Housing program is extended

A federal program, which is proving successful in fostering innovative ways of improving housing affordability, has been extended three years by Canada Mortgage and Housing Corporation (CMHC).

In announcing the extension to the Affordability and Choice Today (ACT) program, the Honourable Diane Marleau, Minister responsible for CMHC, said "This program encourages municipalities and the housing sector to work together to develop, demonstrate and promote innovations in local planning and building regulations which can lead to improvements in housing affordability and housing choices."

Marleau also thanked the Federation of Canadian Municipalities (FCM), the Canadian Home Builders' Association (CHBA) and the Canadian Housing and Renewal Association (CHRA) for their ongoing support in partnering with CMHC to manage and promote the program.

Now entering its seventh year of operation, the program has provided $990,000 in federal assistance to 94 projects spread across all regions of Canada.

The decision to extend ACT was based on the findings and recommendations of a recently completed program evaluation. It showed that ACT projects are having benefits in a wide variety of areas such as, streamlining project approvals, establishing alternative development standards, allowing new types of housing and enabling innovative infill and adaptation projects.

The evaluation also confirmed that ACT has fostered greater cooperation between municipalities and the housing sector and has succeeded in transferring information on new approaches to housing problems to municipalities across Canada.

Jerry Roehr, CHBA president, called the program a very significant contributor to Canada's housing objectives because it encourages communities and industry to work together.

"Our joint initiatives, promoting reforms which benefit everyone, are a positive way to achieve tangible results for housing consumers."
