

With The Civil Service

Your executive met in regular business session on Tuesday, May 11th. Correspondence on hand was considered and acted upon. Among the items received was the monthly letter from the Association President, Harold Bowen. On reading this letter, two factors stand out; one of them, that the Association needs you, and, more important, you need the Association.

It has been mentioned before—both in the Branch news letter and the press release that if you are eligible for membership and had been overlooked, to contact Stewart Frew, New Liskeard. This time I am going to be a bit more specific. In the nominal roll for the Branch which is used for mailing out the news letter, I fail to find any from the Department of Lands and Forests and from the Department of Mines, both at Elk Lake. Just who is at fault for this state of affairs, I don't know, but if you are interested in your Association and wish to renew your membership or enroll as a new member, get in touch with Stewart at once. If your name is in his hands by May 26th, you will be on the mailing list for the next news letter whether your membership card comes through or not.

How To Fight Poison Ivy

The North American Continent is the only area in the world infested with the three-leaved plant which brings discomfort and misery to millions of country dwellers and nature-loving city folk each year. Captain John Smith, one of the earliest English settlers on this continent, described poison ivy as the cause of a disease that lasts for two weeks.

This widespread plant, with its two cousins, poison oak and poison sumac, contains oils causing susceptible persons to break out in an itchy rash which can develop into spreading blisters and, eventually, into open, itchy sores.

Until recently, John Smith's report on the time it takes to get over a case of poison ivy was accurate. Nowadays, however, medical science has provided a drug which prevents the condition, and chemists have developed modern weed killers that help to eradicate the noxious plant.

The most important element in prevention of poison ivy is the knowledge that you have been exposed. Poison ivy has a characteristic three-leaf cluster, the surfaces of the leaves being smooth and glossy, or sometimes hairy. Doctors at Syracuse University recently conducted tests which showed that a preparation called Bristamin Lotion with Zirconium will completely prevent the irritating rash of poison ivy if the medication is applied within eight hours of exposure. Evidently the zirconium combines with the irritant in the plant oil in such a way as to render it harmless to the skin. The doctors say that if you don't get the Bristamin lotion on before the rash starts, the remedy will still help relieve the itching.

For patches of ivy growing in the yard or in places where children play, commercial sprays containing 2,4-D or a chemical called ammonium sulfamate are effective killers if used correctly. The sprays should be applied in hot clear weather during the second of poison ivy's two growth periods. This occurs when the leaves are fully formed. The spray must be applied generously. After two or three days the plants will wilt. At this time, using gloves or newspapers which are thrown away after use, you can dig and pull the plants up by the roots. It is potentially dangerous to burn poison ivy since the toxic oils are carried in the smoke and can cause severe poisoning if the smoke is inhaled. Care and a bit of planning are needed to avoid the misery of poison ivy, but those who have suffered from the disease are only too happy to be able to do something about this bane of vacationers. Thanks to weed chemicals and Bristamin Lotion with Zirconium poison ivy can now be considered preventable.
