Mining Engineer Dies

Funeral services were held on Tuesday afternoon at St. John's Anglican Church for Arthur A. Cole, well-known in northern mining circles. Mr. Cole was in his 88th year. Canon H. A. Sims officiated.

Mr. Cole died in Stouffville on Sunday, October 25. He is survived by one son, Eric and a daughter, Mrs. Ogilvie of Stouffville.

The veteran mining engineer was born in Montreal in 1871, and received his B.Sc. and M. A. degrees from McGill University. During his undergraduate vacations he served with the Geological Survey of Canada.

He also assisted in the first survey of Temagami and completed the survey of a lumber road from Sharpe Lake to Haileybury when the town boasted a few tar-paper shacks.

Before silver was discovered at Cobalt, Mr. Cole had completed a survey of the lakes around that area which led him to a point less than a mile from the claims that became one of Cobalt's biggest producing mines.

In 1906 Mr. Cole was appointed mining engineer to the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway for which he administered the leases of the railway's mining properties.

As mining developed northward his activities extended into the new territories and was intimately connected with the extension of railway facilities to Porcupine, Kirkland Lake and Noranda.

He settled in New Liskeard when it was a town of little importance compared to that of other towns around because it had good water and was free from typhoid prevalent in other centres.

From that centre he worked, and there is no other person connected with the railway who had more to do with the opening of the north. His O.K. was all that was needed to bring the railway in, and the fortunes that have been taken from the areas gives some indication of soundness of his judgment.

Mr. Cole was a modest man, giving credit to many others, but there are men who knew his worth and who say that when the history of the north is written the name of Arthur Cole will loom as large as any other.

Along with his other activities, Mr. Cole had a large place in his heart for the New Liskeard Library and under his guidance that centre expanded to become one of the best in the north.

The Provincial Department of Mines was represented at the funeral by S. J. Mason, Dr. Robert Thompson, District Geologist and Claude O'Shaughnessy of Cobalt.

Rotarians Plan Peanut Blitz

Lorne Charbonneau was the special speaker at the Haileybury Rotary Club meeting Monday evening. Taking as his subject "The Jewellery Business," Mr. Charbonneau brought out many interesting facts concerning many aspects of this career, stressing the art of watch-making in particular. He told his listeners that in Switzerland, watchmaking is a nationalized industry, with skills passed on from father to son.

Many of the intricate parts of the watches for which the Swiss are famous, are made in the homes and then assembled in a central shop. He also stated that at one time, the Swiss government would not allow trained watchmakers to migrate from the country.

Plans were made for the coming Peanut Blitz which Rotarians are sponsoring to raise money to purchase new equipment for the Rotary Club park.

A new feature of the meeting now is a draw with each Rotarian Contributing twenty-five cents. When the winning name is drawn, the amount of the draw is split between the Club funds and the wife of the winner. If he is not present, a letter is sent to his wife advising her of the amount she would have won had her husband attended the meeting. This week's winner was Jack Lecky, who returned the win to the fund.
