Knights of Columbus Buy Moore's School

Bucke Township Public School Board rejected council's $1.00 offer for Moore's Cove School at a meeting held last Thursday and accepted a bid of $3,000 from the Knights of Columbus and Catholic Women's League for use as a lodge room.

Earlier, council held an emergency meeting and supported Reeve Harry Groom's proposal for making a bid to obtain the premises as a community centre. Council offered to pay the board $1 for the building, take it over as Bucke Township's first community centre and appoint a five-man board to administer it.

John McKay-Clements, a north-end ratepayer and one of about a dozen to attend a special meeting of the board and council, said the school authorities were morally, though not legally obliged to go through with the deal. A show of hands indicated north-end residents in favor of the sale.

Board chairman Tom Willis said his group had advertised tenders in April and by the June 17 deadline had received no bids. "There are dozens of schools all over Ontario for sale and nobody wants them," he stated.

He explained that the board was faced with maintenance costs if the premises were not disposed of and added it had cost the board $2,255 each year, apart from teachers' salaries, to keep the two-room school going.

The Moore's Cove Public School was shut down at the end of the school year just concluded since, starting in September, students will receive "bought education from New Liskeard and Haileybury." Mr. Willis said it would cost $6,000 to $7,000 to convert the premises for residence.

Mr. Willis explained that when no bids were received, the period was extended further and two bids came in — one for $1,000. An earlier idea to convert the premises for use as a retarded children's school was frowned upon by the department of education, according to Mr. Willis.

North-end residents felt the building would better be sold to the organizations, becoming a source of tax revenue rather than be a community centre and a liability to the ratepayer.

Mrs. A. McCamus

Mrs. Alice McCamus, wife of the late James McCamus died in New Liskeard and District Hospital on July 15 after a short illness. Mrs. McCamus would have celebrated her 100th birthday on July 18.

Mrs. McCamus lived on a farm in Stephenson Township for 50 years, and when her husband died moved to Bracebridge for a few years.

She came to New Liskeard in 1946 to make her home with her brother-in-law, the late Tom McCamus where she lived until her death.

Mrs. McCamus was born in Manvers, Durham County, near Lindsay in 1861. Her maiden name was Rumerfield, she was raised and went to school there, and it was in that county that she married James McCamus.

She was a member of the United Church in Bracebridge where the funeral services were held from the Reynolds Funeral Chapel on Monday, July 17, with Rev. D. C. Muir officiating. Interment was in Falkenberg Cemetery.

Across the kitchen Table

BY MRS. MAC

Another very nice week-end has just passed. Barry, my "tall, dark and handsome" grandson and I set off Saturday morning at 8:15 and drove to Smith's Falls, spent an hour with one of Mrs. Cameron's nieces, Dr. Mary McCallum, met another of her nieces, Miss Beulah Weekes and then came back to Carleton Place, talked to my aunt and made arrangements to pick her up Sunday morning, had dinner down town and then went out to the home of my wonderful Irish cousins, where we laughed and talked, (and ate) half the night and then left for home at nine o'clock Sunday morning. Little "Sally Volks" acted like an angel all the way and gave us over forty miles of travel for every gallon of gas we fed her. She's a pet. And we are so glad to have Aunt Grace home again.

Last Thursday, Mrs. Olive Childs invited me to her home to see a double pink petunia plant that she has. It was just one solid mass of flowers, such huge blooms, and although I didn't count them, I'm sure there must have been over twenty out and dozens of buds still to come. She also showed me her collection of over 900 salt and pepper shakers. I couldn't begin to describe the different designs, but you name them and she has them, and also a good many kinds that you would never think of naming. How she has the patience to keep them all so shiny clean, I'll never know. A cup of tea completed a very pleasant visit.

MARKED PAID

A Chelsea jazz club has devised a method of weeding out gate-crashers. Paying customers are dabbed on the hand with fluorescent paint as they go in.

Another very nice thing happened this week, too. Monday morning, a nice young man came in to pay his mother's subscription and gave me a note from her. When I opened it I found it was from Mrs. R. Elizabeth Smith, who for the past five years has been writing me such nice comments about my column and sending me cards every Christmas. Just now she is in charge of Moore's Drug store in New Liskeard while Mrs. Moore is on holiday, so I dropped in there Monday evening after work and found that she's just as nice to talk to as to hear from. It is such a heart-warming experience to meet a pen friend and find that they are even nicer than you expected them to be.

My roses are out, pink and yellow and red and white and a lovely bloom of Herbert Hoover with one side of the petal yellow and the other, rose. Also, something new this year are my regal lilies, not very tall but there will be about a dozen blooms. And I have two beautiful white peony blooms on a plant that Canon Sims gave me two years ago. Wouldn't it be nice if I didn't have anything to do all summer but work in the garden? I wouldn't mind working twice as hard at other things, all winter, if I could be in my garden more in the summer.
