

Sharpe's Bakery Closes Store in Haileybury

A familiar name was lost to the business avenues of New Liskeard and Haileybury this week when T. W. Sharpe announced that he was retiring after some twenty years of supplying the area with good food from his well known bake shops.

Not only the name is lost to Haileybury—the little shop on downtown Main street closed its doors on Saturday under a change of Policy by Mr. Sharpe's successor, Victor Menard of New Liskeard, who will operate the one store in his home town under the name of Vic's Bake Shop.

In an interview this week, Mr. Sharpe told The Haileyburian that in his four years of operation here, he had enjoyed total success with the shop being sold out early more often than not. Queried as to what he attributed the good patronage, Mr. Sharpe quickly replied "because I sold only good Conservative stuff" with a capital C. However, he is not planning to run in the next Federal election.

Mrs. Farmer tells us that Saturday was a day of long faces when shoppers realized that it was the last day for buying. With the pickling season in full swing and weather that surpasses all expectations, the little women are aghast at the thought of being chained to the mixing bowl. We would like to mention, right here, the number of people who have told us how much they will miss seeing Mrs. Farmer behind the counter every day. Her happy countenance and conscientious efforts to see that her shoppers' wishes were fulfilled, made a bright spot in every shopper's day. She herself said "she certainly would miss seeing everyone".

A Gallup poll of what people like to eat from a bake shop here and in New Liskeard revealed that New Liskeard is more of a bun town than Haileybury; when we do buy buns it's the plain variety and not the jam and frills. Leanings here are toward cookies and small, dainty cakes.

Day Dreams

The worst thing about a holiday is when you've looked forward to it too much. Somehow the reality never quite lives up to the expectations of it. I'm right, aren't I? The truth is that there's no place in the world quite as lovely, quite as glamorous,

IT'S VINTAGE TIME IN NIAGARA

Betty Neden's smile lends a charming background to this vineyard scene as the first-ripened grapes of the 1952 harvest leave a Niagara vineyard. This year a bumper crop of 50,000 tons will be sent to the fresh fruit markets and Niagara Peninsula wineries. The grape growers are now preparing for their first annual Niagara Grape Festival, which will be climaxed by a huge parade and sports program in St. Catharines on October 4th.

quite as Arcadian, as the infinite loveliness of the paradise that only exists in our own day dreams."

The Baby Sitter

On the list of films available for a small service charge from the Canadian Film Institute, 17 Wellington street, Ottawa, is a 15-minute film called "The Baby Sitter" which describes physical and psychological care of children by baby sitters, through the story of Mary Gigson's first evening as a baby sitter in the Brown's home. It shows the major problem—a sitter encounters, pointing out both her responsibilities and those of the parents. This is a very good U.S. film which should be quite useful for high school and for girls of baby-sitting age, as well as for mothers' groups to show what to expect from sitters. Films are 16 mm sound and black and white unless otherwise indicated.

Millions a Year on Alcoholic Drinks

Quebecers spend more than $100,000,000 a year on wines, spirituous liquors and beer, according to a government report.

During the last fiscal year, 120 Quebec Liquor Commission stores sold 1,063,694 gallons of wine and 2,024,595 gallons of spirituous liquors, a total sales amount of $52,537,751, the Department of Trade and Commerce annual report said. Although Quebecers and their guests drank 3,088,289 gallons of wines and spirituous liquors they preferred their beer. They drank 46,221,045 gallons of beer manufactured and sold in the province and the rest imported.

Although they may be the greatest drinking province, it is interesting to note that it was still away behind Ontario in the number of convictions for drunkenness. Latest figures showed that there were 33,446 convictions for drunkenness in Ontario in the year while Quebec had only about eleven thousand.

Canadian children are more apt to be in trouble with the law in spring and autumn; juvenile courts are busiest in the months of April, May, June, October and November.

There are only 69 divorced persons in Newfoundland's 361,416 population.
