At a time when it is difficult to see any future that doesn't include the loss of at least 40 per cent of the North American population from Russian hydrogen bombs, we feel that the following extracts from a sermon by The Very Reverend J. O. Anderson, D.D., Dean of Ottawa, are well worth printing.

If we are to speak, let it be clearly and without temporizing, so that what is said today will not be changed by every political wind that may blow tomorrow.

We here in this great land should indeed thank God for the responsibilities the days have brought—the responsibility of being Canadian. But let us never forget that the sovereignty of God extends not only over pryer and worship, but over all our activities and institutions, and to Him one day we will be called to render an accounting.

It was when Job had lost health, property and all that he had, when his sons were killed and his friends invited him to despair that he said: "The Lord gave and the Lord hath taken away, blessed be the name of the Lord."

It was when St. Paul, was in danger from false friends as well as enemies, weary, beaten and facing shipwreck that he "thanked God and took courage."

Martin Rinkhart in Eilenburg in the midst of starving and dying refugees, supplies exhausted and hope fled was prompted to write the hymn we sing today: "Now thank we all our God, with hearts and hands and voices."

Problems, difficulties, tensions, fears, our world and our lives are full of them. Yet through it all we hear these words "In everything give thanks, for this is the will of God in Christ Jesus for you."

There never was a time with such possibilities for good or evil than these strange and exciting days. Knowledge and ability outstrip even the imagination. Moral values are being challenged as never before.

We were caught between two opposing ideas. There are those who prevent words and call slavery freedom—and count individuals as incidental pawns in the achievement of ever greater glories both political and economic for the state.

On the other hand there are those whose claim of freedom for the individual has ended in license and frustration, and the worst case of materialism and selfishness possible.

It is in this setting of conflict and confusion for the souls of men that we must work out our own salvation—a process most dislike and many will not face. Yet there is no other way to be saved or to save our world.

It is a great time to be alive and as we thank God for these difficulties we might well echo the words of Rupert Brooke: "Now God be thankful who has matched us with His hour..."

Above all let us thank God for our opportunities and pray that we may be equal to them. A simple story will illustrate what I mean. Outside a small but beautiful bungalow one day the owner was talking with a friend who was congratulating him on his lovely home he had built. "It is nice," he replied, "but it is far too small. After the war when we built it, he said, we really wanted a much larger place, but we were afraid we could not manage it. Now we know we could have. We let our fears rather than our needs or our hopes, dictate the size and now we will always regret it."

Charles Lamb once said: "Not many sounds in life exceed in interest a knock at the door." Let us thank God for the opportunities for greatness that are knocking at our doors today and not let their smallness of vision, lack of confidence, or fears for the future keep us back from achieving those things God would have us do.

"The timid sailors veer and tack, and hug the sheltering lee; But those who bring the wide world back, put boldly out to sea!"

Although the Bible says that "Pride goeth before a fall," the proper kind of pride is an asset and is necessary, if both private and public life is to be what it should be.

If people do not take pride in doing their work well, in being honest and decent in their daily lives, and in contributing to the advancement of their communities then indeed conditions in their homes and communities will deteriorate to the point where no one can be proud of anything.

Civic officials and public spirited organizations can do much to foster pride in a well-kept town and in Haileybury we have seen an example of this in the benches that have been placed in parks and other places for the use of the townspeople, but appreciation of this service seems to be sadly lacking in some people, as some of the benches have been deliberately smashed.

Both parent and police action is indicated in cases like this. Youngsters should be taught that destruction of this sort will meet with speedy and just punishment, and older persons with the type of mentality that condones deliberate and malicious, or drunken, damage, to property not their own, should be given an opportunity to think the matter over in a place where there is no breakable furniture.

But, as the old saying goes, "First catch your hare."

SCOUT NEWS

Parents should get to know what Scouting is doing for their boys, how Scouting operates, what costs are involved, and what certain hitherto "Mysterious" terms in Scouting really mean.

There was an anxious mother who wanted to know why her son, was being "Investigated" Actually he was about to be "Invested".

Well, tonight, is the night for parents and friends to find out something about the youngsters Cub and Scouting activities. "Going up" ceremonies will be held in the School Auditorium, at 8:00 p.m. and parents are invited to attend.

All the Cubs, Scouts, Leaders, and the local advisory committee will be on hand. Its a grand opportunity for the parents and the public generally to "Investigate" the whole organization

BROWNIES MEET

The Second Haileybury Brownie Pack held their meeting Monday, November 4th. Mrs. George Lemay Brown Owl and Mrs. J. White were in charge. They were pleased to welcome Mrs. J. Hargrave and Miss Germaine Charbonneau to assist them.

Two new members Esther Churchill and Judy Hurst were welcomed into the Pack by Brown Owl.

The Pack divided into groups and worked as follows: Tweenies—With Mrs. J. White Brownies—Working on their Golden Bar with Mrs. Lemay and Mrs. Hargrave

bonneau.

All Brownies then practised marching in readiness for the Remembrance Day Parade Monday, 11th, in which they will take part.

The meeting closed with the Brownie Prayer and Taps.

As the second Haileybury Pack has now the required number of members no new ones will be accepted at present.

C. W. L. MEET

Mrs. Donegan presided over the C.W.L. meeting in the Parish Hall, Tuesday, evening. There were about thirty members present. The minutes were read by Mrs. V. St. Louis and the treasurer's report given by Mrs. J. Blair.

A letter of thanks was received ed from Raymond Lamothe, for the award received from C.W.L. for general efficiency.

Mrs. Donegan gave a report from the Civil Defence Council and it was decided that a committee will be chosen for this Civil Defence work.

Plans really start to take shape when savings start to grow. One way to make sure you'll have money when you need it is to make regular deposits in your bank account. At first it may not be easy to stick faithfully to your savings program. But as your dollars build up you'll find yourself facing the future with greater confidence, making plans with new assurance that you'll be able to carry them out. Use a chartered bank to keep your savings safe and growing. You will always be glad you did.
