Treble Capacity; Mining Activity Responsible

When the addition to the assay office of J. W. N. Bell on Brown Street, Haileybury, is completed within the next week, it will more than double the size of the building and will allow of the installation of new machinery and other equipment that will treble the output of the plant, Mr. Bell told The Haileyburian this week. Work on the building has been proceeding for some weeks now, under the direction of Jos. Isherwood and with all local labor employed, and the exterior is completed.

A new front, extending across both the former building and the addition and composed of stucco with green trimmings, gives the establishment a pleasing appearance, while the interior is being divided into several different rooms for the various departments.

An especially interesting feature of the new equipment being installed is the stand on which the delicate balances used in the weighing of the precious metals rest. From a cement base set into the floor of the basement extend two concrete pillars, through the main floor to a convenient height. These are connected at the top with a concrete slab and have some clearance through the flooring, the whole being designed to avoid any possibility of vibration. The grinding machines, which will be increased in number, will be ranged along the rear of the whole building, laboratories will have separate rooms and the two electric furnaces in a separate building at the rear will continue to be used, together with others in the main building.

Increased activity in the whole mining area during the past year or two has been responsible for the improvements and additions to the plant which, Mr. Bell says, is now turning out many times the amount of work that was the case a few years ago. A staff of seven or eight is continually employed in the plant.

Rush Patient to City By Air Route From Cochrane

Suffering from a ruptured appendix, A. Amendola, T. & N.O. employee at Cochrane, was rushed to Toronto by the air route yesterday afternoon, in an effort to save his life. The mercy plane, a General Airways machine, driven by Pilot Bogart, left Cochrane at about 2 o'clock, stopped in Haileybury to re-fuel at 3.15 and was expected to reach the city between 6 and 7. The patient was accompanied by his son and a doctor, and it was stated here that his condition was grave.

Given Send-Off Ere Departure For New Home

Leslie McFarlane Honored by Friends Monday Night; Is Moving to Whitby

Leslie McFarlane, author, sportsman and all-around good fellow, who has called Haileybury his "home town" for more than a quarter century, was the guest of honor at a gathering of his local friends, held on Monday evening in the Odfellows' Temple, prior to his departure for his new home in Whitby, Ontario.

He left on Tuesday evening for the Southern Ontario town, where he will be joined in a few days by Mrs. McFarlane and the family. They have been contemplating the move for some weeks, but it was only recently that a definite arrangement was made. Mr. McFarlane states that his new location, much nearer the publishing centres, will facilitate his literary work, but he will still lock on Haileybury as his home.

At a short program of addresses during the course of the party on Monday evening, Mayor O. J. Thorpe, acting as chairman, expressed to Mr. McFarlane the regret of the townspeople at his impending departure and their best wishes for his success in the future. He had helped to keep Haileybury before the notice of the people of Southern Ontario, with his stories of the North, His Worship said, and he hoped that he would continue to write of the North.

Mr. W. H. Tuke, principal of the high school, told of his first acquaintance with Leslie as a pupil of that institution, referred to his first literary efforts in the way of essay competitions and referred to his father, Mr. J. H. McFarlane, for many years principal of the public school, as a literary man himself who had been largely responsible for his son's success in the field of letters. Mr. McFarlane had instilled a love of good literature into the minds of Haileybury for a generation, Mr. Tuke said. The speaker referred to Leslie's service at a member of the public library board. His duties as chairman of the book committee consisted of "picking out books which the board could not afford to buy," reading all books which were considered of "doubtful character" and in general proving, next to the secretary, R. H. Unwin, the "mainstay of the board."

J. H. Murray, who claimed to have gone to school with Leslie, told the gathering something of their early lives in humorous vein, while C. F. Tuer spoke of the loss to the community in his leaving, of his good services over a long period of years and the genuine good wishes which all held for his future and that of Mrs. McFarlane and the family.

D. G. Hogan told of some incidents in the long friendship which

NEW LISKEARD CHIEF IS NEW PRESIDENT OF TEMISKAMING FIREMEN

J. W. Gadsby, chief of the New Liskeard fire department, was elected president of the Temiskaming Firemen's Association, when that body met in annual session at South Porcupine this week. Other officers are W. J. Skinner, South Porcupine, first vice-president; R. J. Mathieson, Kirkland Lake, second vice-president; Fred Thompson, New Liskeard, secretary-treasurer. Mr. Thompson is a veteran in the office, having held the position for many years, and it seems that the Association just couldn't get along without him.

The annual convention lasted two days and was climaxed by a monster banquet which filled the Masonic Hall to capacity. J. A. Bradette, M.P. for Cochrane, was among the speakers, together with C. Defields, president of the Dominion Association of Fire Chiefs. The banquet was featured by a splendid musical program and a dance followed.

Re-Stock Waters of District With Speckled Trout

Three Truck Loads Fingerlings Distributed From Here; Hatched at Petawawa

Three truck loads of speckled trout fingerlings, from the Ontario government hatcheries at Petawawa, were delivered in Haileybury during the past week. They were consigned to the Temiskaming Fish and Game Protective Association, the organization that has been responsible for the re-stocking of many streams and lakes in the district during the past few years, and members of that body undertook the distribution of the little fishes. Some five or six streams in the district, and a few lakes, received the fingerlings as they were delivered here, no time being lost by the officials of the Association in arranging the distribution.

A peek into one of the cans in which the small fish are shipped from the hatcheries revealed that they are quite lively and apparently in fine condition. They are two or three inches in length, are about three months old, according to the men in charge of the trucks, and will be of legal size for angling in a couple of years. All the waters in which they are deposited are carefully inspected by experts of the game and fisheries department before the Association's requisitions are filled, thus ensuring the best results from re-stocking. In each of the three truck loads received here there were some six thousand of the fingerlings.

Earlier in the year, pickerel, bass and other fry, were secured in large numbers by the Association and distributed in waters suitable for their respective species, and the whole system is designed to keep the lakes and streams of the North Country in such condition, from an angler's point of view, that they will continue indefinitely to hold a special attraction for the visitor from outside, as well as providing sport and recreation for our own people.

This is Canada's "Fish Week", sponsored by the fishing industry of the whole country to call attention to the value of fish as a food and the importance of the industry as a national institution.

"Trail of '98" is Described For Rotarians Here

A. N. Gauthier is Guest Speaker at Club Meeting; Tells of Varied Experiences

The varied experiences of A. N. Gauthier, a resident of Giroux Lake who went over the famous "Trail of '98" to the Klondike, were related by him at the weekly luncheon of the local Rotary Club on Monday. Mr. Gauthier has a happy knack of making an interesting address out of the incidents connected with his journey on that occasion, the first he had taken that kept him away over night from his Montreal home, and the many outlines of life in that day made his talk a particularly interesting one.

Commencing with the train trip to Edmonton, the farthest north point to be touched by a railway in those days, he sketched the whole trip into the once famous mining area over the all-Canadian route. Down the Athabaska and Great Slave rivers, across Great Slave Lake and finally down the Mackenzie was a thrilling trip, and not only thrilling but amusing, to judge by the incidents related by Mr. Gauthier. He told of how he had marked the eggs in the nests of wild ducks and geese, later going back and gathering the unmarked ones to insure a fresh supply, of the experience when a chinook wind removed overnight all traces of snow, of the curing of a bad case of scurvy which he suffered, by the aid of the inner bark of the tamarac tree, and many other incidents of the strenuous trip, besides relating his experiences in the gold camp itself. Among the latter was the story of a doctor amputating a man's foot in a tent with the thermometer at 60 below.

Mr. Gauthier went from the Yukon to Nome, Alaska, where he found the "best mining camp I ever saw," and later came from there to the Cobalt district, where for a good many years he has continued to make his home.

He concluded a very interesting address with an unpublished poem, "Salvation Bill" by Robert W. Service, declaring that Service was one of the greatest "miners" that he had ever known.

The thanks of the club were tendered Mr. Gauthier by Dr. W. C. Arnold, who stated that he felt sure that the speaker could write a more interesting book on the Yukon than any so far published.

Surveys of the new branch line of the Canadian National Railways to serve the mining districts of Northern Quebec have been completed and it is expected that construction will commence within a week or two. The new line will extend from Senneterre, on the Transcontinental, to Rouyn and will touch many of the newer mining camps.
