amount of the warm water from the drainage area in the southern tip of James Bay in close proximity to the mouth of the Moose River can be counted upon to have a detrimental effect upon the spring breakup of the ice in that area. It may also be the cause of attracting colder water from the north to replace the amount no longer forthcoming from the Harricana River. These factors would have a damaging effect on the port at Moosonee. As a by-product of the scheme it is suggested that a barge canal could be constructed along the reversed river to carry the James Bay iron ores to the Lake Erie steel plants. The carriage of low grade commodities by water is to be commended, but the sinuosity of parts of the route, the speed of the current, the multiplicity of the locks need to carry the canal over the watershed and the necessity of transshipment at both ends of the canal make the proposal of dubious benefit.

More to the point would be the canalization of the rivers of the Moose River Basin. The Hydro-Electric generating projects underway on these rivers, by regulating the flow of the stream, would be at a constant temperature during fermentation.

Mr. Zorzi made the wine for his own use from Canadian and imported grapes.

FOLKESTONE, England — The chain of office worn by the mayor of this Kent seaport contains 50 gold links and one brass link. The links are added by each mayor from his own pocket. Suggestions have been made that the brass link should be taken out but the council says the mayor who put it on probably could not afford a gold one.

TOKYO — Radio Peiping reports more than 300 women are being trained as taxi drivers in the Communist Chinese capital, where women also work as bus and trolley drivers. Peiping already has 170 licensed women cab drivers.

LITTLE GADDESTON, England — A party of amateur historians from this Hertfordshire village have discovered 500 miles of unmapped Roman roads in the Midlands.

SAN FRANCISCO — Four sailors, survivors of seven starving weeks on the Pacific, were kissed and hugged by a Soviet embassy officer on their arrival in San Francisco. The seamen were landed by helicopter from the aircraft carrier U.S.S. Kearsarge.

cently at the Cincinnati Zoo. Zoo officials said it was only the third rhino ever conceived in captivity in the United States.

GLANTEGFAN, Wales — A blind British farmer says he pilots a tractor around his 87 acres by radar.

Albert Newman, a 40-year-old former engineer who lost his sight 13 years ago, said he built his radar set with spare pieces of portable radios for about £25.

The set bounces a beam from the tractor to two aerials at either end of his field. A return signal is picked up by Newman wearing earphones.

By listening to the pitch of the signal, Newman can drive in a straight line and knows when to turn.

There's one hitch in the ingenious farmer's plan, however. He doesn't own a tractor and has to borrow one from a neighbor.

But Newman is confident that "having come so far I'll get a tractor of my own one day."

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Roger Skaggs, blind in his left eye for eight of his 13 years, suddenly regained his sight while in his sixth-grade class. Roger said he reached for a textbook the other day and suddenly his eye "popped". The eye had been damaged by an exploding dynamite cap.

HARRISONBURG, Va. — There won't be any operation for Constance. She coughed up the goods.

Constance, seven-month-old miniature French poodle who likes to eat rocks, got in trouble last month when she swallowed engagement and wedding rings valued at $1,200.

X-rays ascertained the location of the loot.

A five-week waiting period prescribed by the American Veterinarian Association was drawing to a close, and owner Mrs. George D. Conrad had just about decided Constance would have to undergo an operation.

Then Constance coughed.

ASHBURTON, N.Z. — The driver of a factory locomotive here brought it to a stop and jumped down, but his overalls caught the throttle and turned it on. The engine roared through the yards and crashed through the buffers on to a road before the driver, trying to catch up on a bicycle, could scramble back on.

SUDBURY — Joseph Zorzi has written off 150 gallons of homemade wine, worth about $300, which was submerged when a creek overflowed and flooded his basement.

He found after pumping out five feet of water with a pump borrowed from Coniston council that the water had seeped into the kegs. Even if the kegs had remained water-tight, however, the cold water would probably have spoiled the wine, which has to be kept of assistance in this undertaking. The canals need not be constructed along the whole length of the streams but limited lengths could be utilized to convey raw materials to a convenient site for processing. The end products being transported out of the area by rail or road. Canals are often considered as an outmoded means of transportation, but it must be remembered that it was the Barge Canal System of New York State which by funneling the traffic to and from the middle west via New York Harbour, enabled that port to outstrip its rivals and emerge as one of the largest seaports in the world. In the twentieth century many countries have taken a second look at their canals and realized that they offer the cheapest means of transporting bulk commodities, and the writer

NEW YORK — Remote control television is a lazy man's delight.

Without stirring from his easy chair, he pushes a button and the TV set across the room changes channels. Another jab lowers the sound or shuts off the set.

But gremlins — those invisible imps that sometimes heckle scientific marvels — have been causing some mischief.

For example, a housewife in the U.S. Midwest summoned a telephone repairman and told him: "Whenever the phone rings our remote TV shuts off. My husband wants you to fix it so that when the bell rings the set won't shut off—just lower its volume.

Amazingly the repairman did just that after experimenting several hours with various pitched bell-rings.

Edward McBride came up against a wild TV set while flat on his back in a Long Island hospital. One day McBride decided to freshen his hospital room with a can of air deodorant, but when he squeezed the button on the can, his remote TV set changed channels.

The can apparently emitted a high frequency squeak that not only worked on his receiver, but on 10 others in the hospital.

One TV repairman recalls such sets sometimes have operated "on the remotest and craziest of sounds". The models would be off and running if they received signals from:

Chirping canaries, barking dogs, crying babies, wailing sirens, low flying planes or ringing doorbells.

LONDON — British marathon walker Barbara Moore has packed 16 pairs of shoes in preparation for sailing to-day to make a coast-to-coast walk in the United States.

BRISTOL, England — A West Country man who emigrated to Canada more than 50 years ago has written to a Somerset farmer to apologize for stealing apples as a schoolboy.

A. A. Gardiner of St. Lambert, Que., wrote to J. C. Osborne, who farms at Backwell near Bristol, to say that he owes the Osborne family an apology for taking the apples from an orchard owned by Osborne's grandfather.

Gardiner, 63, left Backwell for Canada at the age of 21. His letter indicates he was reminded of his childhood misdemeanor on reading a West Country newspaper about the "bless the plow" ceremony at Backwell.
