"CIVIL DEFENCE VITAL" ---- LEDWELL

Dr. Ledwell At Arnprior Takes Civil Defence Course

Einstein once remarked that with the mass destruction of cities. Just how the ordinary man can cope with a third world war was fairly certain that the fourth is the major problem at the col- would be fought with bows and arrows.

At the Canadian College of Civil Defence at Arnprior, Ont. a staff of 100 hundred men and women are engaged full time in training people from all over Canada, so that in the event of another war, something will be saved from the holocaust.

Dr. J. S. Ledwell of Haileybury has just returned from a week's course at the college, and he admits that before he went he thought civic defence was just another government scheme, now he feels that it is vital.

Dr. Ledwell said that the idea behind the college is that key people in industry, fire departments, hospitals, and others interested in civil defence will be trained by the best brains available, and they in turn will be able to go out and train others.

In the nursing profession alone, 30,000 nurses and nursing aids been trained in civic defence by key people trained at the college.

Last week, when Dr. Ledwell arrived at Arnprior, he found 50 doctors, who were part of 120 men and women. There were special courses for St. John's Ambulance workers, Red Cross, firemen rescue squads and other specialist branches.

Discussions and lectures were held on the problems of mass evacuation, and the probable effects of modern atomic, chemical and biological warfare.

He said that the next war will probably see the use of nerve gasses, of which a single drop will kill in half a minute, biological and chemical warfare aimed at the nation's crops and livestock, as well as atomic warfare.

Dr. Ledwell said that the instructors at the college are drawn from the finest brains in the atomic energy field, as well as the armed services. While the civil defence college is generally under the direction of the army and the department of national defence, there are indications that civil defence may soon become a fourth branch of the armed services.

He said that he hopes to see active interest in civil defence taken in this area in the future, with definite steps taken towards forming a civil defence organization.

"Gloomy"-Says Leo "Lights Soon" Town

Leo Gough, president of Haileybury's Chamber of Commerce says the town's downtown area is dark and gloomy in the evenings. He stated that local merchants should do more to brighten up their stores in the evenings.

Cobalt and New Liskeard are way ahead of us," he stated.

Mr. Gough said the town should have the colored lights turned on in the streets. A call to the town office revealed that the Hydro will be asked to turn the lights on as soon as possible.

Truck Stalls On Hill Driver Avoids Crash

The skill of a truck driver was credited Tuesday with preventing a major smash in downtown Haileybury Tuesday.

The heavily laden tractor-trailer was proceeding south, and was half way up the Main street hill when the engine failed.

The air brakes are only working on this type of vehicle as long as the engine is running.

Police said that the driver ran to a telephone and called for assistance, while the reserve of air was leaking from the truck, and it started to slowly ease back down the hill.

Ollie Shaver from the Haileybury Garage rushed to the scene with blocks to put behind the wheels, while the truck driver, Bob Hollway, stopped another transport that was driving up the hill.

The second transport turned around, and its front bumper was chained to the front of the stalled vehicle, which was slowly backed down the hill.

The incident attracted a great many onlookers, most of whom stationed themselves within strategic distance of the liquor store, which would have been the most likely casualty if the truck had run away.

A large number of articles were given by the members for the assistance of needy children at Christmas, and the executive expressed thanks for the generous response. A lunch was served and enjoyed by all.

Fight T.B. With Christmas Seals

A former patient in a sanatorium sent this letter recently to the Temiskaming District Tuberculosis Association.

"Please find enclosed the sum of six dollars as payment for Christmas Seals, and a little bit over to help your good work. Wishing you every success in your drive, and the Seasons Greetings to all."

This is just one of the many letters received by the association, but many more donations are needed.

There are now 55 residents of Temiskaming District in Sanatoriums, and 12 were discovered last year. A total of 33 free clinics were held in Temiskaming last year with more than 2200 people receiving free x-rays.

In some cases individuals receive welfare and rehabilitation help during hospitalization, but a free mass survey is planned for Temiskaming district next year as a major step in the battle against T. B.

The dread disease can be cured if it is diagnosed in its early stages, but the only source of revenue the Temiskaming Tuberculosis Association has is from the sale of Christmas Seals.
