

Across the Kitchen Table

By MRS. MAC

Reading some old recipes recently, that were rich in butter, cream and eggs, I was reminded of my days on the farm when I churned my own butter, used oodles of thick, rich cream for baking and dressing lettuce salad, and eggs by the dozen, (and believe it or not, my waistline stayed at 24 inches, Oh, good old days!) It was good to have those things in abundance, though it was not always possible to have fruit and other things that provide a welcome variety in meals.

But my blood used to boil then, as now, when people who lived in town and never bothered with a garden but did have a car, electric washing machines, fridges and lights, would come and tell me how "lucky" I was to have my own vegetables, butter and cream, without having to pay for them!

The Lord didn't always give me patience to meekly smile and agree with them, especially if I had just finished milking several cows that I had first chased all over a forty acre bush pasture to find and bring home, or if I had just come in from a stint of hoeing in a clay loam garden. Even now, I have several little nicks bitten in my tongue, for so often, as I work in my garden, among my flowers or at the lawn, I am asked by the children who flock around (to help me by getting in my way and stepping on my newly set out seedlings) for some flowers to take to their teachers, because "Mummy doesn't like working in a garden and she has not time anyway." All the "Mummies" are young and healthy and do not work outside their homes. However, it doesn't hurt my tongue to be nipped a few times and the joy I get out of my garden and flowers far exceeds any weariness I feel, and I think I have, through the years, given pleasure to a good many people by sharing my blossoms with them.

One day last week, I had occasion to walk up past the Armouries when a young man was mowing the lawn with a power mower. An elderly man was sitting on the steps reading a newspaper and every time the man with mower came past him, he would slow down to peer over his shoulder at the headlines. It was one way of catching up on the news.

Empire Day Marked At Haileybury PS

The pupils of Grade five of the Haileybury Public School, under the direction of their teacher, Mrs. R. Stevenson, and Mrs. J. S. Weir, provided an excellent Empire Day program on Thursday afternoon, for the teachers and other pupils of the school.

The program consisted of a play with an Empire theme, depicting Canada as a part of a great commonwealth, a number of choruses, including Rule Britannia, The Maple Leaf Forever, and O Canada.

Harold Kenty gave a solo, "Jacques Cartier" and when O

Canada was sung, Esther Churchill sang the last verse as a solo.

The program was held in the auditorium of the school which had been suitably decorated with flags and bunting by the pupils assisted by Mrs. Stevenson.

News from the Evelyn Shoppe

With all the co-ordinates shown this season, we think "Wardrobe Magic" is a good word to apply to the many versatile costumes, such as a two piece suit with a three-quarter coat, one side gives you a plain sports outfit and reversed, it gives you a dressy cotton knit costume. Or one of the co-ordinate knits by Miss Sun Valley. Buy one top or two, one sleeveless and one with short sleeves, to inter-change with matching skirt, slacks and Jamaica shorts. You could circle the globe with these uncrushable knits and be well-dressed at all times, without a wrinkle.

The "Gero of Paris" knits, just arrived at Evelyn's, you will love! A coat and dress in violet shade wool is eye-catching. The coat, fully lined, can be worn over any summer frock as well. Jackets in wool, knit in an interesting weave, replace the old shortie coat. For those whose only love is a sheath dress, Gero has made up a mercerized cotton sheath with an unusual design. We like the price, too, $16.95.

The "Magic" is to learn to dress to suit your personality. Are you the feminine, classic or sophisticated type? Know your type and dress accordingly. You will find wardrobe magic at Evelyn's, where you are always welcome, whether buying or just browsing.

Do not miss looking at Evelyn's Special rack where you will find many interesting values. Just now, coats and suits are being cleared to make room for summer sportswear. We think a lemon yellow Hand Woven Scotia Craft coat, regular $59.95, now $32.50, is a terrific buy, or an all-weather coat in Egyptian poplin, was $35.00, now $14.95, and a suit in black Blin a' Blin by Gordon, regular $79.95, for $39.95 and many others. This is high quality merchandise and bargain prices.
