H. A. Day Dies Friday Resident Here Since 1906

A man who played an active role in the affairs of Haileybury Church, and he was always at the disposal of any church that lacked a clergyman.

Mr. Day collapsed at his home Wednesday, and was taken to Haileybury hospital.

Mr. Day was born in Toronto, but taken to England as a child by his parents. He returned to Canada as a young man, and after a short stay in Western Canada, he came to Haileybury in 1906.

Mr. Day was one of the pioneer newspapermen of the district, and general manager of the Haileyburian under C. C. Farr. Later he was manager of the Silver City News and then ran his own paper and printing shop. He called his weekly "The Monocle," as a wry comment on his loss of one eye.

His newspaper activities contributed to his interest in municipal affairs, and for a short time he was clerk of Buckle township, and then became clerk of Haileybury. At one time he was town clerk, publicity commissioner, school board secretary and part time newspaper reporter.

He joined the Northern Ontario Power Company in 1928, and continued on when the Ontario Hydro Electric Commission took over the private company, retiring six years ago.

Mr. Day returned to the municipal field in 1954, when he was elected to council. After one term he ran for mayor, defeating Arthur H. Cooke. He was acclaimed for a second term and only retired last year because of a heart ailment.

As a councillor and mayor he steadfastly advocated a policy of town improvement, while at the same time insisted that the council should rigidly adhere to the letter of the law. With his wealth of experience he was recognized by councils throughout the district as one of the leading authorities on municipal matters in the North.

Mayor Arthur H. Cooke said that he was speaking for the whole community when he said that Mr. Day's death was a severe blow to the town. "We often disagreed, but I always had a profound respect for his experience and knowledge," he added.

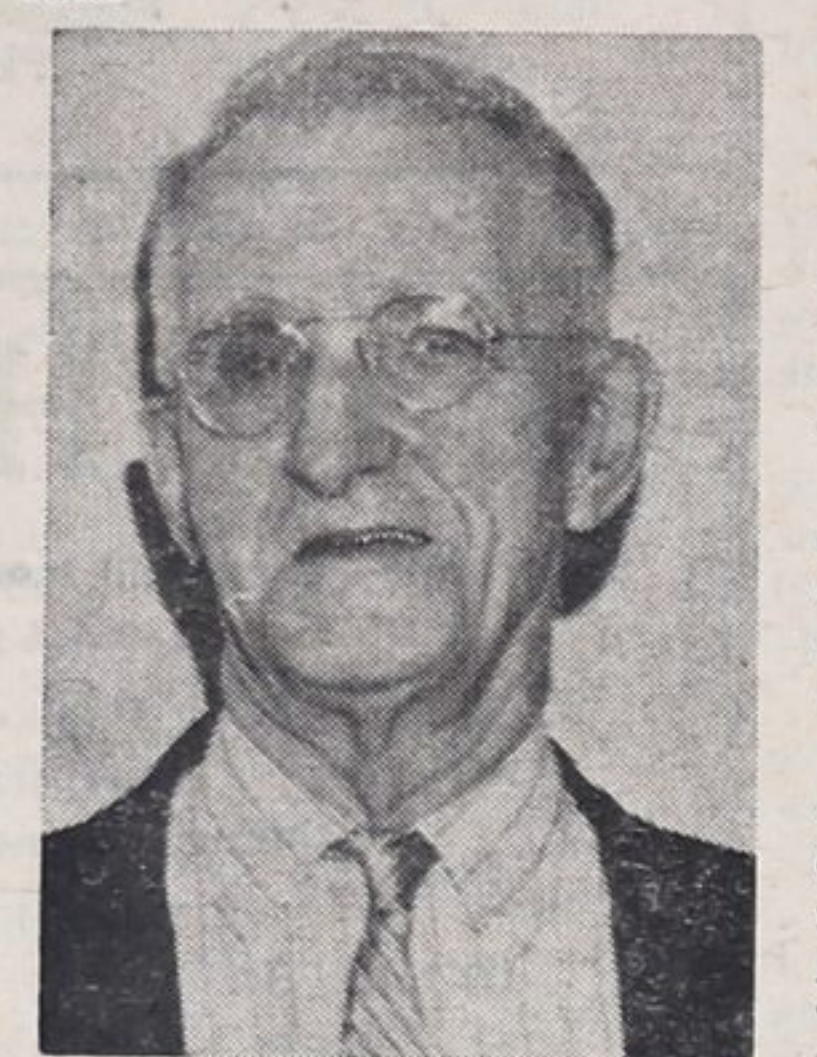

Mr. Day was an staunch Anglican all his life, and a licensed lay reader for 47 years. He was active in the rebuilding of the Anglican Church after the 1922 fire, and a life long supporter of the choir.

He was well known to Cobalt Anglicans, and he often took services at the Cobalt church. Old timers recall that it was a common occurrence for Mr. Day to walk along the rail tracks through a snow storm to take a service in North Cobalt, and then walk back again.

Canon C. E. Goodier, who officiated at the funeral services held Monday, recalled that Mr. Day's signature was on the service records of every Anglican Church in the district. He said that for six months Mr. Day held service at the New Liskeard Church, and he was always at the disposal of any church that lacked a clergyman.

"In his church work he was a perfect example of purely unselfish and humble service," he said.

He was an active Mason all his life and a past district deputy. Masonic rites were conducted from the Day residence Sunday afternoon.

The funeral service was held Monday from St. Paul's Anglican Church, with Canon C. E. Goodier officiating. Representatives of all local organizations attended, as well as the Mayor and members of the Haileybury council, and Councillor Eric E. Smith and J. Hunt.

The pallbearers were N. J. McAulay, T. E. Smith, A. E. Anderson, R. Irwin, Tom Cragg, and Herbert Briden and interment was at Mount Pleasant.

Mr. Day is survived by his wife Lily Bradshaw, two sons, Douglas and Leigh of Haileybury, and one daughter, Isabel, Mrs. Harry Hasset of Timmins. One brother Ernest, in England, and a sister, Mrs. William Neale, London, Ontario.

Muriel Smith's Art Well Received At Noranda Exhibition

Paintings by Mrs. Muriel Smith of Haileybury were one of the star attractions at the exhibition staged by the Noranda Arts and Crafts Guild last month.

The following is the report on Mrs. Smith's work, by the Rouyn-Noranda Press.

The exhibit featured as a "one man show" the water color, casein, oil painting and pen drawings of Mrs. Muriel Smith Haileybury.

Mrs. Smith's work depicted many scenes in and about the town of Cobalt, as well as several paintings of other favorite subjects, were well received by the local audience. Displaying exceptional talent in portraying the picturesque, tipsy turvy contours of the many old, familiar buildings in Cobalt, Mrs. Smith as well showed an aptitude for light and shadow; and for a soft brightness of color that made both her black and white and her colored landscapes charming and interesting. One felt that one could dwell contentedly in the company of any one of her drawings.
