An Ancestor Snake Story

A YOUNG GIRL BITTEN BY A MILK SNAKE.

It is very seldom that the newspapers of the Dominion are called upon to chronicle a genuine snake story. However, a genuine one comes from Ancaster this week.

The girl Lucy had gone out in the morning with her pail for the purpose of milking the cow. Her feet and ankles were quite bare, but Lucy, like most young country girls, was hardy and strong, and picked her way through the brambles with as much grace and courage as an Indian.

Woodcock is agitated over the cow nuisance. A whole herd got into one of the villagers' gardens yesterday afternoon, and after devouring all that was eatable, was captured.

A Lady On Canadian Nationality

"If the Canadian people will honorably unite in carrying out measures proposed by the Government for the good of the country, irrespective of self-interest and party prejudice, they must before the close of the present century become a great and prosperous people, bearing their own flag, and enjoying their own nationality."

The above is an extract from the introduction to a late edition of Mrs. Moodie's well known work "Forest Life in Canada," and was written so recently as 1871. Here surely is treason to the old flag; treason to the honory crest of party government; and a positive advocacy of a new nationality; and the wonder is that the lynx eyes of the Globe and Mail editors had not discovered the paragraph and shot forth glances of sternest denunciations of both the book, and its author.

Commenting the extract quoted above to the attention of our brethren of the partisan press, we drop for the present the discussion of the subject.—Meaford Monitor.

Efforts have again been made to induce Mr. John Bright to come to the United States and lecture. He was offered a black check to fill with any sum he pleased, if he would come but he declined.
