Across the Kitchen Table

By Mrs. Mac.

The art of conversation is a wonderful thing, and anyone who has the ability to enter into a conversation and make it sparkle and glide instead of moving sluggishly with dull occasional rumbles, or bouncing along, making such a chattering racket that the main topic is lost by the wayside, has, indeed, a wonderful talent.

There is a great difference between the meaning of the word "converse", and the word "talk". The definition of converse is "to exchange ideas," and of talk, "to utter words."

I read an article recently which described a number of different types of talkers.

One was the boastful type, who always has something a little more expensive, whose friends are always more important, and who can do almost any task a little better than anyone else.

Another is the "thunder-stealer," who always knows (and tells) the ending of your story, and who has read that new book that you are trying to tell about. In fact she has read one newer than that.

A third type, like Tennyson's brook, "goes on forever." These are the people who use twenty words when five would have been quite enough. Then there are the ones who can only talk about "I, me and mine," and there are those who pounce on an innocent statement, like a cat on a mouse, and deliver a free lecture, willy-nilly, whether you want to listen or not.

But there is, too, the self-each branch in the north is attempting to secure new members in order to build up the provincial membership that suffered a decrease last year. If each branch in the province would secure even three new members it would mean that we would not only get back the members we have lost but would give us a good increase as well.

Isn't it wonderful to think that spring will soon be here even if we did have a grand winter? "Hope springs eternal in the human breast," and again I have ordered pansy and double petunia seed and will be soon planting them in a flat in the basement window as soon as they arrive.

My African violets have balked on me this year and I winter not one blossom have I had on them. They are strong and healthy looking but nary a bud appears. Oh, well, they may perk up soon.
