

Shutterbugs hit the Hills

Warning to all Halton Hills residents: shutterbugs are on the loose! If you see people clicking with joy and snapping with anticipation in your neighbourhood, don't panic - just buy some film and join in the fun of Photoart '97.

The Halton Hills Camera Club extends an invitation to all Halton Hills residents and club members to search the town and their own files for the images that will be entered into the 17th annual juried Photoart competition. This year the selected photographs will be exhibited in the Halton Hills Library and Cultural Centre gallery from March 5 to 29. Everyone is invited to attend the official opening and awards presentation from 7 to 9 pm, March 5.

There are many categories available for both black and white and colour prints, including people, foliage, abstracts and architecture. A complete list of Photoart categories and entry rules is on the back of the Photoart flyer that can be found in local camera shops, the Civic Centre and the Cultural Centre. So, stop wasting time, blow the dust off your lens and show your stuff in the largest annual photography show Halton Hills has to offer.

For the best Photoart results, please follow the mounting and entry instructions on the flyer exactly.

Entries for this show must be submitted to 27 Park Ave., in Georgetown between Feb. 15 and March 1.

For more Photoart details, please call Sandra Timleck at 877-6198 or Bryan Osatchuk at 877-7155.
