I See by THE PAPERS

When the situation becomes so bad that the couple heads for a divorce lawyer, the only hope lies in providing a working plan that will consolidate the debts and ease the pressure on husband and wife.

Mrs. Lundy says liquor is next as a home-wrecker. A family with an alcohol problem didn't come to a counsellor until many weary, unhappy years had gone by. Alcoholics usually were able to smooth over their turgid outbursts with soft soap, vows of abstinence and an occasional dry spell.

Mr. Lortie says he is convinced there's one special thing missing from the marriages that come into his office for repairs.

"What most of these poor people fail to realize is that marriage is a working relationship which flourishes only when it's kept alive and carefully tended by both parties. To make a go of marriage, man and wife must work at the relationship in the living room, the kitchen, the dining room and the bedroom."

TUCSON, Ariz — To stimulate Christmas shopping in snowless Tucson, operators of a shopping centre had several thousand pounds of ice ground to powdery snow and piled on the parking area. Hidden through the pile were several hundred prizes. The kids showed up and started tossing snowballs. Two policemen could not break up the battle. It was an hour before policemen, reinforced by shopping centre employees, recaptured the snow mound.

MOSCOW — Soviet space dog Strelka has given birth to four healthy puppies, her second litter since her 18 circuits of the earth in August, 1960, the newspaper Soviet Russia reported.

"This news confirms that cosmic flight does not have negative effects on the health of animals or their vital functions," the newspaper said. Strelka's first litter was six puppies.

She and another dog, Belka — along with mice, plants and insects — travelled 437,500 miles around the earth 200 miles up in a Soviet spaceship before being brought back to earth.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind. — An 80-year-old man who said, "I just couldn't take it any more," shot his 77-year-old wife to death while she slept, police said. Emanuel Brooks signed a statement saying he and his wife Sarah hadn't gotten along for years, they said. Mrs. Brooks was killed with a 12-gauge shotgun.

TORONTO — The Ontario government will not levy the sales tax on Indian reserves, a treasury department official said.

The government has decided to follow the practice in Quebec of not charging tax on items bought by Indians from Indians on reserves. The decision was made after consultation with the Indian Affairs Branch at Ottawa.

LONDON — A group of Conservative members of Parliament suggested "grouse shops" be established at shopping centres, where housewives dissatisfied with their purchases and shopkeepers with grievances could go to register their complaints.

GODRICH — Being a Good Samaritan has paid off for a speeding driver who returned to help the constable chasing him after his patrol car skidded into a ditch.

When the 20-year-old London driver returned to the police station with Constable Harold Creedon, the chief constable decided few drivers would have returned and decide not to lay charges.

PETAWAWA—Restaurant owner Elbert Morris was fined $31.50 for pouring a cup of coffee.

He poured it over the head of county bailiff James Valliant after being served with a summons. Valliant promptly charged him with assault.

Aurel Gauthier of North Bay has a dime that may be worth $2,000.

Now safely tucked away in a bank deposit box until it can be appraised by a coin dealer, the 1936 "dot" coin is in "extremely fine" condition and is described by Mr. Gauthier as a "numismatic's dream". He and his brother, Ronald, made the find while going over his collection a few days ago.

Coin catalogues disclose that only eight coins of the one cent and ten cent varieties are known to be in circulation. The "dot" series was struck early in 1937 as an emergency issue to cope with a shortage of pennies, dimes and quarters. It is thought that the mint punch became clogged soon after the press went to work and only a few escaped.

The raised dot is located directly beneath the wreath, which ties the leaves bordering the coin.

CAPE TOWN — Girls who value their nylons too much to get down on their knees to pray are offered a replacement for damaged stockings by the Dean of Cape Town, Very Rev. E. L. King — If they pray in the right devotional position. No immediate takers were reported.

BRIGUS, Nfld. — Hector Broughton has harvested 140 pounds of grapes from two vines planted several years ago by his father, the late Rev. Ezra Broughton. This year's crop was the largest the family ever obtained.

A veteran army officer recently credited newspaper advertising for 100 per cent success at Kingston in national survival corps recruiting. "We reached our objective," said Major W. A. Brennen of the Princess of Wales Own Regiment. "Newspaper advertising produced these excellent results."

PORT STANLEY — A fuel oil delivery driver, responding to an order, filled two 200-gallon tanks in the basement of a Port Stanley home.

There were complications. There was only one 200-gallon tank in the house — it had been filled that morning.

Today oil company workers are decontaminating the house with solvents and fans. The occupants had to evacuate.

It was the wrong house.

STRATFORD-ON-AVON, Eng. — Steeplechase jockey Terry Biddlecombe, with one foot caught in a stirrup, was dragged 200 yards by a runaway horse past horrified fans a runaway horse past horrified fans.

Biddlecombe finally got his foot clear, trotted back to the weighing room, vaulting over a railing on route, apparently without a scratch.

Trainer Fred Rimell said: "That was the luckiest escape I've ever seen at a race track."

WORSLEY, Eng. — Boys at a youth club in Lancashire town started to build a 15-foot canoe. Halfway finished, complications arose. The workshop is only ten feet long. Sympathetic council officials rose to the occasion and knocked down the wall.

The Bible To-day

The preparation of a new edition of the Kuoyo Bible for Hong Kong and China has been printed in simplified form. Former editions ran the columns of ideographs up and down the complete length of the page. The new setting has the page divided across the middle and the sectional headings previously printed at the top of the page are now set on separate lines dividing the sacred page into duly titled sections.

The Book of Psalms has been completed in Kuoyo Braille, to be added to the New Testament produced some years ago. A strange situation arises. In the Kuoyo script the Chinese characters themselves convey the meaning and may be pronounced differently in different dialects. Chinese Braille however, is based on sounds. Each Braille letter represents a different sound. So a Cantonese Christian can read and understand the Kuoyo Bible if he has sight, but if he is blind he cannot understand the Braille letters which represent the Kuoyo sounds. So a further Braille Testament will be needed with the Braille letters representing the Cantonese sound. The Braille Scriptures production is being done in Taiwan where translation work in the Sediq, Paiwan, Bunan, Amis and Taiyal languages for the people of the Highlands is also being done.
