Instal Automatic Stoker at Local Public School

An automatic stoker will be installed at the Haileybury public school, in time for use this fall according to present plans. The school board has secured endorsement for the expenditure and the machine has been ordered from P. M. Fleming Limited. The price quoted to the board some weeks ago is $853 installed, and the apparatus is a Fairbanks-Morse of the required capacity. The expenditure will come under the new plan whereby the Department of Education pays a large percentage of school operation costs and will effect a considerable saving in fuel costs.

Dempsey, in Noranda, Que., on August 8th last, the body was taken to Cobalt, rested at the funeral parlour there and later the funeral service was held in Holy Cross church, Haileybury. Mrs. Moriarity was born at Mount St. Patrick, Ont., in the year 1852. Information sent to The Haileyburian did not include her maiden name. With her late husband she came to Haileybury in 1906 and continued to have her home here until six years ago when she went to live with Mrs. Dempsey at Noranda. She was in perfect health, despite her years up to the time of her death. Mr. Moriarity died 18 years ago and one son, Michael, died in 1937.

Holiday Trip Shows Other Districts Progress Slowly

by a wealthy tourist from the United States, who still keeps a watchful eye on the institution and at odd times when the need arises is quite ready to provide new equipment.

Dr. Trefry, who does not always see eye to eye with the Medical Associations, claims his plan should be extended to cover all outlying areas in the country. He relates many stories of his experiences with the people, the great majority of whom are farmers, and his claims are amply endorsed by almost everyone in the community. They all have the utmost faith in his medical skill, and that this faith is well grounded is made evident by the fact that last year 216 operations were performed in the hospital about half of them major ones and the mortality rate on the Island has been reduced to five per cent.

Another interesting feature of St. Joseph is the system by which communication is kept up with the mainland. The Ontario Department of Highways maintains two ferries, some 15 miles apart which carry vehicles of all kinds back and forth across a half-mile of water. Each ferry is operated by two men and can carry a half-dozen cars or trucks. They make the crossing in about 20 minutes and an hourly service is provided from early in the morning until late at night. No charge is made but the island people are hoping that a bridge will be provided in time. On the island the writer visited with Mr. and Mrs. Jos. E. Bayliss, co-authors of a history of the community which is widely read in Algoma and nearby Michigan.

Bruce Mines was also included in the trip. It is now past the century mark as a populated centre, having been founded in 1842 with the first commercial copper mining in Canada, according to the town's "welcome" sign on the highway. When the anniversary came around Canada was in the middle of the war and no attempt at a celebration was made, especially as a large percentage of the community's young men and women were away on active service but there is some talk now of an "old home week" or something of that nature. The community, once was a thriving one, but has dwindled considerably with the passing years.

Sault Ste Marie was also visited, both in Ontario and Michigan where there are thriving cities and where one of the great arteries of commerce is located, the canals between Lake Superior and St. Mary's river. During the war years these canals were closely guarded, 12,000 American soldiers being stationed there at one period, but these precautions have been removed.

The farming areas showed much the same conditions as in Temiskaming, with haying well advanced and grain crops ripening, and the dry weather has been the same there as in our own district. The chief difference is found in the fact that the land is more broken and only small settlements exist in the valleys, all of them an aftermath of the lumbering industry which flourished in the last century. There is little lumbering now and, while at one time there were about a dozen big sawmills between Sudbury and Sault Ste Marie, now there is only one, at Blind River. Wherever one goes these days there are many American tourists, and these are increasing rapidly since the gasoline rationing
