ODDS AND ENDS

Something to watch for this spring—men's shirts of a blend of "Terylene" and cotton. The first of their kind in Canada.

With a fused or soft collar, these shirts will combine the and-wear qualities of the man-made fibre with the softness and absorbency of cotton. They'll look as if they're made of fine broadcloth, but they'll seldom, if ever, need ironing.

For the women whose husband likes the appearance of cotton shirts, this blend of per cent "Terylene" with 35 per cent cotton will save many a weary hour at the ironing board.

Silly And Unnecessary

At last count there were approximately 4.5 million motor vehicles in Canada, and in most provinces between now and spring nearly all of them will have to have their license plates changed.

Why this silly and unnecessary business of yearly changing plates should be continued, says The Financial Post, no one seems to know. In some places the manufacture of the plates provide work for inmates of reformatories, but surely there are other and more useful jobs for these non-paying guests of the state.

Permanent plates would not only save a lot of wear and tear on fingers and tempers but they would be neater, easier to remember and most important of all, if they were really attached permanently, they would make cars far more theft-proof.

LIVE BETTER ELECTRICALLY

The splendid response of the local utility commissions has been outstanding. Many orders for literature and other promotional aids have been received with the result that large quantities of material will be distributed during N.E.W. In this regard it is regrettable that a number of orders had to be refused due to insufficient time to obtain the material from the U.S.

Through the efforts of the local utilities many newspapers will carry municipal proclamations keynoting National Electrical Week; many industry group ads will appear; talks on electricity and its importance in our way of living will be given to service clubs, home and school associations and other social groups; radio and television shows and interviews have been arranged; in fact it is doubtful if any means of getting the story across has been overlooked.

Such outstanding co-operation has been shown by many utilities and industry groups that it would be unfair to single out any by name, however, it is still unfortunate fact that there are some who cannot see the necessity to advertise their product.

The members of the organizational committees who have tried to make N.E.W., an outstanding success wish to thank everyone for their excellent support and co-operation. It has been an effort which will result in bringing to the people of Ontario the benefits of Living Better—Electrically.
