THE QUEEN'S MESSAGE

In the United Kingdom this year for the first time Her Majesty the Queen will broadcast her Christmas message on television as well as on radio, speaking from her home at Sandringham in Norfolk. The message will go simultaneously by radio to all parts of the world and will be relayed in Canada on the C.B.C., radio and T.V. networks, and will be heard on all stations. On CBC-TV, still photographs will be on the screen while Her Majesty is speaking.

It is 25 years since the first Christmas Day message by the Sovereign was broadcast by King George V, in 1932. The messages have been heard every Christmas since then except in 1936 (the year of the Abdication) and in 1938. In 1951, when King George VI was ill, the broadcast was recorded.

PRELUDE TO THE QUEEN For the period immediately preceding the Queen's message the B.B.C. has prepared, for radio, another of the traditional Christmas Day programs from around the Commonwealth and, for television, a film entitled "Prelude to the Queen." The Commonwealth radio show will as in years past, occupy the hour from 9.00 to 10.00 a.m., just before the Queen speaks.

Gordon Sinclair is probably Canada's best known newspaper personality. There is hardly an adult who has not read his newspaper articles or heard his voice on CBC radio or television. And few can bear Sinclair with equanimity; one either dislikes him or admires him. The little gaffer here is obviously one of the latter.

senger has long been a December 25th tradition on the Trans-Canada network and, this year perhaps more than ever, listeners map appreciate an opportunity to hear from those who are living in the North and helping to develop it. The program will be from 11.00 to midnight and will include a description of the world's most northernmost curling rink at Resolute Bay; interviews with residents of Aklavick; an explanation of how northern radio stations serve their communities, and
