GIRL GUIDE NEWS

Commissioner Mrs. J. Giovannella and company leader Helen Dunning and twenty-one Guides attended the meeting on Monday night at the Community Hall. Guest members of the Ladies association of Girl Guides also attended the meeting to witness the enrollment of three of their new members who were Mrs. T. Browne, Mrs. J. Koza, Mrs. J. Armstrong, Mrs. Rita Jean Louis also attended and showed interest in becoming a Guide Leader.

The program opened with a quiet game "Kim" followed by Patrol formation when attendance was taken and fees collected. The Horseshoe was formed for the singing of "God Save the Queen" followed by the Guide Prayer and Promise.

The guests were then introduced and welcomed by commissioner Giovannella and the three ladies to be enrolled took their positions at the head of the Horseshoe.

After making their promise they were presented with membership pins. President of the Ladies association Mrs. Shaw assisted commissioner Giovannella. Announcements were then made and Guides went to Patrol corners after pocket inspection.

Their Patrol boxes were checked, and some tests passed before taps and dismissal.

After the Guide meeting the Leaders accompanied the visitors to Mrs. R. Latimore's home for the October L.A. session. Mrs.

Shaw chaired the meeting. The ladies discussed Guide Camps. Those who had attended camps at Sesekinika and Doe Lake Camp and who had visited the World Guide Camp gave interesting reports. Mrs. Giovannella reviewed what had been accomplished by the local company to date. Plans for a mother and daughter banquet were discussed. The hostess Mrs. Latimore assisted by her sister Mrs. E. E. Smith served supper. In the past ten years about 300,000 persons have emigrated from Canada to the United States.

Medical Milestones

When is a Discovery Useful?

When a scientist discovers something new, people are inclined to ask: What is this discovery good for? What is its practical value? More often than not, these questions cannot be answered or, at least, not right away. For many discoveries are of no immediate use whatever until - sometimes due to a lucky accident - they become important in a way which nobody could foresee.

This is particularly true in medicine. Isoniazid, for instance, today one of the most useful drugs in the treatment of tuberculosis, was first produced in 1912. But only a few years ago, it was found that this chemical could fight one of man's worst plagues, Penicillin, the first of the antibiotics, which opened an entirely new era in medicine, was known for over ten years before any attempt was made to exploit its tremendous germ-killing ability.

Something similar happened in the case of the recently developed oral anti-diabetic drugs, the most effective of which is called Orinase. It was in 1942 that a French physician, Dr. Marcel Janbon, in treating patients suffering from typhoid fever with a new sulfa drug, observed unusual reactions in some cases. He consulted his colleague, Prof. Auguste Loubatières, a pathologist, and his research established beyond doubt that certain sulfa drugs were capable of lowering the blood sugar in diabetics.

However, for ten years the scientific world paid little attention to Loubatières' work and only in 1952 was the first attempt made to exploit the anti-diabetic effect of sulfa drugs. Fortunately, for the many diabetics who would like to do away with their inconvenient and often painful insulin injections, progress in this field was quite fast from there on. In 1954 a compound was developed in Germany which was closely related to the sulfa drugs but did not have their germ-killing power. On the other hand, the same drug - now called Orinase - proved in trials on thousands of patients that it would safely and effectively help the majority of diabetics to control their disease, with only very minor side effects.

Today, only a few years later, Orinase is available in many countries, including Canada, where it is produced by Hoechst Pharmaceuticals of Montreal. Before being placed on the market, Orinase was tested by 1700 Canadian and U.S. physicians on about 20,000 patients for periods up to 1 1/2 years. This makes it one of the most carefully evaluated drugs in the history of modern medical research.
