

Brown Trout Sent North After Ten Years of Trying

Association Secures Six Tanks; Rainbow Variety Have Also Been Distributed

After 10 years of trying, the Temiskaming Fish and Game Protective Association has succeeded in persuading the Ontario Department of Game and Fisheries to give the brown trout a try-out in Northern waters, with the result that a shipment of six tanks of yearlings have been received from the Collingwood hatcheries for distribution in this district.

N. C. McVittie, president of the Association, told The Haileyburian this week that the fish were in fine condition when they arrived by truck. He recalled that at the annual meeting earlier in the year there had been a discussion over the brown variety, with differences of opinion as to their merits, and it was then decided to try once more to get a requisition filled by the department.

The six tanks shipped in were taken without delay to three streams that had been decided on as suitable for that species. The streams are the Big Otter, the Wabi and the east branch of the Blanche Rivers and the fish were divided as nearly evenly as possible among the three.

Rainbow trout have also been "planted" in the district this season, Mr. McVittie said, but this variety had been tried. A shipment of fingerlings, also consisting of six tanks, was received a few days ago and these have been placed mainly in Mahon and Mowatt Lakes, both of which are "good spring lakes," he said. They lie north and slightly east of the West Road terminus at the Montreal River. The rainbow trout came from the government hatchery at Sault Ste Marie.

There is a possibility, according to Mr. McVittie, that the Association may secure a number of adult trout from the Hill's Lake hatchery when the spawning season is over this fall. With the trout season closing on September 15th, he said that the fish would be quite safe for the time being and they could be placed in some of the nearby streams for a start next year. There likely would be more than could be carried over at the hatchery, he thought.

Car Badly Damaged in Crash at Moore's Cove

A car owned and driven by Oscar Grant of New Liskeard was damaged to the extent of about $200, in a crash which occurred at Moore's Cove on Saturday at about 11.30 a.m., and which was investigated by Traffic Officer Arthur Souliere of the provincial police force. Grant was driving north behind Norman Shaver of North Cobalt, in a light truck, and in attempting to pass, his car came in contact with the rear part of the truck, apparently went out of control and crossed the ditch and brought up against a stone fence on the west side of the highway. The left side of the car was smashed against the fence, while the other side struck the bank of the ditch, the officer said. The Shaver truck was only slightly damaged and neither of the drivers, nor Mrs. Grant, who was in her husband's car, was injured. There will be no charges laid, Constable Souliere said.

So far as getting to Kirkland Lake is concerned, it was stated that transportation was being provided, it is hoped, for the New Liskeard and district people through the Legion Post, and it is expected that no difficulty will be experienced in handling the others from out of town.

RED CROSS BENEFITS FROM FIELD DAY AT LOCAL GOLF COURSE

Haileybury golfers contributed $17.50 to the Red Cross Society as a result of the field day held on the local course last Saturday. This was the second event of its kind held during the present season and the combined total now stands at $41.75.

The weather was fine on Saturday and the players thoroughly enjoyed the day as a welcome change from recent wet spells. With the season drawing to a close, the devotees are taking advantage of every fine day that occurs and the course continues in good shape. The Red Cross Society is very grateful for the contributions made by the players.

Bomb Victims Equal Whole Population in Dominion of Canada

Gigantic Task of Red Cross Is Carried Out By Millions of Hard-Working Women

By GERRY ALLIGHAN
London, Sept. 16th—Sufferers from bombing in this country total as many as the entire Canadian population. More than 11,000,000 people carry in their bodies or minds some scar left by Nazi bombers. To get an idea of the extent of the social problem with which war relief organizations here are grappling, think of a Canada where it would be impossible to meet one person not suffering from the after-effects of bomb raids—rendered homeless, injured, orphaned, wifeless, fire-scorched, husbandless, childless, nerve-shocked or impoverished.

Many victims are slowly groping their way back to normal. But many others never will be able to wipe from the screen of their minds the picture of terror tapestried there. Thousands will go through life limbed, other thousands blinded or minus one eye. On a million children the mark of the Nazi beast is indelibly stamped either physical dismemberment or mental shock. Tens of thousands of little homes are charred embers or rain sodden rubble. Stately homes that have been growing old gracefully since the first Elizabeth reigned have been ruthlessly wrecked. The sidewalks of a score of towns where men hurried to work, women shopped and children played now run in crooked pattern like writing in a child's exercise book.

Nearly Million Serve
There is a more hopeful set of comparative figures to the picture. More than a million women in Canada are working in one way or another to enable the Canadian Red Cross to provide Britain's bomb victims with medical supplies, foodstuffs, beverages, clothing, blankets and toys, as well as such facilities as ambulances and canteens. Matching that large army of women in Canada are 987,600 members of the Women's Volunteer Service, the distributing agents for the Canadian Red Cross here.

Lady Reading, who has placed the services of those women at the disposal of the Canadian Red Cross in this country, tells me that one out of every 14 adult women in Britain is now organized to act as a counterpart of the million Canadian women providing those Red Cross services.

Send your contribution to your local Red Cross branch, Provincial Division or to the headquarters of the Canadian Red Cross Society, 95 Wellesley Street, Toronto, Ont.

CAPTAIN F. B. CREASY HAS RECOVERED FROM EFFECT OF BOMB RAID

Haileybury friends of Capt. F. B. Creasy, formerly head of the provincial police for this district, will be interested in the following from The Barrie Examiner, and glad to know that he has recovered:

"Mrs. F. B. Creasy, 15 Henry Street, Barrie, has received a letter from her husband, Capt. F. B. Creasy, recently promoted to the post of Deputy Assistant Provost Marshal of Canadian Base Units in England, that, during an intensive aerial raid in the summer, a bomb dropped very close to him, causing temporary lapse of memory. "It was a little too close for comfort," he says, but states that he is 'all O.K. again and feeling fine.' Capt. Creasy was sergeant of the Ontario Provincial Police at Barrie a number of years ago, and later was inspector at Kitchener and Haileybury. When he went overseas. Mrs. Creasy came to Barrie to reside."

BEARS RAID FIELDS IN ARMSTRONG TOWNSHIP; CARRY GRAIN TO WOODS

His grain crops have suffered to some extent from raiding bears Reeve Hugh Semple of Armstrong said while on a visit at New Liskeard earlier in the present week. The reeve, who farms east of Earlton, said the animals would emerge from bush land adjoining a field where he had raised and cut oats, and would help themselves from a handy stook, carrying the grain into the woods and apparently taking their fill from the heads at their leisure. The bears did not venture beyond the row of stooks nearest to the bush, Reeve Semple said. His Worship of Armstrong declared that bears were very numerous in his district, as in other parts of Temiskaming, and on several occasions he has caught sight of the animals. Once, he said, he was close behind one bear which was actually on the road, but which eventually started off into safer quarters than a traveled thoroughfare.

"I'M GRATEFUL TO Reddy Kilowatt!"

I've found washday freedom!

"That's what you'll say when you sign ME up to do the washing," says Reddy Kilowatt. "And it tickles me to death because I really do like to help people. I remember the old time washdays when I was a little chap struggling for recognition; knuckles barked on washboards; aching backs; aching heads. It used to make me boil so I said to myself 'I'll stop all that when I grow up; just wait and see'. And here I am to prove my point. With an Electric Washer all you do is put the clothes and water in and snap the switch, leaving the rest to me. There's nothing too big; nothing too fragile. I treat them all tenderly and wash them clean without hurting a fibre. All I ask for wages is about 15¢ a month."
