

You Ought To Know

That this week we are indebted to Mrs. C. H. Liddicott for assisting us in our report on the I.O.D.E. activity last week... and while we were telling her what a lovely tea day Saturday was, our thoughts quite naturally turned to community spirit and Mrs. Liddicott observed that "the splendid support given to this effort proved this quality to be alive throughout the district"... and to everyone of you who helped gain the goal... many thanks from every officer and member of the Haileybury Chapter of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire.

That we told Wilf Moriarty we were running a three-inch head on the Cobalt election "Haileybury Takes Over Cobalt Council" but his last words "Take it easy, girlie" led us to the wisdom of our issue this week.

That this week's little story is about a seven-year-old boy who woke up to all the election talk on Tuesday morning to hear his mother say "Mr. Day is Mayor" to which he said, "Gee, in the Post Office?"

That Christmas shoppers will find the local stores are open all day Wednesday now... otherwise hours are as usual with merchants planning, of course, to be open day and night during Christmas week.

That there is an excellent book display in the United Church this week which will be of interest to parents, teachers and children... books of Bible stories for children, reading on family worship and many others may be ordered.

That it was fun and games at the Auditorium on Sunday when Mr. and Mrs. J. Harling, Kirkland Lake, brought their stage and puppets to the school to give the local group some help and instruction on how to bring their little people to life... favorite puppet was "Frankie" who sat at the piano and played and then the record turned and he sang... and we have a distinct feeling that in days to come, the local people are going to be in for some real entertainment.

That we wanted to know how it felt to be the first woman in the District of Temiskaming to serve on a jury... Mrs. N. J. McAulay made no secret of the fact that she had butterflies in her tummy with the thought of being involved in such an imposing drama with the guardians of the peace... in fact, she admits to having ten fingers crossed in the hope that she too would be challenged and leave the Court House a free woman... but she assured us after the first day that she survived the ordeal nicely and thinks every woman who is free to do so should answer the call to a jury because every good citizen should know how the wheels of justice turn.

That we like the story of the gentleman who wasn't too interested in the election on Monday until he walked down town that day... caught his heel in a crack in the cement and went to the Legion Hall on fire... and the remarks of those winners... asked to what he attributed his success, one came back with "A good looking wife and no one knows me from a hole in the wall" "Gee, I nearly didn't make it"... "You just know about voters on voting day"... and one good night which took the form of "See you on Day night."

That we believe in fairy tales and this weather reminds us of Ivy L. Wallace's little book for children "Pookie Sets the World Right"... Pookie got mad at Winter and called him some very bad names and so Winter went away and from then on there was nothing but trouble with only three seasons... today we have a lovely bouquet of English Dianthus, a perennial which is blooming profusely at the home of Mrs. M. P. Wright... this royal purple esed was sent out from her sister in England two years ago... John E. Dunn is the proud owner of a garden which is brightened with a pink snapdragon in full bloom... the grass is green as springtime and lucky Mrs. Tracey Ross has proved it by bringing us not one, but three, healthy four leaf clovers... Mrs. W. C. Martin picking parsley from her garden on the Lake Shore Road and lilacs may burst at John H. Murphy's at any moment... meantime people are fussing about a green Christmas... curlers are having nightmares of no ice... skiers are wondering... yes, we need Pookie to bring Winter back.

French Canadian wood carvers mostly use such materials as basswood, white and yellow pine and walnut.
