

Across the Kitchen Table

BY MRS. MAC

If you had one whole month to do just exactly as you wished, what would you do? Do you ever stop to consider the day, or the week, or the month that has just passed, and take a long, unbiased look at what you did during that time? Picture one of your friends in your own place and see what you would think of her accomplishments.

Did you take time to look at a budding flower, or a funny bug and explain their mysteries to your children, or did you "Uh-huh, they're pretty, now run along, Mom's busy?" Or did you put off that visit to the old couple down the street who haven't many friends and welcome a bit of company? Or forget to write that note of sympathy to the friend who had lost her mother? Oh, I know it takes a lot of time to keep your house tidy and dusted, the curtains and floors spotless, (friends might drop in unexpectedly). But just remember that those are the unimportant things, compared to the memories of moments shared with your children or friends who really mean something to you. People who peer in the corners for cobwebs and look for dust on your furniture and floors are not true friends and should only be pitied because they are certainly not getting the enjoyment out of life that they should be. I can remember as a child, hearing it said of an old lady who lived near us that "you could eat off her floor". Well, who wants to eat off a floor, I'd rather eat off a table and my memories of her are of a dour, cranky old woman who couldn't be happy if there was a speck of dirt on her precious floors or any place else for that matter. The floors will be here and so will the dust long after we are gone, so let's concentrate on leaving a few memories that will be happy ones of ourselves, rather than our clean shining floors. (Don't think that I don't appreciate clean floors and shining furniture, I do, but not as the be-all and end-all of life.) "Each generation gives of its best and passes on, leaving as monuments, the memories of its words and deeds. Whether our monuments will be as shining white marble or the dull grey of shale, depends on us, and us alone. Let us so live, that the memories of our lives and deeds will be as shining stars in a dark sky."

The following little article from the Salvation Army War Cry speaks for itself:

Govern the Tongue

It takes a man about two years to learn to talk and about sixty to keep his mouth closed. Our silence must be governed, as well as our talking. The tongue should not be free to talk lightly at the slightest provocation.

In some places one sees the sign, "Watch your step". In one office is the admonition, "Watch your language". Our movement in modern society is as dangerous as walking down a dark stairway or up a treacherous, uncertain

News from the Evelyn Shoppe

Fashion's critics give the nod to summer white, with good notices, too, for flurries of pink, from pale to deep hot pinks.

Evelyn is always ready with the first in new fashions so you will find white sheaths or full skirted styles in washable cottons. One costume we like has a white sheath dress, with cap sleeves, boat neck line and full length tailored coat. This is in a dull jacquard weave, most practical, as the coat can be worn over any dress. Another white Arnel sleeveless dress has low neckline and pleated skirt and is topped by a candy pink jacket, with a round collarless neckline, making a versatile two-in-one costume. Then a full-skirted black and white eyelet cotton, a most attractive dress by Jack Poslun, and others in dacron in such delectable shades as pink, mint and banana. A black eyelet sheath with shoe string straps has an air of sophistication and there are many delightful sleeveless dresses by Betty Barclay. Remember, we have an excellent selection of dresses in sizes 16, 18, and 20, just in, as well as half sizes from 12½ to 26½.

We have paisley patterned cotton skirts up to size 42, also bathing suits and slacks. You will love the carnival colors in our sports wear. These off-beat colors will give you a feeling of gaiety and color, color, everywhere. "Sea Leg Waders", (three-quarter length slims) in turquoise, lime, plain and striped, with matching or contrasting tops. You are assured of finding just the right thing from our varied collection of sportswear in Jantzen, Miss Sun Valley, and other well-known makers.

There is nothing more practical for golf, or any sport, than the culotte, that gives the freedom of movement of shorts, but looks like a pleated skirt. Let's make the most of summer, be prepared and enjoy it.

See you at Evelyn's.

Scotch Heather

In the valleys below
Are the loveliest smells
Where Scotch heather grows.

In the light wind it blows;
Seems to ring like church-bells
In the valleys below.

It was long, long ago
We played in the dells
Where Scotch heather grows.

And now we're old, so . . .
But the heather still dwells
In the valleys below.

To the Highlands we'll go
And we'll recall so well
Where Scotch heather grows
In the valleys below.

Spring Fever

For May's a month that shades the mind;
Its languors lazy hold the soul.
The printed page lags far behind.
For May's a month that shades the mind.

The light shot forth does make me blind;
I wonder what the lesson holds.
For May's a month that shades the mind.
Its languors lazy hold the soul.

T.V. Triolet

The hero still sat high on his horse;
His gun was a flash in the bright sunlight.
The villains comes galloping down the course;

The hero still sat high on his horse.
Past his head went whizzing a shot in flight,
His gun was a flash in the bright sunlight,

mountain road. As we must watch our step so we must discipline our tongue.

There is nothing automatic about this. It requires effort. In fact, the regenerative power of God is needed to renew our hearts and minds, so that the tongue may refrain from speaking evil and also bring blessing and help to others.

The habit of talking overmuch can be a disease, or as a spark or flame that will cause a blaze. Talking too much may be worse than eating too much. It is not what goes into the mouth but what comes out that makes the soul unclean.

The villains ran from his gun's deadly force;

Must end soon; knowing this, the eagle stops.

The hero still sat high on his horse.

The Visitor

Last autumn on a misty morn
I stood outside my cabin in silence
Watching birds and animals at play.

Out in the lake stood a moose
With beautiful horns.

He stood there eating among the reeds.

I walked quietly to the shore of the lake.

He heard me and twisted his head around,

And walked up the other shore
Paying me no heed.

The Eagle

The jerking, flutt'ring, ever-halting flight

Must end soon; knowing this, the eagle stops.

If patient, he'll have tender food tonight.

The jerking, flutt'ring, ever-halting flight

Can't stop; he's spied the eagle's form in flight.

His sturdy wings do flutter; then he drops.

The jerking, flutt'ring, ever-halting flight
