

Major Ketcheson To Lecture Here On Conservation

Widely Travelled Head of Club Will Illustrate Phases of Outdoor Life

Major P. K. (Ketch) Ketcheson who will address a public meeting May 21st, in the Legion hall, is one of those rare birds who can define a sportsman.

The secretary of the Carling Conservation Club, who estimates he has travelled 300,000 miles in the last 15 years to deliver addresses on conservation says of a sportsman, "He takes only what he can use."

"Only through education can we prevent destruction," he adds. "Individual greed can rob this country of its forests, its birds, its animals and its fish and once a man shoots or catches or destroys more than he can use he is no longer a sportsman."

Ketch, born in Belleville and now residing at Wyndwyck farm on the outskirts of Napanee, is 56 and says he became hepped on conservation as a boy when he saw "the countryside and the wild life going to pieces because of man's greed." He's been at it ever since and figures the real salvation lies in the education of youth. He was a founder of the Junior Sportsmen's Club and firmly believes that all associations should sponsor youngsters' sections.

Ketch is founder and past president of the Lennox and Addington Fish and Game Protective Association, after five years as president, and is a director of the Ontario Federation of Anglers and hunters. Also, he's a member of the Reforestation committee for North Fredericksburg township and he recently completed a three-months speaking tour that took him across the length and breadth of Ontario. He enlisted with the Argyll Light Infantry in the First Great War and served overseas with the Canadian Scottish, being invalided home late in 1917. He was public relations organizer for the Ottawa Valley on six Victory Loan drives in the Second Great War, and assisted on stamp drives and Red Cross campaigns in Eastern Ontario.

His address to the Fish and Game Protective Association and Service Clubs will be illustrated by a series of conservation and outdoor films which point up the necessity of conserving Canada's heritage of forests, soil and wild life.

Provincial constable Earl Penner, for several years past in charge of the post at Temagami, has resigned from the force and will go into the tourist business at the famous summer resort. He has secured about an acre of ground south of the village and close to the government motor park, and has already erected some cabins and other buildings, where summer visitors will find good accommodation. Mr. Penner spent some time at the Haileybury headquarters of the force prior to his being appointed to the Temagami post and has many friends throughout the district. Constable Harry Morel, who has been at headquarters for some months past, has taken over the duties of the Temagami post.
