LOCAL MATTERS,

We tender our thanks to those of our patrons who responded to Blythe. our request a few weeks ago to Marray, pay up their accounts due this Stewart, r office. There are yet, however, a large number who have not paid for this year's FREE PRESS, and some whose indebtedness extends over last year. We would be very much pleased to see or hear from them soon.

AUTUMN'S APPEARANCE. - The changing sessons have brought us the autumn days with all their variety and beauty. Nature has attained her perfect growth and stands waiting to die. The sky is hasy; the days are getting short; here and there in the rows o shade trees we find some leaves that have already put on their bright tints preparatory to fading. In the woods the underbrush and ferns are turning brown ; the fields are bare and many of the gardens have been cleansed of the summer's vegetation. Soon will come, gest pile of stuff I ever got for the the time of falling leaves and frosty money. nights without, and cosy gatherings around the fires within.
