Where Will We Go For Milk?

Mother had finished tucking Mary into bed and was tiptoeing from the room, when a small voice stopped her.

"Mummy, when I die will I go to heaven?"

"Yes, dear."

"When Fido dies, will he go to heaven?"

"Yes, dear" said the mother, getting rather tired of it all.

Similar questions about the cat and canary were answered. But when the child asked about the cow, the exasperated mother said "No".

She had just reached the door when the same voice said "Mummy, will we have to go to Hell for our milk?"

Leo Gough

When an editor writes an editorial he seeks first the truth and then hopes to lead the way promoting the best interests for the entire community. He cannot, always be right nor can he please everyone. He can only try and hope for good results.

10-day is probably the first day we have ever written an editorial feeling confident that everyone in our town will be in full accord.

We have enjoyed five glorious days celebrating Haileybury's Diamond Jubilee. Through a haze of services of worship giving thanks for so many good things, work and fun, friendly faces, yapping mutts, joyous children, highland music, a rainbow over Lake Temiskaming, a spray of white water and a menacing thunder cloud that never came, charging horses, skiers cutting through blue water, martial music—through all this haze there is a man. He is always there. Is it possible for one man to be so many places? Apparently it is.

We step back to-day and congratulate Chairman Leo Gough. His enthusiasm and his utter defiance of the phrase "it can't be done" are an example from which many could benefit. We have disagreed with him in the past, we may disagree with him in the future — but always we will admire him and be ready to try and match his enthusiasm to make Haileybury a better town.

He had a team of willing workers; no matter what the job, large or small, they did it well. We mention only one - Miss Jean Grant, secretary, for hers was a mighty task and she did it splendidly.

To you, Mr. Gough, we say "well done."

Warning

Children will be children and adults will be adults but if the adults don't do something about the antics of their children, drastic action is going to be taken at the waterfront.

This comes under the heading once again of teaching youngsters respect for the property of others. In this instance, it happens to be aeroplanes resting on the lake shore.

Last year, a child seeking entertainment punched fourteen pencil holes in a shiny plane. This summer, anything goes. With parents parked in a car ten feet away, the little dears are crawling, leaping, pulling and punching at aircraft that have to be completely overhauled before taking to the air in safety. As the pilot said "What would be the reaction of the parents, if I were to saunter over and proceed to give the family car, the business?"

Prize Winners

R. Wilson of Noranda was the lucky winner of the boat and trailer raffled at the Jubilee and C. E. Corbett of Barrie took home the chest of silver.

At the final night at the Armouries prizes were given to Mrs. S. MacIntyre, the oldest living resident, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Gauvreau with the largest family—seventeen children—to Mrs. Christopher Tallon for the youngest baby.
