Sudbury and Kenora, which are represented by Liberal members. They are getting their share of government projects and work.

"The reason is that these Liberal members get up and fight for their people. They cannot be silenced by a leader who doesn't want his government criticized by someone in his own party."

Further, it is generally agreed the Liberals will form the next government after the election in two years time. It would be of benefit to this riding to have a Liberal member in the Legislature now so that he can gain the experience and contacts needed for him to help carry out an effective program for this riding."

Mr. Plaunt said the people of Temiskaming were getting nothing from the government but promises, promises which happened to be made at election time but were never carried out after the government had been returned. A flood of empty promises could be expected in the last days of the campaign, he said. He said that a committee set up by the government to report and study on such important matters to the North as transportation and forestry have been branded by Chambers of Commerce and municipalities as useless.

In no case did the committee present any objective analysis nor did they come up with any projection towards solution. One reason is that no person from Northern Ontario was appointed to the committee.

Mr. Plaunt said the north faced a two-pronged problem: (1) the need for new industry and (2) immediate government help to halt the trend of industry closing up and moving out of Northern Ontario.

"Can anyone say with sincerity that the Conservative government has made a sincere, earnest effort to meet these problems which mean so much to the future of the people of Temiskaming?" Mr. Plaunt asked.

The Liberal Party is pledged to the formation of a Department of Northern Development which will look after the needs and wishes of the north. The deputy minister would have his office in the north, not in Toronto, where he can see and meet problems first-hand.

"It is time the people of Temiskaming and northern areas stopped paying a penalty because they do not live in Southern Ontario," Mr. Plaunt said.

Mr. Plaunt has also levelled strong criticism against the C.C.F. party. He called it a ghost party that will be dead in a few months.

"My C.C.F. opponent has promised many things," Mr. Plaunt said, "but why didn't he do the things he has promised when he served his three terms in the Legislature?"

"Why didn't he run in the last general election? Why has he suddenly blossomed forth as a candidate once again? Doesn't he like the Toronto atmosphere?"

Mr. Plaunt emphasized that he knew the problems of the riding first hand because of his deep roots here.

"I am making no wild promises," he said. "What I have said I will be able to do."

Tonight Mr. Plaunt will speak at a meeting in New Liskeard at the Community Hall. Farquhar Oliver, M.P.P., distinguished orator, and Mrs. Jean Brown, president of the Ontario Liberal Women's Federation, will also speak.

On Friday night, Mr. Plaunt and Hon. Paul Martin, M.P., one of Canada's most distinguished men, will speak in Englehart at the High School Auditorium.

On Saturday night, Mr. Plaunt will be seen on television over CFCL-TV at 6:30 o'clock, in a 15-minute telecast.

Monday night, Mr. Plaunt and O. J. Godin, M.P., will speak in Belle Vallee at the Notre Dame de Bon Secours Church auditorium.

On Tuesday night, Mr. Plaunt and J. H. Habel, M.P., will speak at Earlton at the St. Jean Baptiste Church hall.

In the current year Ottawa estimates it will collect $795 million in sales tax on goods manufactured in Canada.

It is believed that Monique piled some boxes on top of each other, and then climbed up to reach the medicine. The pills are said to be small, and candy coated.

Dr. H. A. Dunning of Cobalt attended the child at hospital, but was unable to save her life.

She is survived by one sister and three brothers. They are, Loraine, 17; Roger, 16; Rheal, 12; and Aime, eight years.

ly receiving next to nothing from the Conservatives."

"Their claim is that the Department of Education has a pinch-penny policy for Temiskaming educational grants is greeted with derision by all informed persons," said Mr. Hoffman, "and municipalities receiving as high as 93 per cent assistance for schools wonder just how stupid these politicians think they are."

"There is another angle to this promise of 100 per cent support for schools," pointed out Mr. Hoffman. "Immediately any government starts to pay 100 per cent of school costs, it will mean the wiping out of all local school boards, and the substitution of complete control from Queen's Park. The Conservative government thinks that you would rather pay a small percentage of the costs of education in your own municipality, and continue to have the complete say as to who will educate your children, and what they will be taught."

Still speaking of education, Mr. Hoffman said, "I notice that one party, in their cartoon campaign, has tucked the 'School for Retarded Children' in their bag of election tricks."

"My position on this matter is that the school should be built in the best possible location for the children, and the most convenient for the parents who will be visiting them."

"I resent any attempt to make a political issue of this matter, and would like to point out that your own Chamber of Commerce has made an able presentation to the Minister of Health, outlining the advantages of placing the school here. The Chamber of Commerce delegation told last week of the fair hearing they were given, and said they came away from Toronto satisfied that if this area is the best possible place for the school it will be built here."

Again and again Mr. Hoffman stressed the point that other parties are fighting a prestige battle for their federal and provincial parties. "They hope to prove that their parties are on the march," he said, "but what good will that do you, if the march is away from Temiskaming."

"I don't have to fight for the prestige of the Conservatives, they have already won it with able legislation, and a high regard for individual and municipal rights," said Mr. Hoffman, "and all I want is the opportunity to go to Queen's Park and fight for Temiskaming."

CCF

ing up some rank-and-file Liberal support. At the Dack hall last night Mr. Taylor said "genuine Liberals are supporting the CCF in this campaign out of disgust with the official organization which in 1955 stood aside so that the Conservatives would win."

While clubbing the Liberals as nothing but 'me-too' Tories, the CCF has been knocking hard at the Conservative government.

In a speech at the Canadian Legion hall in Cobalt, Reg Gisborn, CCF member for Wentworth East, charged that the Conservatives are getting ready to impose a provincial sales tax. He suggested that the government should impose heavier burdens on the forest industry, which he charged, pays back hardly enough to support the government departments that assist it.

He claimed that the Ontario mining industry last year produced some $960 million dollars, but that taxes paid by the industry to the province was only about 12 million.

Tipplers would also pay more, or at least the brewing industry would under the CCF. Mr. Gisborn said that in the last fiscal year the government got some 76 million out of the brewing industry, but more could be raised.

Mr. Gisborn is also in favor of higher corporation taxes. He said that a one per cent increase would bring in about $17 million; and a three per cent increase about $50 million.

"These sources must be explored before we take any more out of the pockets of those now hard hit, the wage earner and farmer," he remarked.

Biggest gun in the provincial CCF battery, provincial leader Donald C. MacDonald is now in the riding. He started his tour,
